CITY RALLIES BEHIND M'LEOD BILL

We Reply to Japan.
May Day, Not Merry.
Taxpayers, Tartar Fashion.
Giant Bootleg Industry.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

THE UNITED STATES' official reply to Japan, concerning China, Americans will approve, and Japan cannot reasonably object to it. Japan announced herself alone responsible for maintaining peace in Asia, and reserved the right to judge whether efforts of other nations to help China by loans, sales or advice are detrimental to peace or not.

The United States replies: "Like ourselves, Japan and China have signed the nine-power treaty and other treaties guaranteeing territorial and administrative integrity of China, and maintenance of the open door. And the United States expects Japan and other countries to live up to agreements."

The United States' message to Japan, although printed in the Japanese afternoon papers, was "pointedly ignored" by Japan in an official message to the press. Japanese newspapers do not like the United States' message, but will become reconciled as they think it over.

Japan says in substance to the United States and the rest of the world: "You may not trade with the 400,000,000 people of China, except with my consent, and on my terms." This country cannot well ignore the fact that China does not belong to Japan.

Japan would not like it if the United States said to Japan: "You may not trade with anybody in Canada, the United States, South America or Turkey." Those countries, all together, have not as much population as China. Japan would say: "Let those countries speak for themselves." Uncle Sam says that of China.

OBSERVE AGAIN, for the ten thousandth time, the quiet cleverness of our British friends. Britain is more determined than we to sell goods to China, more desperately in need of foreign markets. But she doesn't say anything to annoy Japan. From England, the Japanese get word: "Britain is satisfied. England lets the matter rest."

While Uncle Sam is willing to step out and do the chestnut pulling, England is content.

YESTERDAY, May 1, was the day that Europe devotes to labor and radical demonstrations. Fortunately, this country selects a later date for Labor Day. Even so, Chicago and New York were on the alert, fearing that American branches of Europe's radicalism might become active, by contagion. In Paris alone 40,000 guards, many tanks and machine gun patrols filled the streets. Several were injured.

There was a general strike in Spain, and Cuba was worried about attacks on United States property. Such was the early news.

THE ADVANTAGE of a dictator who really dictates was shown in Italy, Germany, Turkey, Russia. In those countries, no May Day or Labor Day agitation develops. The people get orders, and obey them.

In Germany the day was devoted to Nazi speeches, telling how much happier the working man is under Hitler than he ever was before.

In Italy, Turkey and Russia it was "business as usual," with the dictator in command. The dictator idea may spread before the world gets over its crop of troubles.

MICHIGAN THINKS it is possible to overdo the business of spending money. In a referendum, a plan to spend $37,847,458 public funds "to provide employment in highway construction and institutional building improvements" is defeated, 149,703 to 28,527. Only taxpayers were allowed to vote, which made a difference.

THE PRESENT attitude of this country toward taxpayers is a good deal like that of primitive nomadic tartars toward cattle driven with them on their wanderings. The limping cattle were urged along until camping time, then the tartars cut what they required from the living animals, ate it and drove the poor creatures on next day.

That seemed a good plan, compelling the animals to transport themselves without refrigeration, while sufficient food was cut from their bodies from time to time, but in the long run gangrene and loss of cattle along the road proved the plan a bad one. Americans will discover eventually that men who make money are the men that have brains, and men that have brains are men that give employment and create payrolls. If they are crippled in the tartar manner others will suffer with them.

THE GOVERNMENT turns an army of 2,500 agents loose against bootlegging, which has become a serious matter. During prohibition, bootleggers only flouted the Constitution. Now they cut down government income.

Figures supplied by Joseph H. Choate, Jr., director of federal alcohol control, shows that bootleggers are manufacturing more whisky than the total legal consumption. And the bootlegging distilleries are not little "moonshine" affairs, but enormous distilleries, "with stills tall enough to extend through three or four stories of well equipped buildings."

In the first quarter of 1934, stills were seized with a capacity for producing 68,000,000 gallons of alcoholic spirits a year. Bootlegging enterprises involve robbing the government of hundreds of millions a year. Mr. Choate deserves thanks for his energy in attacking a leak in the national revenue, and a leak of badly made, poisonous whisky.

JANE A. SLOAN

SOCIETY GIRL IN AUTO CRASH

A man suffered the loss of his right eye when the automobile in which he was riding, and another car driven by Jane A. Sloan, young society woman of Moorhead place, collided at Penn and Dallas avenues last night, according to a police report.

The victim, Samuel Essa, 27, of 513 Union avenue, North Side, was taken to Pittsburgh Hospital, where surgeons found it necessary to remove his right eye, police said.

Miss Sloan and Jubran K. Farhart, 25, of the Union avenue address, driver of the car in which Essa was riding, were uninjured. The drivers posted bonds for a hearing in Traffic Court.

Hotel Cashier Hurt When Hit by Auto

Miss Marion Thoma, 22, of 552 Rosedale street, a cashier at Hotel William Penn, suffered severe lacerations and bruises when struck by an automobile at William Penn way and Oliver avenue, late yesterday. She was en route to work when an automobile, driven, police said, by Roy Powell, 30, of 233 Oliver avenue, struck her. After receiving treatment at Mercy Hospital, Miss Thoma was taken home.

Roosevelt Opposes Slash in Rum Tax

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt is not inclined to reduce the new liquor tax at this session of Congress, preferring other methods of attack on bootleggers.

The President is hopeful that removal of the quota restrictions on liquor imports will be of benefit in curtailing bootleg activities.

City Approves Fund To Land Industries

An appropriation of $30,000 to the Pittsburgh Industrial Development Commission for the purpose of bringing new industries to the district has been approved by Finance Committee of City Council. The grant depends on the ability of the commission to raise an additional $100,000 from private sources.

DAVIS PACES CELL; JURY AT ODDS

Boy Nervous, Mother In Tears Across Bridge of Sighs

Confidently expecting acquittal, young Tom Davis, high school youth charged with the murder of a state highway patrolman, nervously paced his cell today while a jury of nine men and three women, apparently deadlocked, pondered his fate.

In the courtroom across the Bridge-of-Sighs, Tom's aged parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Davis, Sr., kept vigil.

Mrs. Davis, who yesterday collapsed in the courtroom, was still in a highly nervous state and constantly on the verge of tears.

Constantly wringing her hands, she sat on a courtroom bench with her husband and friends. She spoke to none of them, however, and stared fixedly at the wall, awaiting word from the jury that would mean either death in the electric chair or liberty for her son.

Despite customary rules, Mr. and Mrs. Davis were permitted a brief visit with Tom after their arrival at the Courthouse this morning.

HOPE AND FEAR

Charged with the murder of Herbert Brantlinger, 27, state highway patrolman, fatally shot at a gas station near Bridgeville September 3, the youthful defendant broke the calm he has maintained since the opening of the trial as he listened to final arguments of Defense Attorney Robert B. Ivory, Sr., and Prosecutor Roy T. Clunk yesterday.

Following the final arguments, hope and fear clashed in the boy's countenance as he listened to Judge J. Frank Graff's hour-and-a-quarter charge to the jury.

Throughout Ivory's closing argument, lasting one hour and 40 minutes, he sat quietly and intently, and only when called a "murderer who, when cornered, shoots to kill" did he show nervousness during Clunk's hour-and-a-half address. The case went to the jury at 5:13 p. m.

A verdict of murder in the first degree with a recommendation of death was asked by Prosecutor Clunk. Other verdicts permissable under law are first degree, with a recommendation of life imprisonment, voluntary manslaughter and acquittal.

STRESS TIME ELEMENT

Figuring mainly in the final arguments was exact time of the shooting, set at 11:15 by Ivory and "positively after 11:30" by Clunk; Brantlinger's dying statement that there were two men in the murder car; allegations by the defense that "third degree" methods were used to force Tom's confession, and the defendant's reason for leaving home 10 days after the shooting.

The Krag rifle alleged by the state to have been used in the shooting also was a central point of final contention.

2 Children Die In Clearfield Fire

CLEARFIELD, Pa., May 2.—(AP.)—Two children were burned to death in a fire that destroyed the rural home of Walter Krebs early today. The dead are Jack Krebs, 14, and Marshall Krebs, 6.

Another son, 15 years old, was burned and three other children rescued.

Weirton Steel Denies Putting Taboo on Union

WILMINGTON, Del., May 2.—(AP.)—Opposing the federal government's plea for an injunction to prevent interference with the election of collective bargaining representatives, the Weirton Steel Company today opened its argument with a detailed defense of the company plan of employe representation.

The government closed its argument before Judge John P. Nields in United States District Court yesterday.

Earl F. Reed, of Pittsburgh, Weirton counsel, drew a word picture of prosperous and peaceful conditoions at the company plants in West Virginia and Ohio until after enactment of the National Recovery Act, when, he said, an "outside union," the Amalgamated Association of Steel, Iron and Tin Workers, entered the ranks of the Weirton employes.

Reed related that in May, 1933, Ernest T. Weir, chairman of the board, went to Bethlehem Steel Company officials to discuss their plan of employe representation which he said for 14 years had been regarded as a "model" plan. Mr. Reed said:

"Government counsel makes it appear that Mr. Weir sat down and contrived some method to defeat the National Recovery Act.

"It was far from the skullduggery which the government insinuates."

He defied the government spokesmen to find in their affidavits that "one word of dissent" appeared among the employes at that time. The Amalgamated was not in existence at the Weirton plants then, he said. He declared more than 88 per cent of the workers voted for the representation plan in June, 1933.

Reed denied company domination of the plan and also denied that the Weirton workers are prevented from joining a union.

COURT VOIDS COAL CODE

International News Service.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 2.—Ruling that mining is intrastate business and is without the jurisdiction of Congress to regulate, United States District Judge Charles I. Dawson today granted a temporary injunction restraining enforcement of the NRA bituminous coal code in Western Kentucky.

The court vigorously assailed attempts of the federal government to regulate intrastate business and said of the National Industrial Recovery Act:

"I don't have the slightest doubt about the unconstitutionality of this act as it affects local business."

The mine operators had asked relief from the $4.60 daily basic wage scale which the new code provides, with a seven-hour day. They claimed any wage over $4 a day would put them out of business and that the code thus was confiscatory. All mines in the field, employing about 20,000 men, have been idle since the code went into effect.

GEM THEFTS LAID TO FIVE HELD HERE

Sleuths Lead Roundup; Thousands of Dollars In Loot Bared

A tri-state gang of gem thieves, held in connection with robberies which netted them hundreds of thousands of dollars in loot, was rounded up here today, county detectives declared after the arrest of five men.

The five, booked at the County Jail as fugitives from justice in order to prevent them from obtaining bail, were arraigned this morning before Alderman Andrew M. Maloney and bound over for further hearings.

They are Cosimo Petty, 25, of Cliff street, alleged ring leader; Fred Schell, 24, of Epiphany street; Harry Fox, 39, of Warrington avenue; Sam Tallenfield, 27, of Arthur street, and John Krouse, 31, of Congress street.

LINKED IN THEFTS

County detectives said they had been definitely linked with several jewelry store robberies recently in Western Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio.

County Detectives Walter Monaghan, Philip Goldberg and Thomas Calig and M. J. Lacey, a Pinkerton operative, assisted by police, made the arrests.

Officials and employes of jewelry stores here and in other cities visited the County Detective Bureau today in an effort to identify the men.

MAN IDENTIFIED

C. M. Jones, Parkersburg (W. Va.) jeweler, pointed Petty out as the man who bound and gagged him recently in his store and escaped with loot valued at $10,000.

Among other robberies, the five men are charged with having three times broken the window of the Terheyden Company, 530 Smithfield street, one of Pittsburgh's oldest jewelry stores. On each occasion, a large amount of jewelry was taken.

M. J. Kane, another jeweler, identified Krouse as having participated in the $5,000 robbery of the N. P. Laudau store, 546 Franklin avenue, Aliquippa.

Kappel's store on Sixth street, Pittsburgh, was robbed of gems valued at $20,000 by the gang, county detectives said.

Explaining His Bill

CONGRESSMAN CLARENCE J. McLEOD SPEAKING TODAY

Congressman McLeod, father of the Congressional measure designed for the payment from federal funds of depositors in closed Federal Reserve Member banks, addressing a Pittsburgh audience at the Nixon Theater today. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

JOINS MOVE TO FORCE VOTE

Bank Payoff Sponsor Asks Public Support At Meeting

Depositors in closed banks in the Pittsburgh area and others interested in the McLeod plain to free the frozen assets of closed Federal Reserve Banks today rallied to the cause of Congressman Clarence J. McLeod, author of the proposal.

Addressing a noon mass meeting in the Nixon Theater, Congressman McLeod said that upon the public depends the problem of freeing his bill from the parliamentary meshes in which its opponents have entangled it.

Petitions and telegrams to Congressmen of Pennsylvania were dispatched from the meeting. The names of the Pennsylvania representatives who have not signed the petition to bring the bill to a vote in the House were read.

Congressman Clyde Kelly, of Allegheny County, who with Congressman M. J. Muldowney, of Pittsburgh, has been one of the most active members of Congress in support of the bill, introduced Congressman McLeod.

LEAGUE PROPOSED

Mr. McLeod told his audience that every parliamentary move possible had been resorted to in an effort to prevent a vote on his measure. He said that if the House Rules Committee is not compelled to put the bill to a vote speedily, all hope for the legislation will be lost at the present session of Congress.

He said that leaders of the opposition have conceded that the bill will pass if it is brought to the floor of the House.

After McLeod had spoken, a resolution presented by I. Leonard Aronson, was adopted unanimously to create a depositors' league similar to organizations formed in other cities to actively support the bank payoff legislation.

KELLY LAUDS McLEOD

In introducing Congressman McLeod, Representative Kelly lauded the Michigan Representative for the fight he has made for his bill and said that the gov-

GARY, Ind., May 2.—(AP.)—The next times Mrs. Beulah Hopkins takes a bath she'll lock the bathroom window.

Mrs. Hopkins went into the bathroom, disrobed, and turned the water on in the tub. Suddenly her husband heard a scream. He dashed into the bathroom and his wife was gone. He peered out the open window. His wife had fallen three stories and was atop a sand pile on the ground.

At the Gary Hospital, Mrs. Hopkins explained that she stepped on a piece of soap and skidded right out the window. Her only injury was a wrenched back.

The number of police required to patrol Forbes Field for the Sunday ball games is to be investigated by City Council. This action was suggested by Councilman Charles Anderson yesterday after a discussion of the Sunday sports license fees.

Finance committee affirmed an amendment to the sports ordinance ruling out a $1 fee where less than 10 cents admission or none whatever is charged.

Children Beg Kidnapers To Free June Robles

International News Service.

TUCSON, Ariz., May 2.—"Please, kidnaper, bring June back. Her mother is very sick. We want her to come back to school. All of us want her to come back to school."

That pitiful appeal to the abductors of June Robles, 6, was made today by her fearful and sobbing little schoolmates.

The note was scrawled in wavering lines by Betty Lou Anderson, 7, and was signed by all members of the primary department of the Roskruge School, near which June was abducted last Wednesday while she was en route to her home.

Sylvia Robles, 4, sister of the kidnaped girl, today showed the first signs of a realization of the tragedy by continually asking:

"Where's Junie? I want Junie play wif me. When'll she come from school and tell me stories?"

June's dolls remained untouched.

Midnight Thursday has been set as a deadline by law enforcement agencies for the return of June.

If reported negotiations between Bernabee Robles, grandfather of the abducted child, and the kidnapers have not reached a definite stage by that time the greatest manhunt the Southwest has ever known—now at a standstill—will be resumed.

Blind Pupils Scorn Help In Fire Scare Flight

Displaying utmost calm, 160 students of the Western Pennsylvania School for the Blind walked unaided to the street after false alarms had brought six companies to the school on Bellefield avenue early today.

Automatic fire alarms in two of the buildings, set off by accident, brought the apparatus to the scene.

Despite the handicap of their blindness, the 160 students of the school, ranging in age from 6 to 24 years old, walked to the street at the sounding of the first alarm. No "human chain" was formed.

The alarms were sounded from the kindergarten building and from the cottage, in which 12 of the teachers sleep. A short circuit was probably the cause.

Fred Hunt, athletic director at the school, praised the blind students for their conduct during the excitement. He said that even the youngest of the children maintained perfect calm, each one walking alone and unguided to the porch of the building at the first alarm.

WALL STREET AGAIN CHARGES 'PROPAGANDA' TO PECORA

DATA ON STOCK LOANS HELD 'UNFAIR'

Fletcher-Rayburn Bill Gains Support by Disclosures

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(AP.)—Richard Whitney, president of the New York Stock Exchange tossed today a charge of "propaganda" at Ferdinand Pecora, counsel of the Senate stock market investigating committee.

Whitney made his accusation in a statement just after the committee turned out a new mass of figures to show how a flood of credit swept down Wall Street on the boom tide.

The survey, containing answers to questionnaires submitted to 33 of the nation's largest banks, showed that on July 1, 1929, these institutions had out brokers' loans totaling $4,700,000,000.

Whitney hit anew at publication by the committee yesterday of figures showing profits in seven figures by Wall Street insiders and exchange member firms.

FIGURES ASSAILED

In a first statement he asserted these figures were "grossly misleading." Later he said:

"The Stock Exchange is prepared to prove every statement which it has made about the Fletcher-Rayburn bill.

"Real propaganda consists of publishing at a timely moment information capable of influencing or prejudicing the public opinion. That is precisely what Mr. Pecora did when he submitted to the Senate Committee figures in regard to the earnings of the New York Stock Exchange firms."

LEGISLATION AIDED

It was generally conceded, as the House moved closer to a vote on the Fletcher-Rayburn bill, that the legislation had been given impetus by disclosure of the heights to which brokers' profits ran during the speculative era.

The new statistics, showing how billions of dollars were absorbed from the channels of business and commerce by Wall Street speculation in the boom days, were generally calculated to have a similar effect.

While the losses from loans to brokers were comparatively slight, the banks were forced to write off from January 1, 1929, to September 15, 1933, more than a quarter of a billion dollars loaned on these securities.

U. S. INDUSTRIAL LOANS URGED

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(AP.)—Urging enactment of a bill to let Federal Reserve Banks make capital loans to industries, Gov. Eugene Black, of the Federal Reserve Board, told the House Banking Committee today a nation-wide survey had shown smaller industries could use $622,000,000 of such loans.

Black said the board had sent questionnaires to 4,958 banks and 1,066 chambers of commerce.

The answers necessarily were estimates, he said, and a tabulation of those showed $622,000,000 in loans could be used to maintain 350,000 men on the job and provide employment for about 380,000 more.

He said, however, that under the bill he proposed, the Federal Reserve could lend only $282,000,000.

The Cleveland district, which includes Pittsburgh, reported it could use $51,000,000 to supply 16,000 new jobs.

U. S. SPEEDING HOUSING DRIVE

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt will ask Congress in the next couple of days for authority to inaugurate a nation wide housing program.

The administration plan calls for government aid both for new construction and modernization of homes.

The President said at his press conference today a survey of the country had shown a real need for the housing program being worked out by Frank C. Walker, chairman of the executive council.

Details were withheld by Mr. Roosevelt pending his message to Congress, but it was said only very simple permissive legislation is required.

Harry Hopkins, Federal Relief Administrator, is co-operating on the plan.

MINERS FAVOR AGE FUND AT 45

Old age pensions at 45 were urged unanimously today by the United Mine Workers, District No. 5, convention here.

The resolution was passed after the age limit had been sliced from 60, called for in the original resolution.

Delegates said their ages prevented them from obtaining work after they passed 45. This, they said, resulted largely from "the machine age."

The convention also favored petitioning Congress for a federal tax on natural gas, fuel oil and electricity, the tax to be absorbed by the producer.

After hot debate an amendment urging federal ownership of hydro-electric plants, instead of the tax, was defeated by a vote of 102 to 65.

SENATE FAVORS TARIFF BILL

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(AP.)—The Senate Finance Committee today approved the reciprocal tariff bill with an amendment providing for hearings of affected industries before any tariff reductions are put in force.

The measure, to empower the President to negotiate trade agreements with other nations in an effort to promote prosperity, already has been passed by the House.

The committee gave speedy indorsement to the administration's plan without a record vote. The amendment providing for hearings, which President Roosevelt favors, also was accepted without a roll call.

Sheriff Evicts Forty Families From Homes

Forty unemployed families were evicted from their homes and moved into new quarters over the week-end, Sheriff Frank I. Gollmar reported today. The transfers were made by the Sheriff's office, with the co-operation of landlords and the County Relief Board.

During last week 369 families were placed in new homes, according to George P. Mills, executive director of the relief board. A similar number will be transferred this week, he said.

The board bears the cost of materials.

ANOTHER SILVER PARLEY SET

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(AP.)—The Senate silver bloc today arranged another conference with President Roosevelt for Saturday at which an attempt will be made to reach an agreement on "flexible" silver legislation at this session.

Senator Pittman (Dem.), of Nevada, said the second conference would be for the purpose of "ascertaining if the Dies bill as amended by the Senate Agriculture Committee can be so reformed as to make more flexible the congressional mandate so as to permit the President to utilize the act without embarrassing him in any reasonable changes that might be made in the present situation."

Socialite, 77, Asks Divorce From Wife

PHILADELPHIA, May 2.—(AP.)—J. C. Mercer Biddle, 77, member of an old Philadelphia family, yesterday filed suit for divorce from his wife, the former Lillian White, 3. He charged cruel and barbarous treatment.

Thirty-two years ago Biddle married Anna Teresa Brennan, 21, a coachman's daughter. She died in 1906, and 17 years ago he married again.

PITTSBURGHER HITS NEW DEAL 'UTOPIA'

A. W. Robertson Urges Better Plan at Trade Session

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(AP.)—Strong criticism of the administration was mingled with praise today before the twenty-second annual convention of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Henry I. Harriman, president, opening the first general session, reported the New Deal's first year had seen brightening economic horizons everywhere.

Immediately following, A. W. Robertson, of Pittsburgh, chairman of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, made this statement:

"The treatment ailing business is receiving reminds one of the patient who was purged, and when I say purged I mean purged; bled white with leeches at both ends and temples; fed a powder of dried brains—and yet, said the old account, he died."

Robertson in his attack asserted a planned economy was "undoubtedly necessary," but added that "we need better plans not more plans." He added:

"Human plans have to be run by average men. It makes no difference whether they are Utopian or otherwise and just how a Utopian plan can be run by a far-from Utopian average man, I have never discovered."

Harriman asserted actual unemployment had been reduced to four millions. He praised the abolition of child labor, and then laid down the rule that:

"Frank, constructive, and helpful criticism is desirable from every standpoint; but rejecting and blocking desirable reforms will result either in national suicide or in complete revolution."

While generally optimistic and temperate Harriman mixed in some criticism of his own.

He contended the securities act must be changed, asserting it interferes with the flow of capital into the heavy goods industries, in which most of the nation's unemployment is contained.

Witherow Nominated To U. S. Trade Board

WASHINGTON, May 2.—William P. Witherow, of Pittsburgh, today had been nominated as a candidate for the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, in session here.

The movement to elect Witherow was launched at a breakfast yesterday of the Pennsylvania State Chamber of Commerce. He is a candidate for a two-year term on the directorate for the Second District, embracing Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey and Delaware.

During March, 15,166 workers were added to the payroll, bringing the total up to 380,471.

G. O. P. ASSAILS WIRT QUIZ AS 'WHITEWASH'

Republicans Turn Guns On Fellow Members Of House Probe

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(AP.)—Widely divergent Democratic and Republican views were submitted to the House today to wind up its investigation of Dr. William A. Wirt's allegations that administration "brain trusters" were seeking to overthrow the existing social order.

The majority report, signed by the three Democrats on the special House Committee, concluded there was no foundation for the Gary (Ind.) schoolmaster's assertions.

The two Republican committee members, in separate opinions, held that a thorough investigation had not been made.

It is not necessary for the House to act on any of the reports.

Chairman Bulwinkle, of North Carolina, and Representatives Arnold, of Illinois, and O'Connor, of New York, concurred in the majority view which was summarized in this fashion:

"The committee is of the opinion and reports to the House that the testimony given at the hearing, and all facts and circumstances connected therewith, clearly shows that the statements made by Dr. William A. Wirt were not true."

Representative McGugin (Rep.), of Kansas, contended the majority committee members were interested only in "suppresssing the truth with no reasonable desire or effort to obtain the truth."

McGugin reported:

"The majority members of the committee in accepting the testimony of Dr. Wirt disclose their determination in this proceeding to protect and exonerate those who were not in sympathy with traditional American government under the Constitution."

MAIL RECEIPTS GAIN HERE

As another hopeful indicator of prosperity returning, receipts of the Pittsburgh postoffice for April showed an increase over last year, and for the first time in four years two successive months have shown an increase.

These increases in March and April were registered despite the fact that postal rates in local zones have been reduced from three to two cents.

The April increase amounted to 1.16 per cent, with total receipts reaching $477,258.19. The March increase was 11 per cent.

Dog's Life Spared, Muzzle Imposed

That is the ruling handed down by Police Justice Francis W. De Camilla. The dog had been observed for several days to find out whether he was vicious as charged by several persons.

Weather Conditions

It is raining this morning in North Carolina as a result of a disturbance off the South Atlantic coast (Miami, Fla., 29.96), but weather is generally fair over the Central valleys, the lakes and New England, owing to high pressure, central off the North Atlantic coast (New York, 30.35), which overlies most of the eastern states. An area of low pressure, central over New Mexico (Santa Fe, 29.48), and covering most of the plateau, the Southern Rocky Mountains and western plains has caused scattered showers in these districts. It is slightly colder in Utah and Arizona, with little change in temperature elsewhere.

GUNS GUARDING DILLINGER GIRL

By THOMAS F. CULLEN

International News Service.

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 2.—Evelyn Frechette, Indian "gun moll" of Desperado John Dillinger, faced arraignment today in Federal Court here to answer to an indictment charging her with conspiring to harbor and conceal her notorious suitor.

At the same time Beth Green, widow of Eugene Green, gangster who was slain by federal agents here April 3 in a raid for Dillinger, will be brought before the court on the same charge.

A machine gun armed guard was enlisted to surround the two women and prevent their rescue by Dillinger or his followers when they are taken into court.

Dillinger and his gang drew squads of Department of Justice agents from this city and from Chicago into raids here and in Wisconsin Rapids, Wis., as the greates manhunt in American criminal annals went forward. The raiding forces were equipped with the latest type machine guns.

CARMEN PLAN NEW PAY MEET

Plans for another meeting, when an attempt will be made to formulate a working agreement, were speeded today by representatives of 1,800 motormen and conductors, and officials of the Pittsburgh Railways Company. The agreement between men and company expired at midnight Monday.

At the end of a conference yesterday it was announced that "another meeting will be held soon."

Officials of District No. 85, of the Street Car Men's Union, said that although the agreement with the company had expired, there will be no interruption to trolley service in the city, at least for the present.

The employes recently declined to accept an increase of three cents an hour. They are reported to be seeking an increase which would bring their wages up to $1.10 and $1.25 an hour.

Hannagan Divorced, Sports Promoter

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., May 2.—(AP.)—Final decree in the divorce of Ruth Ellery Hannagan and Stephen (Steve) Jerome J. Hannagan, nationally known sports promoter, was signed yesterday by Circuit Judge C. E. Chillingworth.

Hannagan was charged with wilful, obstinate and continued desertion for more than a year.

STEEL HOLIDAY THREAT VOTED BY UNION

Convention Delegates Cut Dues to Win 'Every Worker'

Possibility of a nation-wide steel "holiday" loomed today as the result of one of the last acts of the steel workers' convention.

The convention, the fifty-ninth annual gathering of the Amalgamated Assortation of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, closed last night at Elks' auditorium. It has been in session two weeks.

Voting almost unanimously, the 200 delegates declared in favor of "concerted action" unless demands for union recognition were granted.

According to International President M. F. Tighe, no definite date for the "holiday" was set, but more than a month will be given for union recognition. The delegates also voted in favor of general wage increases.

In an effort to get "every steel worker in the country into the organization," as leaders put it, dues were cut practically in half, and the initiation fee reduced from $3 to $2.

Closing the convention, Tighe warned the delegates:

"Leaders of the industry are banded together for their rights, and we must unite to win ours. If we hope to win, we must know that we are stronger than they are."

By a deciding vote cast by the president, Canton, O., was chosen as the next convention city. Gary, Ind., was tied and would have won had not one of the Gary delegates been absent from the hall getting a drink of water.

STRIKES GROW, ONE KILLED

Associated Press.

From the docks of Gulf ports to the paper mills of Ontario, new strikes prevailed over broad sectors today, with one labor dispute costing a life.

Murphy Humphrey, 22, was shot to death yesterday in the strike of 4,000 longshoremen of the Gulf ports.

Union officials said they expected the strike to spread to New York terminals of coastwise lines.

Three thousand pulp and paper mill employes were on strike at International Falls and Fort Frances, Ont.

Six hundred employes of the Sinclair-Prairie Oil Company in Seminole, Okla., voted to walk out tomorrow unless the company meets their terms.

Kansas coal miners debated whether to march on strip mines along the Kansas-Missouri line. The Missouri National Guard watched the state line west of Lamar, Mo.

About 1,600 coal miners in the Southern Tennessee fields were ordered back to work after union and mining company officials reached an agreement.

Conferences continued toward a settlement of the strike of 2,000 Cleveland gasoline station attendants and the disputes at the Fisher Body Corporation plants.

HEFLIN TRAILS TWO IN RACE

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 2.—(AP.)—Former Senator J. Thomas Heflin, of Lafayette, had only a mathematical possibility today of another shot at his "political comeback" in a run-off Democratic primary in the Fifth congressional district, as mounting returns pushed Maj. Joe Starnes, of Guntersville into second place behind Congressman Miles B. Allgood.

Upsets were numerous as other results of yesterday's Democratic primary were compiled, showing former Gov. Bibb Graves leading in a three-man contest for nomination as Governor.

Business Up, Pay Bill For Mail 'Subs' Vetoed

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(AP.)—In vetoing a bill fixing minimum wages for postal substitutes, President Roosevelt yesterday informed Congress increased revenues were providing more work for the substitute carriers who have been idle in many instances.

He vetoed the legislation on the ground that it "is contrary to public policy in that it provides compensation to a certain class of employes regardless of the need for their services." He added:

"It is discriminatory and establishes a precedent which, if followed, would undoubtedly lead to many abuses."

Postmaster General Farley in a letter to the President announced that increased business had justified him in restoring annual vacation with pay to the regular forces immediately. Farley said:

"The elimination of the furloughs and restoration of vacations, together with the resumption of normal service to meet the essential needs of the patrons, will provide immediate employment, particularly in the larger cities where the unemployment of this group has been most noticeable."

Dictator Ruling U. S., Beck Tells Employers

International News Service.

CHICAGO, May 2.—President Roosevelt's recovery program is a menace to the Constitution, according to Representative James M. Beck, of Pennsylvania.

Addressing the Illinois Manufacturers' Costs Association annual dinner, Congressman Beck expressed the belief that the nation is being imperiled by the recovery program and that the United States is confronted by its greatest crisis since 1860. He declared:

"We are living under a dictatorship. I do not question for one moment the patriotic purposes or the amiable intentions of the President of the United States. I have nothing but admiration for his qualities of leadership, which may rank him as one of the most forceful Presidents this country has ever known, but it can be said of him, as of any one vested with dictatorial powers, that the appetite for power grows by what it feeds on."

Beck said the Constitution came into being during an economic crisis far more acute than the present one.

MINISTERS INDORSE TEST TUBE BABY PLAN IN WEDLOCK

BACHELOR GIRLS GET ONLY ONE SUPPORTER

They'd Probably Have 'Angels,' Former Magistrate Says

By WINIFRED VAN DUZER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, May 2.—Controversy concerning the moral, spiritual and legal status of "synthetic parenthood" broke loose here today after Dr. Frances Seymour and other physicians disclosed that more than 100 test tube babies were born into New York homes in the last year through artificial impregnation of mothers.

Almost unanimously ministers, educators, child experts and lawyers indorsed the method, declared by Dr. W. T. Dannreuther, president of the New York County Medical Society, to have been in use 30 years in cases where would-be parents otherwise are doomed to childlessness.

BACHELOR GIRLS

But with a merely dissenting voice or two, their attitude toward the allegedly growing tendency of unmarried business and professional women to bring into the world children of anonymous fathers was summed up by Dr. Christian F. Peisner, of the Broadway Temple Methodist Episcopal Church, in this statement:

"Any unmarried woman who really wants a husband can get one. She need not say family interferes with her work. It hasn't interfered with Frances Perkins' career. She's our Secretary of Labor.

"My sympathy goes out, however, to childless married couples. If there is a way for them to become parents it should be employed—but not by bringing in outside aid. If that is necessary, they'd better adopt a child. They need not engage in unnatural and dangerous practices."

Dr. Howard V. Yerkin, vice moderator of the New York Presbytery, concurred in Dr. Peisner's opinion. He added:

"No unmarried woman has a right to undertake the solemn and sacred task of bringing life into the world. Aside from the moral question, the growing child requires a father to aid in its spiritual and intellectual progress."

'BEAUTIFUL THING'

Mrs. E. A. Bates, child expert and director of education for the New York State Parent-Teacher Association, asserted:

"When so many children are not wanted, it seems a beautiful thing that scientific means can bring them into families where they are welcome."

Mrs. Clarice M. Baright, former city magistrate, welfare worker and feminine progressive, was among the few who upheld artificial parenthood for unmarried mothers. She declared:

"Any woman, married or not, willing to go through this dangerous process in her eagerness for motherhood probably will give birth to an angel."

Despite mild scoffing of the project by Dr. Iago Galston, director of the medical information bureau of the New York Academy of Medicine, directors of the marriage consultation center of the Community Church today announced their intention of establishing a clinic to aid childless women through test tube methods.

Dr. Seymour, whose latest triumph is a pair of twin girls born to Mrs. Salvatore Lauricella, of Long Island, has promised to cooperate with the institution.

BACHELOR GIRL BABES ILLEGAL

International News Service.

NEW YORK, May 2.—"The legal position of a test tube baby born to an unmarried woman?"

Former Gov. Charles S. Whitman, the noted prosecutor who sent Lieut. Becker and "Gyp the Blood" to the electric chair, repeated the question. He then said:

"Mind, you now, I am only talking about the legal aspects of this. If the child is born to an unmarried woman, in the eyes of the law it is illegitimate."

The question was raised by the revelation that doctors had made it possible for two young business women to become mothers despite the fact that they refused to marry. They never saw the fathers of their children.

Dr. Beatrice Hinkle, noted psychiatrist, said:

"A great many women feel that they should have a right to follow the maternal instinct by having children without marriage but they are disregarding the child's rights."

ROSE KELLAR . . . SHE TOLD OF HOW SHE WAS COURTED

Miss Kellar, pictured at court at Dedham, Mass., as under a grant of immunity she testified for the commonwealth in the trial of Abe Faber and the Millen boys for the slaying of two bank guards. MILLEN PAL'S MOTHER HEARD

International News Service.

DEDHAM, Mass., May 2.—In an effort to save her son, Abe, from the electric chair, Mrs. Rose Faber took the witness stand at his trial for murder today. Her testimony was given to support the contention of the defense that her son was insane and that illness and physical infirmities ran through the Faber family for many generations.

Faber is on trial with Murton and Irving Millen for the slaying of two policeman during the holdup of the Needham Trust Company.

Mrs. Faber, a slight, bespectacled figure dressed in black, spoke in a wavering voice.

She testified to her father dying from a hemorrhage, a sister dying from cancer, and many other diseases suffered by ancestors, and immediate relatives. She said:

"My grandfather died in the insane asylum. My brother also suffered from nervous attacks."

She said after the birth of her son it was necessary to use hot and cold baths to keep him alive.

DYING, NAMES ARSON SUSPECT

Said by doctors to be dying, Joe Margola, of 317 Fifth street, Rankin, made a dramatic "deathbed" identification today of Joseph Cemino as the man who had hired him to set fire to Cemino's Orchard way, Swissvale, home.

Margola, Cemino and two others are charged with arson and conspiracy to commit arson. Their bail was fixed at $20,000 each. The others are Thomas Blant, 611 Baldrich street, Braddock, and Mike Coyle, 13 Miller street, Rankin.

Learning that Margola's death was expected momentarily, County Detectives Peter J. Connors and Walter Monaghan rushed Cemino to Braddock General Hospital, where Margola, suffering from burns received during the fire, is confined.

County detectives charge that Cemino hired Margola, Blant and Coyle for $25 each to set fire to his house in order to collect insurance.

POSSE TRAILS 3 FLEEING PEN

International News Service.

COSHOCTON, O., May 2.—Expectant that thirst and hunger may drive their prey into the open, state, county and local officials today camped doggedly in the swamplands of the Coneville region, confident that the three convicts who escaped Sunday from Ohio penitentiary will be captured.

Forces of the posse, which has been on the trail since early yesterday, were augmented yesterday by five penitentiary "crack shots" and Capt. Fred L. Smith, state director of aeronautics, who flew to Conesville late yesterday to make air sorties over the region in an effort to locate the hideout of the convict prey.

No trace of the convicts was found but the officers were still confident, however, that the escaped trio—Arthur Koontz, Rufus Deeds and Martin Schmidt—were cornered in the region somewhere.

Robin Lets 'Sistie' See Her Triplets

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(AP.)—A robin on the White House grounds accommodatingly flew from her nest in a bush today to give Mrs. Roosevelt and her granddaughter, "Sistie" Dall, a peek at the three young birds.

Mrs. Anna Curtiss Dall, mother of "Sistie," lifted her up for a look at the robins.

500 PUPILS OUT ON STRIKE AT CANONSBURG

Revolt Against Firing Of Teacher; 'Victim' Blames 'Politics'

CANONSBURG, Pa., May 2.—Revolting against action of the Canonsburg School Board in refusing to renew the contract of Hugh T. Duffy, head of the commercial department, over 600 high school students went on strike today.

Practically the entire student body, many of them carrying banners, paraded through the Canonsburg business district, shouting:

"We want Duffy."
"No Duffy, no school."

Action of the students came as an aftermath to a 6-to-1 School Board vote against re-electing Duffy for next semester.

C. A. Mathewson, principal of the school, declined to comment on the controversy.

Duff declared he had been "fired" because of personal politics. It was revealed today that he had aroused the ire of some of the members recently by appearing at one of the board meetings and questioning members concerning back pay due teachers.

Miss Thelma Berger, a Canonsburg girl, was elected to fill Duffy's place. When this took place, students circulated a petition urging the board to rescind the action and re-elect Duffy.

J. L. Fife, a teacher in the Arsenal School, Pittsburgh, and former principal of Canonsburg High School, is president of the board.

Mathewson said that a few of the students returned to their classes for the afternoon sessions, but that the majority remained away.

A meeting of parents and students was scheduled for tonight in the high school auditorium. Whether the majority of parents also would demand Duffy's re-election could not be learned.

Neville Truce Called To Arbitrate Strike

At Neville Island the students agreed to return to their classes only after members of the School Board had promised to "arbitrate" the controversy with them.

No official indication of the probable outcome of the negotiations was available, but student leaders were confident that the board would accede to their demands and re-elect the three teachers whose impending dismissal caused the strike.

HEPBURN READY TO QUIT MEXICO

MERIDA, Yucatan, May 2.—(AP.)—Katharine Hepburn, awaiting a Mexican divorce from Ludlow Smith, of New York, already is talking about a new movie upon which she may start work next fall.

The red-haired star disclosed that the picture will deal with the life of Joan of Arc. She said details had not been arranged, but that the director will be the one "I consider best."

Miss Hepburn hoped to leave Merida by plane for Havana today, remaing there until May 9, when she will sail for New York.

No difficulty was anticipated, she said, in obtaining a divorce decree. She intimated that she and her businessman husband had agreed to terms, through a local lawer. The Merida court proceedings were kept secret.

BEAUTY WEEPS IN DIVORCE SUIT

PAWHUSKA, Okla., May 2.—(AP.)—A tearful former beauty queen fought back with indignant denials yesterday when she was asked in the divorce suit of Thomas Gilcrease, Tulsa oil millionaire, whether she had been unfaithful.

The allegations of her estranged husband were "all so ridiculous," Mrs. Norma Smallwood Gilcrease testified.

Charlton Genet, of Tulsa, with whom she had been linked repeatedly in testimony of plaintiff's witnesses, "was no more my friend than his mother and father," the 1926 "Miss America" declared.

The tears came when she told of learning last fall that she had been accused of immoral conduct in an amended divorce petition filed by her husband.

German Spy Plot Linked to French Officer's Arrest

PARIS, May 2.—(AP.)—Police announced today that a huge "German spy organization" had been uncovered with the arrest of an agent in Paris and that warrants had been issued for other members of the group.

Secret service agents were said to be searching for the spies, but even the name of the agent arrested here was not made public.

The organization was uncovered, authorities said, as the result of an investigation of charges against a French army officer, Capt. Froge, who was taken into custody in connection with the mysterious disappearance of plans for the defense of the city of Belfort.

Authorities declared the spy organization is as large if not larger than that for which Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gordon Switz, of New York and New Jersey, and 13 other persons now are in prison.

Capt. Froge, who had been under investigation for a long time, was just about to be cleared of all charges, police said, when the secret service "caught an accomplice in the act" of espionage.

The prisoner arrested in Paris was described as "an officer of a foreign power."

In the charges against Froge figure counter-spies, tipsters, French secret agents and decoy letters.

The captain was originally trapped, police said, through letters sent him by tipsters, one of whom used a name of a former woman acquaintance.

One of the tipsters, subsequently charged with forgery, was identified by police as a German agent.

Mine Parley Hears Committee Reports

Committee reports were to be received today at the second session of the ninth biennial convention of District No. 5, United Mine Workers of America, in Moose Temple.

Speakers yesterday were Councilmen John J. Kane, Charles Anderson and Thomas Gallagher, Charles Miller, vice president of the Central Labor Union; P. T. Fagan, district president; the Rev. J. J. Hughes, of Chicora, Pa., and Philip Murray, international vice president.

MAYO DOUBTS HUMANS CAN CHEAT DEATH

Second Life of Dog No Help for Man, Surgeon Believes

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 2.—(AP.)—While the dog brought back from death at Berkeley, Cal., ate a meal of milk-soaked dog biscuits, Dr. Charles Mayo, noted Rochester (Minn.) surgeon, said here he believed revivification of humans never would be possible. Dr. Mayo said:

"We know a lot about reviving life in the lower brain cells, those that govern organs in animals. We know that they can be dead and revived under certain conditions; but the cerebrum, or that part which gives the human a mental side, has something in its composition that defies revival after a few minutes.

"It is my belief that science will never find a way to revive a dead mind."

BERKELEY, Cal., May 2.—(AP.)—A dog biscuit soaked in milk was fed today to "Thirteen" and the canine subject of revivication experiments apparently was able to see the food as he ate it, Dr. Robert E. Cornish, research biologist, declared.

Meanwhile, Dr. Cornish said he had received no notice to vacate the laboratory placed at his disposal on the campus here by the University of California authorities. The building was condemned two years ago.

The biscuit was fed to the mongrel terrier to vary its diet, which has been liver, milk and oatmeal gruel. The dog ate the biscuit quickly.

Dr. Roderic Krider, assistant to Dr. Cornish, said the animal's sight apparently was becoming stronger.

If the two research workers are required to vacate the old anatomy building, Dr. Cornish said he would attempt to find another locality to carry on his experiments to restore life completely. He said he was carrying on the work with his own funds.

STUDENT HELD IN FATAL FIGHT

Fisticuffs with a Washington and Jefferson College student, police reported, had ended fatally today for Thomas W. Smith, Jr., 35, bond salesman, of 711 St. James street.

Smith died yesterday in a hospital at Washington, Pa., from a fractured skull suffered a week ago when he was ejected from the George Washington Hotel there, according to police.

Charles Goldner, 19, of Warren, O., a W. & J. student, is under bond on a manslaughter charge pending a coroner's inquest. Goldner is employed as night elevator operator at the hotel.

Police Chief Joseph E. Berderber, of Washington, who filed the charge against the student, reported that Goldner knocked Smith down in a fight after the latter had been ejected from the hotel by John E. Lindsay, manager.

VOLLEY FIRED IN CAR CHASE

Five shots were fired by radio police during a chase in Lawrenceville early today after two men fleeing in an automobile, allegedly stolen. They halted when one of the police fired a shot through the automobile over the head of the driver.

At Penn Avenue Police Station the two said they were Stanley Chelkowski, 21, of 3505 Leach street, and Frank Donia, 21, of 3343 Spring way.

The chase started when Patrolmen Joseph Kaminski and Joseph Matthews espied the car, reported stolen from C. Staubt, of 218 Taylor street.

As the policemen drew to a stop beside the car at Thirty-second street and Liberty avenue, it sped away, the officers pursuing, shooting at the tires.

Turning into Thirty-sixth street the car hit one driven by Joseph People, of 3826 Liberty avenue, but did not stop. The chase ended in Butler street.

Barge Captain Quizzed In Collings Slaying

International News Service.

MINEOLA, N. YY., May 2.—Police today surrounded with an auro of mystery new clues allegedly furnished in the Benjamin F. Collings murder case by a former barge captain whose craft was anchored close to the death yacht on the night of the slaying three years ago.

Police were emphatic in denying that the bargemaster, who is Georoge Hutley, 53, unemployed, is a suspect. They believe, however, he knows more about the murder than he has thus far disclosed.

In an effort to make him talk they summoned Mrs. Lillian Collings, the slain man's widow, from her home in Stamford, Conn. Mrs. Collings remained closeted for more than an hour with Hutley in a room in the Garden City Hotel. What she learned the police would not disclose.

No motive has ever been found for the murder. Mrs. Collings was not molested by either of the men who knocked her husband unconscious and then threw him overboard to drown. There was no robbery and so far as is known the yachtsman had no enemies.

Stella Mayhew Dies, Began Career Here

NEW YORK, May 2.—(AP.)—Stella Mayhew, famed stage star of a quarter century ago, died today in French Hospital of septicemia, which followed a cut ankle. She fell down a flight of subway stairs a week ago.

She was 59 years old. Recently she told friends she had but four cents left of the once sizable fortune she had earned on the stage.

Miss Mayhew made her first appearance on the stage in the early eighties when she was understudying a part in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" at Pittsburgh. Her greatest fame came as a vaudeville headliner shortly after the turn of the century. She made a comeback in 1928 in the show "Hit the Deck."

She was the wife of the comedian Billie Taylor for 18 years. After their divorce they continued to be good friends.

HERRON SWING TO SCHNADER SPEEDS UP G. O. P. RACE

MARTIN UNDER FIRE OF RIVAL CANDIDATES

By MARK SHIELDS

Two developments in Republican ranks today spurred interest in a primary election campaign which has been sadly deficient in attracting the attention of voters to statewide candidates.

Former Mayor John S. Herron declared his support for Attorney General William A. Schnader, candidate for the gubernatorial nomination.

Former Congressman Thomas W. Phillips, another gubernatorial candidate, called upon State Chairman Edward Martin to resign his party post, asserting Martin had become involved in factional politics in the primary. While Phillips mentioned no names, it was plain he meant that Martin evidently was throwing his influence to Schnader.

The adherence of Herron to the Schnader camp had been expected for days. It followed a conference with Schnader at Herron's home when the Attorney General was here last week, and involved discussion with some of Herron's followers among ward chairmen and leaders of a section of the regular organization.

COYNE FOR SCHNADER

Through Herron the Schnader management here acquires ward representatives through whom some push should be given his campaign. Until the allegiance of Herron was determined, the only organization strength in the Schnader campaign was Senator James J. Coyne, whom many of the Schnader supporters insisted should be kept in the background.

Herron is presumed to be looking ahead to a campaign for County Commissioner in 1935, and will expect support from the state government through patronage, should Schnader be nominated and elected. The former Mayor today said, however, that patronage had not been discussed with the Attorney General.

Several ward leaders have remained loyal to Herron in defeat, and will go along with him in the Schnader campaign. Herron noted the disruption which has occurred in the organization when he observed that Schnader was the candidate not only best fitted for the governorship, but the logical man behind whom harmony might be secured.

HERRON'S STATEMENT

In his statement he said:

"As the time approaches for the primary, and as I have been importuned by the friends of the various candidates to give them whatever support I may possess, it becomes necessary for me to make a decision.

"I have nothing but the kindliest feeling toward the contending candidates and will support to the best of my ability the Republican nominee in the November election.

"I am convinced Attorney General Schnader possesses the necessary qualifications to render efficient service to the state and to harmonize the factions within the Republican party. Mr. Schnader's training as the Attorney General during the terms of Gov. Fisher and Gov. Pinchot convinces me that he puts service above factional politics. Therefore I have decided to support him.

"As one who is particularly grateful to the Republicans of Allegheny County I trust this election can be settled without prejudice or rancor."

PLEADS FOR HARMONY

Schnader himself, backed by the Grundy-Vare-Mellon alliance, and Pinchot leaders in some counties other than Allegheny, has been pleading for harmony in a tour of the state.

Phillips, in demanding the resignation of Martin, charged the state chairman with trying to select a list of candidates for the party to support in November. He sharply reminded the chairman that this was no part of his function, and that he should confine his activities to leading the fight at a general election and keep out of the primary. He said:

"Before the date set for filing petitions I suggested that the Republican State Committee and its chairman adopt a policy of hands off. Your reply in effect was that a list of candidates would be selected for the Republican voters.

"Since you had the termerity to suggest that I delay in filing my petition, I feel at liberty to suggest that you, for the obvious good of the Republican party, resign immediately as chairman. That would relieve you of the charge now being widely circulated that you are using your party office to try to bring about the nomination of certain candidates."

ASSAILS MARTIN

Phillips' statement was in reply to a questionnaire from Martin, asking all candidates if they would support the party nominee. The Butler man said Martin was "presumptuous," but added that he would support the candidate chosen by Republican voters.

This was the second sharp rejoinder Martin has received, the other being from Charles J. Margiotti, who said that Martin, along with the Mellon-Vare-Grundy interests, had perfected a slate for the primary, and thus disqualified himself to interrogate other candidates.

For some time it was believed that Martin favored Gen. Edward C. Shannon, also a gubernatorial candidate, but recent indications are that he has stuck with the triumvirate in control of the State Committee to back Schnader.

The Shannon tour in this end of the state yesterday netted the Lieutenant Governor the personal indorsement of Lawrence County Chairman George T. Weingartner and Coroner W. J. McGregor.

Weingartner's declaration, he said, did not obligate other members of the Lawrence County committee.

SHANNON'S CAMPAIGN

An audience of more than 200 gave Shannon a good reception in Moose Hall, McKeesport. A smaller but enthusiastic audience greeted him at Wilkinsburg Junior High school, Wilkinsburg, where McGregor appeared. Shannon also addressed the Wilkinsburg League of Republican Women.

He told his listeners:

"I have no money bags around my neck.

"Anything that's good for the whole people, that's what I'm for."

He dwelt on reduction in taxes and the necessity of continuing relief through some works program. Earlier he issued a statement condemning "coddling" of hard-boiled criminals in state prisons.

The General had some difficulty in his evening tour when his car ran out of gas on the Boulevard of the Allies. Passers-by might have been edified had they recognized in the three men pushing the stalled auto the Lieutenant Governor of the state, the County Controller, Robert G. Woodside, and County Treasurer Robert S. Cain.

IN MARTIN'S HOME

Shannon made a brief curbstone address in Ellwood City and received friends in Beaver and New Castle. Today he invades Martin's territory, going into Washington, Greene and Fayette counties.

David E. Kaufman, of Towanda, candidate for Lieutenant Governor on the Republican ticket, today was indorsed by Arthur M. Scully, former president of the Allegheny County Bar Association. He said:

"Mr. Kaufman's ability as a lawyer and his wide experience in the diplomatic service of the United States, and his intensive knowledge of the social, economic and financial problems with which the people of this commonwealth are now faced eminently fit him for the office of Lieutenant Governor."

PINCHOT OUSTS AIDE LEVYING ON EMPLOYES

HARRISBURG, May 2.—(AP.)—Gov. Gifford Pinchot has ousted T. Duncan Just as compensation referee and chairman of his campaign committee in Montgomery County on a charge of calling on state employes to contribute to Pinchot's senatorial campaign. The Governor said:

"My orders repeatedly issued and repeatedly made public, are that state employes shall not be assessed, that they shall be treated exactly like the general public, with full liberty to contribute or not to contribute as they please."

Saying he realized this might mean the disorganization of his campaign in Montgomery County, the Governor said he could not let that interfere with his action in view of "clear disobedience of my orders.

Turning next to his foe for the Republican nomination, Senator David A. Reed, the Governor in an address charged:

"If Reed and his friends had succeeded in their effort to block federal relief, hundreds of thousands of Pennsylvanians would have starved.

"Reed's votes against federal aid were, I think, the most heartless votes of which Reed was ever guilty, and that is saying a mouthful."

TWO INDORSED FOR ASSEMBLY

M. A. Marcus has been indorsed by the Hill District Taxpayers' League as a candidate for the General Assembly from the First Legislative District.

Harold W. Young, of Castle Shannon, announces he has been indorsed by the Pittsburgh Central Labor Union as candidate from the Twelfth Legislative District. He pledges support for lower taxes on home, a city manager referendum and other liberal programs.

Speaking before the Unemployed Fourth Ward Citizens' League in Holmes School, Herman Eberharter, Democratic candidate for the Legislature in the Fourth and Fifth wards, urged limitation of salaries of large corporation executives.

Shannon Indorsed By Veterans' Group

Three political candidates have been indorsed by Fort Pitt Garrison No. 91, of the Army and Navy Union. They are Lieut. Gov. Edward C. Shannon, for Governor; Edmund F. Erk, for Congress in the Thirtieth District, and James R. George, candidate for Legislature in the Seventh District.

75 Days of Prayer For Son Brings Body to Shore

NEW YORK, May 2.—(AP.)—At daybreak and at sunset for the last 75 days a woman has knelt on the sand at the foot of New York avenue in Long Beach and prayed.

She was praying for the return of the body of her 8-year-old son, who fell through the ice last February and was carried out into the bay, while she was rescuing his playmate.

Last night, at 7 o'clock, his body was washed ashore almost at her feet.

HUMES REPLIES TO EARLE

Major E. Lowry Humes, instrumental in writing the Pennsylvania Milk Control act, today charged that George H. Earle, candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, is "an enemy of the dairy farmers of Pennsylvania."

Earle recently criticized the act and denounced Humes, claiming the measure was discriminatory against Pennsylvanians. Humes, who is backing Judge Charles D. Copeland of Westmoreland for the governorship, insisted that the measure had been in the interests of the dairy farmer. He said:

"Every provision we sought was for the purpose of strengthening the act and the chain store group tried to weaken it by limiting the power of the milk control board created by it to control chain store prices. The statements by Earle are absolutely untrue and establish him as unfit for the governorship. They are notice to the small business men and dairymen of Pennsylvania that the nomination of Judge Copeland for governor and Roland S. Morris for the U. S. Senate is necessary to their future security."

M'NAIR VETOES PAY RAISE

Mayor McNair today vetoed an ordinance that would have raised the pay of city painters from $7 to $9.60 a day and of foremen from $8 to $10.60. In his veto message he said:

"In view of the fact that there are many painters out of work that would be glad to work for $7 a day and in view of the fact that many painters are working for less, it seems to me it is unsound economics for the city government to arbitrarily fixe a higher rate of wages than is now fixed by the law of supply and demand."

EYNON ASSAILS LIQUOR STORES

Expressing dissatisfaction with the working of the State Liquor Store Act, Benjamin G. Eynon, of Scranton, candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, in a radio speech last night said he objected to the government being in business, and added that the expected revenue from liquor through state sales had been far below expectations. The various funds to be replenished from this source were running dry, he said.

Eynon said:

"I am opposed to the government being in business. It will be my purpose to study the various methods of hard liquor control devised for use in other jurisdictions in the light of experience in this state up to that time to recommend to the next regular session of the Legislature and urge the adoption of such plan as appears best adapted to give the proper degree of control over and at the same time the greatest revenue from the traffic in intoxicating beverages."

ELLENBOGEN POST SECURE

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(AP.)—A House Elections Committee reported it had found Representative Ellenbogen (Dem.), of Pennsylvania, was qualified, so far as concerns citizenship, to be a member of the House of Representatives.

The committee's report yesterday was in reply to a memorial filed by former Representative Estep (Republican), of Pennsylvania, challenging Ellenbogen's citizenship qualifications and his right to his congressional seat.

When Ellenbogen was elected to Congress in 1932, he had been a citizen only six years and five months. Citizenship for seven years is required by law for membership in the House.

However, the committee said that Congress already had ruled election itself does not constitute membership in the House and that as Ellenbogen was not sworn in as a member until January, 1934, he was entitled to take his seat.

Urges Revision of State Constitution

Revision of the State Constitution to include provision for recall of incompetent public officials is advocated by Tom Mooney, candidate for Legislature in the Sixth District. Pointing to the fact that the Mayor and Council can't reduce their salaries, although all other incomes are lowered, Mooney advocates a program to do away with "ox-cart" legislation. He particularly attacks duplications in governmental agencies.

RIVALS SCORED BONNIWELL

Judge Eugene C. Bonniwell, of Philadelphia, candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, today campaigned through Westmoreland and Fayette counties, the final meeting of the day being scheduled at Firemen's Hall, Greensburg.

In Sharon last night Bonniwell attacked both George H. Earle, of Philadelphia, and Judge Charles D. Copeland, of Westmoreland County, rival candidates, contending that both were put forward by a small group of would-be bosses. He charged that Joseph F. Guffey, a candidate for the senatorial nomination, and chief Earle backer, was attempting to nullify the direct primary. He referred to the slating of Earle by the Democratic State Committee, but charged that the Copeland candidacy also had been inaugurated by another group attempting to act as a closed corporation.

Earle, Bonniwell said, was really a Republican.

Bonniwell declared complete suport for the Roosevelt policies and charged that Guffey and State Chairman Van Dyke were incompetently leading Democratic sentiment in Pennsylvania. He said he had been a liberal, in line with party principles, when many present leaders dropped by the wayside. He declared for total repeal of blue laws, a racing bill on the Maryland plan, and elimination of state liquor stores with a return to the Brooks high license system.

FIGHT GIVEN UP BY LAMBERTON

PHILADELPHIA, May 2.—(AP.)—Judge Robert E. Lamberton, of Common Pleas Court, today announced his withdrawal as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor.

Judge Lamberton did not indicate in his announcement who he favored for the nomination. Shortly after his withdrawal became known, George W. Coles, former United States attorney, who would have been Lamberton's campaign manager, issued a statement asking the Judge's followers to support Attorney General William A. Schnader.

Judge Lamberton's statement says that since he filed his nomination petition "crystalization of sentiment has been definitely in favor of another candidate."

Lawrence to Speak In Guffey Campaign

David L. Lawrence, Democratic county chairman, and Carl D. Smith will speak in behalf of the candidacy of Joseph F. Guffey for United States Senator and George H. Earle for Governor at a meeting tonight in Krivan Hall, Springdale. William B. Rodgers, candidate for State Senator in the Fortieth Senatorial District, also will speak.

McNair for Moritz In Congress Race

Mayor McNair today announced his endosement of Theodore L. Moritz, his secretary, as candidate for Congress from the 32nd district. The Mayor expressed opposition to Dr. Marion McKay, Pittsburgh professor, on grounds Dr. McKay supported a state income tax.

McNair to Address Thiel Graduates

Mayor William N. McNair will speak at commencement exercises at Thiel College, Greenville, Pa., June 6, it was announced by college officials today.

The college's new president, Dr. Earl S. Rudisell, of York, will be inducted into office on commencement day.

STATES THROW 'COLD WATER' ON NUDISTS

CHICAGO, May 2.—(AP.)—Nudists are going to find the approaching warm weather season anything but balmy so far as law enforcing authorities of the states are concerned, a survey today indicated.

From one end of the country to another, officers are preparing to ban the "go native" cultists though no state has specifically forbidden their practices.

Two commonwealths—Kentucky and Rhode Island—acted recently to restrict the congregation of nudists but in most communities reliance is placed on ancient indecent exposure laws or ordinances to bar spread of the doctrine. They grace the statutes books of virtually every state and city.

KENTUCKY ERS

Kentucky lawmakers nearly thwarted themselves in legislating on nudism. They passed a bill making it unlawful to establish a nudist colony without building a 20-foot wall around it. When the bill was enrolled, a clerk left off the first syllable of the word "unlawful." Gov. Ruby Laffoon signed it without observing the omission. However, the law still requires a special tax, reports on membership and other restrictive provisions. Recent reports, nevertheless said, a colony might be founded near Louisville.

The Rhode Island General Assembly passed an anti-nudist bill, but Gov. Theodore F. Green vetoed it because of its phraseology. The bill was corrected in the Senate, but died in a House Committee.

COLORADO PUTS UP BAN

Some Colorado nudists tried to incorporate under state law, but were refused a certificate when the Attorney General ruled ordinances forbidding indecent exposure probably would be violated.

Fred C. Ring, proprietor of a Michigan nudist colony, who was convicted of indecent exposure last year, has an appeal pending before the Michigan Supreme Court, but the rumpus caused by a sheriff's raid on his camp fathered no legislation last winter. However, several City Councils and county sheriffs have refused their sanction on proposals for other nudist colonies.

Two Iowa cities recently barred a motion picture showing nudists at play.

PROTEST PEEPERS

And in the southland, St. Petersburg, Fla., stopped a blimp from carrying passengers above a city-owned solarium, half of which was used by nude sun bathers who protested the blimp's customers peeping.

Officials in two Oregon counties have frowned on prospective colonies, threatening prosecution on charges of indecent exposure. However, one is scheduled to open next June.

Another colony was established at Wisconsin Dells last week. Others are reported planned in that state, but official action may bar them.

MORE 'COLD WATER'

A Fort Wayne (Ind.) minister, Rev. J. W. Montgomery, district superintendent of the Nazarene Church, told the Fort Wayne Ministerial Association there are six nudist camps in Northern Indiana. He says he will father a bill prohibiting them when the next Legislature meets.

And finally, to the dismay of the nudists, medical authorities have joined in the argument to some extent, with statements that too much sunshine can be as harmful, from a health standpoint, as too little.

Jailer Mourning Lack of 'Hands' In Hoosegow

TOLLAND, Conn., May 2.—(AP.)—Jailer A. Esten Clough reads about Dillinger, overcrowded jails, looks at the four prisoners in the Tolland County jail, notes the season and moans about justice.

For Jailer Clough operates not only the jail but the jail-farm. Prisoners plough and harrow, sow and cultivate, raising most of the vegetables for the jail table. It's almost planting time and he has only four men—some beans to go to work.

Next fall, he muses, when it's time to eat, there'll be more candidates.

NEW SHIPPING SYSTEM URGED

A soundly co-ordinated transportation system was urged by John M. Fitzgerald, vice chairman of the Eastern Railroad Presidents' Conference at a meeting of the Credo Club in the Chamber of Commerce. He said in part:

"Each unit should do the job best in the field or area where it can best serve. Shippers demand some form of co-ordination, but not to the elimination of any physical properties.

"Under present regulations, whereby rate schedules must be the subject of long and laborious hearings before the Interstate Commerce Commission, the railroads are operated unprofitably in short haul areas, while trucks are subject to no control."

Mr. Fitzgerald said he favors use of trucks in short haul areas, but the continued use of the railroads for long hauls. Short hauls for railroads, forced on them by the Interstate Commerce Commission, are money-losing schemes, he concluded.

PHONE RULING PONDERED

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(AP.)—A big question in legal circles here today was how far the Supreme Court decision upholding reduced telephone charges for Chicago would affect other public utility rates.

The court ordered a refund of from $17,000,000 to $20,000,000 to Chicago subscribers on the ground they had been overcharged since 1923, when the lower rates were originally made effective.

Whether the decision would force a new procedure by corporations in presenting various elements entering into rate making received close study by the best lawyers.

The court carefully analyzed the total revenues of the Chicago company by years and its actual expenditures to keep the plant in proper condition and found too great allowance had been made under the Interstate Commerce Commission method for depreciation and depreciation reserve.

In the minds of some attorneys the decision will be epoch-making.

Relief Order Thefts Charged to Negro

Albert Davis, 31, a Negro, of 326 Sixth avenue, Homestead, was turned over to federal officials after Homestead police arrested him for stealing letters containing relief orders from private mail boxes. Police said they had received complaints of the thefts over a three-week period. Davis, they said, sold the orders at less than they were worth.

RIVER CONGRESS ATTACKS CODE RATE FIXING

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—NRA codes suffered an assault from a fresh quarter when the National Rivers and Harbors Congress unanimously condemned rate and price fixing provisions in the proposed shipping code.

Resolutions adopted yesterday at closing sessions of the Congress struck at "rate fixing of regulation of port-to-port rates of water carriers on the Great Lakes inland waterways, or in coastal inter-coastal and foreign trade by means of any shipping code."

The Congress went on record as "deprecating and condemning" code provisions which require that commodities may only be sold on a delivered price which must include rail transportation cost from the point of production or an arbitrary basing point to the destination.

The resolutions included an appeal to President Roosevelt to order such provisions abrogated immediately.

Undeterred by a spirited plea from Senator Huey Long, of Louisiana, the Congress urged construction of the St. Lawrence seaway under any treaty which the President and Congress approve.

This is the first time in 60 years that a woman has been nominated for director of the Chamber. The election is to be held May 10.

Lutherans Frown On Church Music

HARRISBURG, May 2.—(AP.)—The Norristown conference of Lutheran churchmen believes instrumental music and pageants would put "God in the background" of church services.

That was the reply of delegates to the suggestion of the Rev. A. G. H. Getz, of Spring City, for enlivening of evening services.

U.S. Stepping Out In Larger Shoes, Store Head Finds

HERBERT G. HANAN

People no longer "look down on big feet as being ugly" and the "tendency in America is to wear larger shoes," in the opinion of Herbert G. Hanan, 22-year-old president of Hanan & Son, Inc., international shoe firm.

In Pittsburgh today to attend to the opening of new and modern quarters for the Pittsburgh store at 519 Wood street, one of 22 in the United States and Europe, Hanan said:

"In the gay nineties people wore dainty and small shoes that crowded their feet. Today they are demanding larger shoes and comfort.

"Though large feet are not exactly beautiful, they are better looking and not cramped and dwarfed in appearance when shoes fit."

Commenting on business conditions, the young president, who was forced to leave his classes at Harvard due to the sudden deaths of his father last July and his older brother last November, declared:

"Our New York and Chicago stores are showing a 50 per cent increase in business. We have also noticed an encouraging gain in Pittsburgh and with the 'heavy' industries improving business should be very good."

In taking charge of the huge shoe enterprise, young Hanan explained that he had to put aside one of his ambitions—the study of economics at Harvard followed by a course in business administration. He said:

"I had hoped to get the theories on business and then compare notes with my practical-minded brother. But if necessary I suppose you can get along without the college classes."

Homestead Asks Water Well Bids

Homestead Council last night voted to re-advertise for bids for drilling wells to furnish the borough with water. Several months ago the award was given the Sprague-Henwood Company, but several test wells revealed, the company reported, that there was a scarcity of water, and that drilling would be unwise. Council last night took the stand that the wells had not been drilled deep enough.

Homestead School Levy Remains Same

Members of the Homestead Taxpayers League last night attended a meeting of the Homestead School Board, when the latter body set the tax rate for next year at 19 mills, the same as last year. S. C. Boot, president of the board, presided, and answered questions of the visitors regarding the board's activities.

Aged Snowballer Sent Greeting by British King

LONDON, May 2.—(AP.)—John Daborn, 84, who says he once hurled snowballs at the present King of England, has received congratulations from His Majesty upon his and Mrs. Daborn's sixtieth anniversary.

Daborn recalled that many years ago the King, then the Duke of York, was horseback riding through Cobham with friends. He related:

"A friend and I saw them riding. We did not know who they were, but we pelted them for all we were worth with snowballs from the old oak tree to the brewery—about a quarter of a mile.

"Next day a policeman and a royal outrider came to see us. 'You'll cop it,' the policeman said. 'You've been snowballing the Duke of York.' We learned, though, that the Duke was not in the least annoyed, and nothing happened."

MRS. ROOSEVELT FOOLS WEIGHT GUESSER

By MILDRED GILMAN
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—Daniel Krassner, circus weight-guesser, rarely guesses wrong, but he missed by 10 pounds when Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt stood before his swinging chair to be weighed last night.

The First Lady was visiting the "street fair" of the National Women's Press Club at the National Press Club building.

She smiled as Daniel blushed and said:

"This little lady weighs—a—she weighs—a—155 pounds."

The scales showed 145 pounds, and Daniel handed her a cane, his forfeit for guessing wrong. He said ruefully:

"I don't often guess wrong. I guessed Jack Dempsey right and Gov. Pinchot and D. W. Griffith. Men are easier than women."

JUDGES SPELLING BEE

Mrs. Roosevelt, after inspecting the various booths and buying a chance on a French doll, acted as a judge of the lively spelling bee between 10 newspaper women and 10 official women.

Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, wife of Representative Bacon, of New York, got a big hand when she spelled "valetudinarian" correctly. Mrs. Harry Baxter, daughter of Secretary of War Dern, went down to defeat on "caricature."

DICTIONARY IN HAND

Mrs. Roosevelt, sitting on the stage beside the spellers, checked their spelling with a dictionary.

Senator Bennett Champ Clark, of Missouri, was one of three official "pronouncers" who read off the words. His wife was one of the winning team of official women who spelled down the newspaper girls. Representative Florence Kahn, Mrs. Robert Lincoln O'Brien, wife of the chairman of the Tariff Commission, and Mrs. Henry Suydam were the other three official winners.

MELLON'S TAX SUIT APPEALED

PHILADELPHIA, May 2.—(AP.)—A citizen's right to sue in behalf of the federal government to collect income taxes—obtaining half of any award as informer—is being tested in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

The question was brought before the court by Albert R. Knight, of Lansdowne, who asks reinstatement of his suit to force William L. Mellon, nephew of Andrew W. Mellon, and five business associates to pay $3,629,196 in alleged delinquent income taxes.

Knight started the suit in Federal Court in Pittsburgh last year, but Judge R. M. Gibson upheld the defense attorney's contention that the Lansdowne man had no legal right to act in such a capacity.

Knight charges that Mellon and other officials of the Gulf Oil Corporation of Pennsylvania, H. L. Stone, Gale R. Nutty, F. A. Leovy, George S. Davidson and W. H. Guthrie, defrauded the government of income taxes between 1926 and 1932 by failing to report receipts of stock from the Oil Corporation and by making false claims to payment of interest on debts of that company.

Stumbling Actress Loses Damage Suit

LOS ANGELES, May 2.—(AP.)—A defense motion for non-suit was granted in Superior Court yesterday and Hazel Flint, movie and stage actress, lost her $5,540 damage action against RKO-Pathe Studios Corporation, Ltd., for ankle injuries she told of receiving by stumbling into a weed-covered ditch on the studio lot.

Miss Flint contended the studio was negligent in allowing weeds to obscure the ditch.

Ex-Husband Wins Renewal of Case For Big Redress

MRS. DOROTHY F. CLARK

CHICAGO, May 2.—(AP.)—Is $500 a month for a lifetime the proper redress for an alleged wronged husband?

A jury may decide, after all, the question that Judge John R. Caverly threw out of court in 1932 as too "corrupt, illegal and immoral" a transaction for judicial hearing.

The Appellate Court disagreed today with Judge Caverly's decision and held that James C. Clark, of Mt. Kisco, N. Y., was entitled to a hearing of his claim that Norman W. Harris, son of the chairman of the Harris Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago, besmirched the Clark home, then settled an annuity on Clark only to abandon payments after six months.

Clark sued for $300,000, alleged breach of contract.

Judge Caverly in listening to the preliminaries, dismissed the case without letting Clark file 10 additional counts in which he accused the young bank officer of usurping his place in the Clark home, when he was away on business trips.

'MOTHERS' DAY' STAMP SUPPLY ARRIVES HERE

The Pittsburgh postoffice has received its first supply of the new purple three-cent Mothers' Day commemorative stamps and they will go on sale tomorrow morning at the regular stamp windows.

The stamp is unusually large—the same size as the special delivery stamp now in use.

Its principal design is a reproduction of the famous painting by James Abbott McNeil Whistler entitled "Portrait of My Mother," and bears the inscription "In Memory and in Honor of All Mothers of America."

The first print order at the Bureau of Printing and Engraving at Washington is 200,000,000.

The stamp is being released at Washington for the first time today and it is estimated that "first day cover" collectors to the number of 100,000 have taken advantage of this opportunity.

The Mothers' Day stamp goes on general sale at all postoffices, including Pittsburgh, tomorrow.

It is anticipated that it will have a tremendously big sale for correspondence on Mothers' Day—Sunday, May 13.

HARTJE TRUST IN DISPUTE

Argument on quuestions as to whether $6,000 a year shall be paid partly out of the principal of a trust fund of $103,000 set up in 1910 by Augustus Hartje, millionaire paper manufacturer, for the benefit of Mrs. Mary Scott Hartje, was heard yesterday before Judge H. Walton Mitchell, Orphans Court.

On account of the money having been invested largely in pool mortgages, the fund is not now earning the amount it was stipulated should be paid to Mrs. Hartje yearly, after she successfully contested her husband's action for divorce. Later she divorced him and is living in Atlantic City, her name now being Mary Scott Howard.

Hartje died in 1922, and a will contest was started, resulting in the Hartje children, John Scott Hartje and Mary Louise Rambach, and their uncle Edward G. Hartje, agreeing to make up any difference in the yearly income, should that occur.

There is now a dispute on as to just what should be charged against the fund.

"Why are Old Golds so easy on the throat...so cool and biteless?"

[OLD GOLD SMOKER SINCE 1928]

Dear Mr. Menjou:—

As you know, there are many interesting arguments in the cigarette advertisements. But, after all, the proof of a cigarette, like a pudding, is in how it tastes.

We could tell you that Old Gold tobacco is picked from the heart of the stalk (and we did tell you that years ago). We could tell you that it's picked sun-ripened . . . and then aged to mellow perfection. So rich in natural flavor it needs no artificial flavoring.

But are WORDS important, when Old Gold gives you everything you like in a cigarette, including exceptional throat-ease?

Sincerely,
P. LORILLARD COMPANY, INC.
ESTABLISHED 1760

P. S.—The net of it, Mr. Menjou, is simply this: No better tobacco grows than is used in Old Gold. And it's pure . . . (No artificial flavoring).

WEIRD MEDLEY OF 'BOOPS' IN KANE TRIAL

NEW YORK, May 2.—(AP)—A medley of strange, unintelligible sounds came from the courtroom where Helen Kane's big boop-boop-a-doop trial is being heard.

There was a "boop" or two, then a "doo-doo-doo," finally "wha-da-da-da!"

Everybody—especially the court stenographer—was confused. The stenographer's knowledge of spelling did not transcend the dictionary.

The assortment of noises came yesterday during the attempts of the defense to show that the art of "booping" was not original with Helen Kane—that the responsibility rested with others who had preceded her on the stage.

SUES FOR $250,000

Miss Kane is seeking $250,000 damages from Max Fleischer, cartoonist; the Fleischer studios and the Paramount-Publix Corporation on the ground that the Betty Boop screen cartoons constitute larceny on her mannerisms and song technique.

Testifying for the defense, Lou Bolton, theatrical manager, said that one of his stage proteges, Esther Jones, a Negro woman, had interpolated songs with syllables similar to Miss Kane's as long ago as 1925.

In April, 1928, Bolton continued, Miss Kane and her manager attended a performance of Miss Jones—Whose stage name was Baby Esther—in a New York night club.

Just a few weeks later, he testified, Miss Kane began to "boop" at a theater here.

HISTORY OF 'BOOPING'

Then followed an exhaustive retracing of the history of "boop-boop-a-doopery." Bolton said:

"Baby Esther made funny expressions and interpolated meaningless sounds at the end of each bar of music in her songs."

Louis Phillips, a defense attorney asked:

"What sounds did she interpolate?"

Bolton recited:

"Boo-boo-boo!"
"What other sounds?"
"Doo-doo-doo!"
"Any others?"
"Yes, wha-da-da-da!"

Bolton was tiring a little, and the court stenographer broke down at this point. He threw up his hands in a gesture of despair and announced he would need aid in spelling the "meaningless" sounds.

Bolton could not give him any aid. Phillips did, however.

Other defense witnesses were Bonnie Poe and Margy Hines, whose voices are used in the sound tracks of the Betty Boop films.

Miss Hines was asked if she knew the meaning of the disputed "boop - boop - a - doop" sounds. She replied:

"Well—I call them 'licks'."

BUCKLE WINS HER $77,000

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, May 2.—A $30 belt buckle, engraved with the initials "J. R. S.," today won for Mrs. Edna B. Sayre a verdict of $77,000, the full amount of insurance she claimed for the mysterious death of her husband, James Russell Sayre.

Almost the entire case, heard by a jury in the Federal District Court here, hinged on the buckle which was the only identifying mark on a body found in the Schuylkill River last July. Mrs. Sayre contended the buckle proved the body was that of her husband, war veteran and broker, who disappeared January a year ago.

The Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, the defendants, claimed the identification of the torso taken from the river was incomplete and also that there was no evidence of accidental or violent death, meriting payment of a double idemnity clause.

The jury's verdict ended a trial which had lasted a week.

'Abductor Flogged, Sentenced to Pen

NORTH BAY, Ontario, May 2.—(INS.)—Ten lashes across the back—four years for kidnaping, four years for robbery, armed. Thus Canadian justice dealt today with Joseph Feeney, 31, Detroit barber and ex-criminal. His Canadian accomplice, Nels Paananen, received two years on each count. Both men were sentenced in connection with the abduction April 13 of Emile Gouroux, North Bay taxi driver.

TEXT OF RALLY SPEECH BY M'LEOD

Following is the speech of Congressman Clarence J. McLeod made at the Nixon Theater today:

The government permitted and sanctioned the use of words "National" and "Federal" as applied to banks.

These banks are under supervision of United States government.

These banks are subject to inspection and examination by government officials.

The government fostered and promoted the practice of requiring banks to purchase listed bonds and retain them as part of their reserves. When these bonds depreciated in value, the government instructed banks, through bank examiners, to carry these bonds at their cost price, regardless of their actual market value.

NO ULTIMATE COST

The government, through its duly elected and appointed officials, urged citizens to cease hoarding and place their savings in banks which they knew were unsafe and unsound.

The government will regain funds advanced to depositors by liquidating frozen bank assets over a period of 10 years on rising markets which are coming with recovery.

A glance at present day stock liquidations will show that the securities of the sound industrial corporations, such as American Telephone and Telegraph, Bethlehem Steel, Chrysler Motors, etc., have recovered remarkably from the low figures of the peak of the depression in 1933.

VALUES INCREASING

The index numbers of wholesale commodity prices have increased from 59.8 in February, 1933, to 73.6 in February, 1934.

It is but reasonable and logical to expect this encouraging upward trend in values to increase as we progress towards recovery.

The total unpaid deposits of the approximately 2,200 closed banks which were member of the Federal Reserve System, including, of course, the closed national banks, is $1,815,000,000.

The government has not been spending money on relief projects fast enough to meet the budget estimates.

In his budget message, the President submitted a list of proposed expenditures for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, totaling $10,569,006,967. This estimate provided for expenditures in excess of income of $7,309,068,211.

4 BILLIONS LESS

Actually, at the present rate of spending, government expenditures in the present fiscal year will total only about $6,464,000,000 on June 30, or fully four billion less than the estimated total.

The government is already engaged in banking on a huge scale.

The RFC is the government's biggest banking enterprise. Since it began operations, February 2, 1932, the RFC has paid out nearly five billion dollars.

In the year prior to the bank holiday, the RFC loaned money to banks which were endeavoring to remain open. Loans of this sort have amounted to approximately $1,500,000,000, of which amount more than 50 per cent has been repaid.

BORROWING POWER

The RFC has already loaned more than $600,000,000,000 on the assets of nearly 2,000 closed banks in an effort to release frozen bank deposits.

To date the RFC has made commitments to subscribe to preferred stock and capital notes in more than 6,000 bonks for a total of nearly one million dollars.

The RFC has capital and borrowing power aggregating almost $5,500,000,000. At the present time the RFC has a surplus borrowing power, above requirements, of about a billion dollars.

Under ordinary methods of liquidation of closed banks, it has been shown by statistics compiled by the Controller of the Currency, and published in his latest annual report, that the losses to depositors average fully a third of their deposits.

FOES' MOVE EXPLINED

Testimony before the Banking and Currency Committee indicated that depositors of banks now in the hands of receivers would sustain an even greater loss, possibly as high as 44 per cent.

This is largely due to the fact that receivers must dispose of assets as quickly as possible in order to expedite payoffs.

Under the discharge rule, the signatures of 145 members on a discharge petition will take a bill away from a committee that refuses to report it and will make possible a vote on such a measure on either the second or fourth Monday of the month.

To forestall a vote on the McLeod bill, the committee reported the bill with a view to letting the measure die on the calendar. The wrong bill was reported and later in the day a report was made on the correct bill. The committee violated the rules of the House, however, by holding a meeting while the House was in session and the Speaker declared the report illegal.

REPORT FILED AT PRAYER

In the meantime, 145 signatures had been affixed to the petition and the bill would have been voted on Monday, April 23, but for the fact that another report was filed immediately after the House convened on that date, during the reading of the prayer.

Signatures have been obtained to another petition to discharge the Rules Committee from further consideration of a resolution providing for an immediate vote on the bill. By this means, we expect to bring the bill up for a vote on May 15.

The hearings before the Banking and Currency Committee on the McLeod bill have never been printed and by this means the strong supporting testimony of witnesses has been kept from the public and Members of Congress.

OPPONENTS FEAR VOTE

Administration letters in the House have themselves admitted that the McLeod bill would pass if allowed to come up for a vote.

On the day after Congressman McLeod and former Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer visited the President in an effort to secure his support of legislation for relief of depositors, the Administration ordered an immediate re-appraisal of assets of closed banks.

As a result, $100,000,000 more will be made available to depositors of closed banks in Detroit alone.

COMPROMISE BILL

Congressman Steagall, chairman of the Banking and Currency Committee, has introduced a compromise measure, offering a limited amount of relief for closed banks.

More than a half million people have expressed their support of the McLeod bill in letters and petitions received by Congressman McLeod.

The strong support being given by citizens throughout the country has helped and in fact made possible the progress made so far and it is up to the voters themselves to convince their Representatives in Congress that they insist upon passage of this legislation as a recovery measure of unparalleled importance to the welfare of the country.

Pay Bank Depositors

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE UNITED STATES CONGRESS:

As an important help toward national recovery, the undersigned urge passage of the bill introduced by Representative McLeod, now before Congress, which provides for paying in full depositors of closed banks which belonged to the Federal Reserve System.

Toward this end we urge that the RFC make loan arrangements with the closed banks.

This procedure would give positive stimulus to business by converting frozen, idle and at present useless bank deposits into immediately available purchasing power.

We urge immediate Congressional action on the bill introduced by Representative McLeod.

CITY RALLIES BEHIND M'LEOD'S PROPOSAL FOR BANK PAYOFF

ernment was obligated to protect the depositors of closed banks, because the Federal Reserve banks were under federal supervision. He added:

"I would like to see a great organization formed in this district to join the support of this most worthy legislation. If the payoff plan passes, it will be of the greatest benefit to all business throughout the country."

Both Kelly and Congressman McLeod paid tribute to Representative Muldowney for his efforts in behalf of the bill, and pointed out that other Allegheny County representatives who have signed the petition to discharge the House Rules Committee are representatives Henry Ellenbogen and Matthew A. Dunn.

Congressman J. Twing Brooks, of Sewickley, is the only one of the Allegheny County delegation who has not signed the petition, but was said he is for the bill.

Other Pennsylvania Congressmen who have not signed the petition are:

Ransley, Beck, Waldron, Stokes, Darrow, Frey, Kinker, Boland, Richardson, McFadden, Rich, Doutrich, Cochran, Walter Haines, Snyder, Faddis, Berlin and Crosby.

Congressman Ransley is a member of the Rules Committee, and is not qualified to sign the petition. He had signed a previous petition discharging the Banking Committee from consideration of the bill.

MORE SIGNERS SEEN

Congressman McLeod told his audience he hoped to obtain signatures for the petition from many of these before Friday of this week in order to bring the measure to a vote May 14.

McLeod asserted there will be no cost to the government if it takes over the closed bank assets and liquidates them over a period of 10 years, as proposed in his bill. He said present liquidation methods are costly; that under them depositors will lose possibly as high as 44 per cent because receivers must dispose of the assets as quickly as possible in order to expedite pay-offs.

Maj. F. Lowry Humes, former United States Attorney here, presided at the meeting. He said that if the audience believed present deposit insurance provided by the government is just, they must believe, too, that the guarantee of deposits in Federal Reserve Banks that are closed also would be just.

Former Gov. John S. Fisher sent a telegram from Washington expressing his regrets that he was unable to attend and the hope that effective results would be obtained.

Council President Robert Garland represented the city in greeting Congressman McLeod.

Besides the address at the mass meeting, Congressman McLeod spoke on the Sun-Telegraph Globe Trotter program at 2:15 p. m. today and speaks again on a nation-wide broadcast from the studios of WCAE at 6:15 p. m.

Bride Ran Away With Stepfather, Beer Man Says

Andrew Campbell, 26, Moon Township beer garden proprietor, testified today in his divorce suit against Vera Campbell, that one year after their elopement to Wellsburg, W. Va., his wife ran away with his stepfather. The wife is 25 and the stepfather 37, testimony disclosed.

Campbell told Judge John P. Egan his wife told him she was in love with the stepfather in whose home they went to live after their marriage, April 14, 1930. Campbell charges desertion. He said his wife was now residing in Ambridge.

SHARP ANSWER TO U. S. URGED IN TOKIO

International News Service.

TOKIO, May 2.—Japanese militarists asked the government today to challenge the attitude of the United States regarding Japan's latest declaration of policy toward China.

Vice Minister of War Yanagawa, according to the newspaper Nichi Nichi, called on Foreign Minister Koki Hirota and requested an explanation of the motive of the United States government in calling Japan's attention to her obligations under the nine-power treaty.

Stirred by receipt of the firm statement from the American state department, Japan is considering issuing a formal reply although Washington and Tokio both had been disposed to consider the affair a "closed incident," the Nichi Nichi declared.

The foreign office is apprehensive lest by ignoring the statement they should receive a serious setback in pursuance of its China policy, Nichi Nichi said.

Washington Warning On Pacts Includes China

WASHINGTON, May 2.—(INS.)—America's belief in the sanctity of treaties and the right of no nation to impose its will where the interests of other powers are concerned, as outlined in the warning delivered to Japan, is intended by this government to be accepted by the rest of the world as a fundamental principle of American foreign policy.

This was made plain today in administrative quarters, where it was said the American declaration to Tokio also contained a message to China and other countries as well.

The particular reference to China was seen as a hint that any effort by that nation to modify American extra-territorial rights must be done only with the assent of this country.

China already has served notice on this government it desires to seek revision of the treaty embodying the so-called extra-territorial rights, which guarantee American justice for American nationals in China.

China considers that some of these extra-territorial rights infringe upon its sovereignty and has sought to have them revoked from time to time.

CANNON FIGHTS CHURCH OUSTER

JACKSON, Miss., May 2.—(AP.)—Bishop James M. Cannon, Jr., is on trial again today—fighting ouster from his churchly office—as friends and foes at the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, mapped battle plans.

The nationally known crusader against liquor, who was acquitted less than a week ago in Washington of charges of conspiracy to violate the corrupt practices act, maintained silence on the effort to remove him from the College of Bishops.

Friends rallied to his support as soon as word spread that the committee of episcopacy had recommended, by a vote of 43 to 28, that he be superannuated.

Saying they would battle with him "to the last ditch," proponents of the retirement move indicated that if the bishop did not voluntarily retire, they would carry the fight to the conference floor and demand a secret ballot on the recommendation.

DR. M'CAULEY DIES IN BEAVER

BEAVER, Pa., May 2.—Dr. E. S. H. McCauley, widely known Pennsylvania physician, died at his home here last night after a long illness.

Dr. McCauley was active in Masonic circles and in crippled children's work. He was a member of the Beaver Presbyterian Church. Funeral arrangements have not been made.

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA

LAWRENCE SHAW, National Director — J. JAMES MOORE, Pittsburgh Wing Commander

Every-Member-Get-a-Member Campaign to Double Roster by End of Week—Activity of Moment for Birdmen.

By J. JAMES MOORE, Pittsburgh Wing Commander

Greetings, Junior Birdmen. With our first contest activity off our hands, and you boys and girls marking time for Sunday's column to see whether you will be one of the lucky Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph wing members to win that dandy vacation trip to Washington on May 25, we have time for a general column today to make some interesting announcements and see just where we stand on membership.

I know you are all interested to learn just how rapidly our nation-wide organization is progressing.

Membership Total Over 1,000

We were so busy getting out our first 1,000 memberships last week, so that you all could wear your wings, that we held off on new memberships coming in. However, even most of these have already been sent through the mails and just about every applicant should have his membership materials by now. Last Saturday our Wing membership was over the 1,000 mark, and it is probably well on its way to 2,000 by now.

That is just our membership for the Pittsburgh Wing, remember. I can't tell you just yet what our total national membership is, but possibly by tomorrow or Thursday I will be able to give you this interesting report, too.

Tell all your boy friends, girl friends, school chums and neighborhood pals about our organization. Perhaps they don't read the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, as most families do, and therefore don't even know that there is a club such as ours that they can join. If each one of you members was to bring in but one new member by Saturday our membership would be almost 3,000. And there is no reason why you can't do it. Remember, you will want to have 20 of your friends affiliated with the Junior Birdmen by next Monday so that you can form your own flight squadron in your neighborhood or community and thus hold your own meetings and activities.

First Junior Birdmen Field Day

Of course you know, from the calendar of events published in this column last week, that a gala Junior Birdmen model plane derby is being planned for each wing city on Saturday, July 7.

The first place winner in each city will be brought to the first annual Junior Birdmen national "All-American" model plane derby to be held later in July, and that will give you your opportunity to become the national model plane champion, with additional honors and awards in store for you.

National headquarters in New York is working out the set-up of awards with our national commander, Mr. George Hearst, and complete details of the local wing meets and the awards will soon be published.

But we are not going to wait for July for our next activity. No, sir. Plans are being formulated for a Junior Birdmen field day in each wing city, to be held very soon, and you will find complete details of that in your daily column sooner than you can say "zoom!"

As for features, well I wish that I had space left in today's column to give you a complete program of all the features that are in store for you. Our model builders course for beginners was to start on Monday, you know, but because of the change in plans for the motto contest prizes, we had to postpone that for a few days. With our flight squadron plan being put into action on Monday I don't want to give you members too much at once so we will hold off this beginners' course until the latter part of next week, when it will be carried in our column twice weekly thereafter until completed. It will be the finest, most complete and easiest course for you beginners to follow that can be found anywhere. And it will be completed in time for you all to make your own models to enter in your local Junior Birdmen wing model plane derby.

No models, built from kits, will be eligible in any Junior Birdmen model plane contest. All entries must be home-made and made by the member flying the craft. You will find this one of the rules of our national Junior Birdmen model contest regulations when they are published shortly in this colmun.

Good News Coming

We have been delaying the publication of indorsements and acceptances of honorary membership in our national organization which are on hand because of the heavy duties of some of our most prominent officials in Washington whose letters should appear first. There is one in particular whom you will all be glad to hear from—and his letter is on its way to national headquarters, according to a special report just received. After that, we will be ready to fill our daily columns with stories from famous pilots, feature pictures of famous planes and all sorts of valuable feature material such as you read about in our first columns.

Aviation Dictionary List Number 5

Say there, I almost forgot today is Wednesday, and that means air dictionary day. But I still have room enough to give you 10 definitions. Here they are:

Airship (general)—An aerostat provided with a propelling system (motors) so that its motion and direction can be controled by those on board.

Airship (non-rigid)—An airship whose shape is maintained by the pressure of the air or gasses contained in its bag, having no framework.

Airship (pressure-rigid)—An airship combining the principles used in both rigid and non-rigid airship to maintain shape and skin tautness.

Airship (rigid)—An airship which is held in shape by metal or wood framework.

Airship (semi-rigid)—An airship whose shape is maintained by means of a rigid or jointed keel in conjunction with internal pressure in the gas containers and ballonets.

Airship shed—A large shed used for the housing of airships. Also called airship docks and airship hangars.

Airship station—The complete assembly of sheds, masts, gas plants, shops, landing fields and other equipment required to operate airships and supply their needs. It is a base from which airships are operated.

Airsickness—A condition of dizziness often felt in rough flying weather by those not accustomed to flying. Similar to seasickness. Modern planes have almost eliminated this condition because of their smooth performance.

Airspeed—The speed of an aircraft relative to the air it is flying in.

Airspeed head—An instrument which, in combination with a gage, is used to measure the speed of an aircraft relative to the air it is flying in.

Air volume (or aerodynamic volume)—The total volume of space in an aerostat (lighter than air craft such as a balloon or Zeppelin) including its projecting parts.

Watch for another set of 10 definitions in Friday's column. I'll be with you again tomorrow.

HAPPY LANDINGS!

JUNIOR PATROL

When you read, fellows, read some autobiography and some biography, too.

Biography isn't such a big word. It just means a book about the life of a man or woman. Autobiography means a book a man or woman writes about his or her own life.

There aren't so many books of this kind. But some of them are very good, and say interesting things. Benjamin Franklin wrote an autobiography that millions of people have read. And most people like it a lot. Franklin tells you just what he thought about many things. You read what Franklin thought and did so many years ago.

Maybe some of our Junior Patrol members keep a "diary." That means that they write what happens to them each day in a book—their diary.

And that is a good thing to do. In that way, you can look back and see what you were doing and what you thought about years ago. And it is easy to look up dates and events. Many persons start a diary, but few ever keep one for a long time. If you start a diary, stick to it, and write in it every day. If you forget it for a while, you get out of the habit of writing.

We have a letter today from the Taylor Boys, by Stanley Volkavich. He writes:

"We would like to play you a game of football. We will try to pay the expenses. Try to get the field. We have one person 10 years old and the rest 6. Answer soon. Try to get a game for us."

We're sorry, Stan, but we can't manage a game now. This is the baseball season now and Junior's team is through playing football until fall comes again. You say you live in California? That's quite a ways from Pittsburgh. Why don't you join the Junior Patrol and play baseball with another Junior Patrol club in your district?

Camille Houck, of Hastings, Pa., is a new captain today. She sends 10 pledges for children who live in her neighborhood in Hastings and so we are sending her an armband.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

Jim Watson's Own Chairman Boom Fails in G. O. P.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—Indiana Jim Watson, grand old bellows for the G. O. P., has been gum shoeing around the country, collecting proxies to make himself chairman of the Republican National Committee. Nearly every one knows that because his shoes squeak.

Few know how successful he has been. If an election were held today Watson would have more votes than any other candidate for the job.

Yet he probably never will get it. There are two reasons for that suspicion, namely: Mr. Charles D. Hilles, of New York, and Mr. J. Henry Roraback, of Connecticut.

CHEFS

Messrs. Hilles and Roraback do not break into the headlines very often. Their specialty is cooking up things quietly on the inside. No one in the national committee can do such things better.

They have said nothing against Watson, but some of the insiders say they have seen them turn their thumbs upside down at a mention of the Hoosier candidate. At any rate, the inner circles take it for granted that Watson's goose already has been cooked by these two most skillful G. O. P. chefs.

That means the subtle contest for Everett Sander's job is wide open now with Watson the only outstanding avowed candidate. Every one takes it for granted that Sanders will retire because of his health as soon as the big boys can get together on his successor, and, perhaps, before.

FORAGING

The Hilles-Roraback boys are said to be looking for some man of the type of Maj. Gen. Harbord or Frank Knox. Gen. Harbord is with the Radio Corporation and Mr. Knox is the Chicago publisher.

Such men, however, have little hankering for the job.

After what happened to recent Republican chairmen, notbaly Claudius Huston and Senator Fess, the post has become recognized among politicians as a "smear job." That means it is a thankless task carrying no salary and much abuse.

ESCAPE

Ex-Senator Edge was considered a promising prospect for the chairmanship some weeks ago. Since then he has turned his back on the job and gone on a trip around the world.

Young Teddy Roosevelt has some support, but he, too, has failed to impress the big shots.

The situation seems to be that those who want the job cannot get it and those who do not want it will not take it.

DYNAMITE

A humdinging report on economic trends is coming shortly from a research committee sponsored by the Carnegie Foundation.

It has been held up since last December because it was loaded with economic dynamite. At that time, certain committee members changed their minds rather suddenly. They had approved the report in draft form, but voted against it a few weeks later when they saw it in print.

This fact led to inner suspicions that pressure had been brought upon them by powerful conservative agents.

Since then, another vote has been taken and the report approved again by a bare majority. Among other things, it will recommend that school teaching be brought up to date by discarding the beliefs of the Old Deal and espousing the principles of the new.

JOKE

The three-day disappearance of a famous Wall street speculator some months ago was marked down as an unsolved mystery.

Certain influential people in the street believe they have the answer now.

They have heard that the speculator was operating in a pool with several other persons. Those persons believed the speculator was going to sell out on them and they kidnaped him and held him until they could get the matter straightened out.

Wall streeters consider it a great joke.

SADNESS

Outside of that there are no jokes in Wall street now. The boys are blue about the stock market bill. Until now, they apparently believed it would be killed.

Their lonely ray of hope is the reappearance of some of the street's winter absentees. Aside from the expected home-coming of Tom Bragg and Ben Smith, the boys have noticed Matt Brush moving around his old haunts. He is the Trader Horn of the market.

The main reason for the big reunion is the conclusion of the stock market investigation, but, when those boys get together, there undoubtedly will be activity in the market one way or another.

NOTES

Prices of tires are due to go up as a result of the recent London rubber marketing agreement between the British and the Dutch. The adjusted seasonal indices on exports were 47 for February and 50 for March; imports 42 for February and 44 for March. They do not show much except that our foreign trade still looks pale and is lagging behind the recovery in other lines. A Congressman performed an unusual publicity trick the other day. He issued a statement denying that President Roosevelt would appoint him to a diplomatic post.

ROXIE ADMITS HE'S RACKETEER

Classified by police as a "racketeer," Rocco Di Pippa, better known as Roxie Long, admits he is just that.

Long, arrested with his wife, Virginia, on a charge of passing mad checks, was asked his occupation when booked at the police station. His answer:

"A racketeer."

The couple appeared today before Magistrate J. W. McGowan in Central Police Court and was bound over for further hearing. Operating a grocery store at 65 Amanda street, they are charged with giving worthless checks to wholesalers.

Long, on parole from a federal penitentiary on a liquor charge, won a skirmish with detectives today when he refused to be fingerprinted. Magistrate McGown upheld his attorney, Edward Coll, who argued officers had no right to finger-print his client while he was at liberty on bail.

GIRL MUSICIAN RETURNS HERE

Miss Madeline Rosenbaum, concert pianist, has returned to Pittsburgh for a three weeks stay before leaving for New York to play and prepare her next season's programs.

While visiting in Ohio during the past three weeks, Miss Rosenbaum was a guest part of the time of Mrs. Bernard Lehmann, of Columbus.

Man Held in Theft Of Welfare Orders

Charged with the theft of five $3 welfare food orders from mail boxes at Homestead homes, Albert Davis, 30, a Negro, was lodged in the County Jail today in default of $500 bond. Davis was held by a United States Commissioner for hearing Friday.

LADY ASHLEY, DOUGAT OPERA

International News Service.

LONDON, May 2.—The presence of Lady Ashley and Douglas Fairbanks at Covent Garden for the opening of the London opera season caused extensive comment in social circles here today.

Fairbanks has been named as corespondent in a divorce action brought by Lord Ashley against Lady Ashley.

For the first time since the divorce suit was filed their names appeared in proximity here when the "gossip column" of a London evening paper commented upon their presence at the opera.

Lady Ashley was described by a woman writer as looking "like an exquisitely lovely hot house flower." Her white silver gown was pictured as preserving "her pale, cool fairness."

Fairbank's attendance at the first big event of the London season was taken as an indication he does not intend to shun the social whirl despite his domestic difficulties.

MAY DAY GIVES REDS SORE FEET

No arrests had been chalked up today by Pittsburgh police from May Day demonstrations yesterday and last night.

The main activity in the city was a parade of 2,500 Communists and sympathizers from Fifth avenue and Dinwiddie street, to West Park, North Side.

Grouped at the bandstand, the marchers assembled to listen to Phil Frankfeld, James Egan, Ben Carruthers, Negro, and other radical leaders.

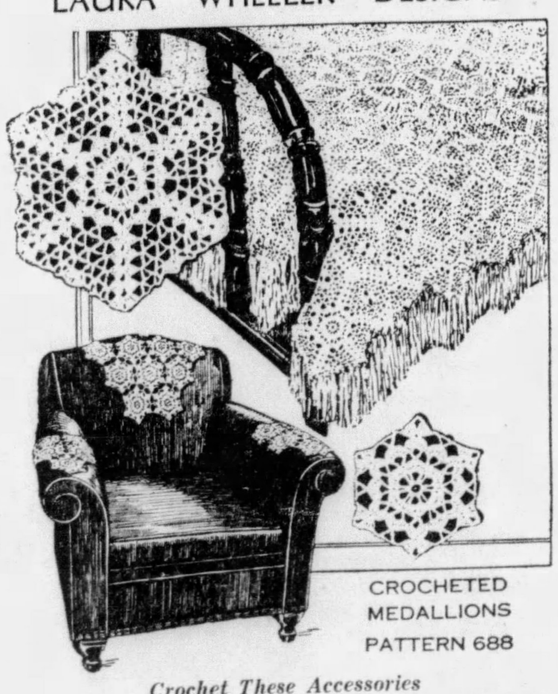
A very small crowd of about 200 joined the marchers at the West Park "demonstration."

Many of the marchers sat down on the grass and took off their shoes, while the speakers were talking.

Commissioners Urge Clark for Congress

The Association of First-Class Township Commissioners has given its indorsement to L. C. Clark's candidacy for Congress in the Thirty-fourth Congressional District, it was announced today. Clark, himself chairman of the Mt. Lebanon Commissioners, also has received the indorsement of the Associated Municipalities of Southwestern Allegheny County. Clark will announce his platform tonight in an address before a meeting of the Women's Republican Club of Mt. Lebanon.

LAURA WHEELER DESIGNS



Crochet These Accessories

Medallions, crocheted of twine—the thing in crochet today—are deservedly popular. Besides being ideal pickup work, it is possible to make so many different lovely things of them. Here is a handsome one—one that you will know by heart after you have made just a few of them. And it is not alone this individual medallion that is lovely, but when joined a very beautiful pattern results. It lends itself especially to a bedspread—one that is durable without being very heavy to handle or tedious to make. Aside from its use in a bedspread, the same medallion is practical for many other uses. Its chief feature though is that by leaving off some rows a smaller medallion results which matches well to the larger one and can be used for such accessories as chair back sets and smaller bedroom accessories. In this way a room can be enhanced with articles of these matching medallions which at the same time produce different patterns when joined.

Pattern 688 contains complete directions for making the medallions shown as well as diagrams of a variety of articles to which they lend themselves.

Send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York, N. Y.

Ed Harvey Goes to WISN

Ed Harvey, program director at WCAE for the past two years, and originator of the popular dramatic serial, "Our Family," departs from Pittsburgh Saturday to become program director at Hearst Station WISN, Milwaukee, Wis.

Harvey came to Pittsburgh from National Broadcasting Company headquarters in Chicago four years ago, serving as program director at KDKA until he transferred to WCAE in 1932.

Mrs. Harvey, known on the air as Sondra Kostner, has shared in many dramatic programs on both WCAE and KDKA, and will continue her radio work with Ed at WISN.

Harvey goes to the Milwaukee station to assist in raising the program standards there.

WISN, the Wisconsin outlet for the Columbia Chain, has recently been completely overhauled and equipped with the latest mechanical improvements.

Corp. Jackson R. Dodson, of the state police, today pushed his investigation into the existence of a "defense" fund and apparent irregularities reported found when police raided the Doric-Ionic Lodge, Independent Order of Free Masons, in their quarters on Baum boulevard Monday night. He announced the "defense" fund after a conference late yesterday with Assistant District Attorney William H. Colvin.

Action against the 16 men arrested in the raid will be deferred until further check on the activities of officers of the lodge are investigated, Colvin said. A hearing will be held by Alderman Harvey A. Lowry at 2 p. m. Friday. The prisoners now are charged with unlawful use of the F. & A. M. insignia.

Look and Feel Clean, Sweet and Fresh Every Day
Drink a glass of real hot water before breakfast to wash out poisons.
Life is not merely to live, but to live well, eat well, digest well, work well, sleep well, look well. What a glorious condition to attain, and yet how very easy it is if one will only adopt the morning inside bath.
Folks who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when they arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.
Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning, before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the water and phosphate is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.
The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble, rheumatism; others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store which will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of internal sanitation.

J. J. Walker Slated for Radio

By AIRCASTER

Debonair Mr. James J. Walker—(remember?)—looms up as the next big name in radio entertainment.

Tentatively, it appears, he will make his debut as a commentator, treating breezily such subjects as European economics, philosophy and show business, staging his appearance within 12 weeks. He will air his views over an American network direct from London.

A responsible Broadway booking agent, just back from Europe, announces that the self-exiled former Mayor of New York has signed a document appointing him as his American representative with full power to negotiate Walker's radio career.

In New York radio circles, they go even so far as to name Jimmy's sponsor—one of the largest and most dignified radio advertisers—but doubting the likelihood of such a staid sponsor fostering the Walker wit, and assuming that it is mere Gotham gossip, I hesitate to name names.

SOUVENIR

Last Sunday night Rubinoff played "Souvenir."

It wasn't just for the audience, but for Buddy Hale, the war ace, who was shot down 14 times.

Buddy lies at the point of death, in a coma, in a hospital at Waukegan, Ill. He has pneumonia, and suffers the delusion that every night is Sunday night, and keeps muttering about the Rubinoff program. Sometimes, he mumbles "souvenir."

Rubinoff's agency was told of the case, and Rubinoff corresponded with doctors, who were hopeful that the tune, if played, might awaken Hale to consciousness.

They put a radio at his bedside, and Rubinoff played. Unfortunately, the patient did not respond with more than a faint, peaceful smile.

MORE POWER

President Roosevelt is to participate in the opening of the new WLW 500,000-watt transmitter Wednesday night by pressing a key in Washington that will officially put the new equipment on the air from Cincinnati.

The opening program will start at 9 o'clock with the voice of Powel Crosley as the first to go out. Thereafter the dedication entertainment will continue a big share of the night, with a half-hour network broadcast by NBC-KDKA at 10:30.

More than 200 artists are expected to have a hand in the ceremonies.

* * *

Banning of whistling is nothing new to local radio folk.

Col. William S. Hedges, until recently general manager of KDKA, and now general manager of 16 NBS stations, caused a notice to be posted on the station bulletin board:

"Whistling disturbs your fellow-workers. If you must whistle, see the program director, and he will assign you a quiet studio, and perhaps a regular spot on the air."

Local Highlights on WJAS Tonight

Paul Gannon sings an all-request program during his Songs at Eventide at 6:45.

Lavender, Old Lace A Favorite

Globe Trotter

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen!

This is to inform you that a baseball service is being offered to Globe Trotter customers at no extra cost. In case the weather makes you doubtful whether or not the Pirates are going to perform in the afternoon at Forbes Field, just keep listening to the Globe Trotter at 12:15.

When a game is called off the Globe Trotter will announce the information so that out-of-towners will not be disappointed after making a long trek to Pittsburgh to witness a ball game.

The price, as I have mentioned above, remains the same for the service, that is, your daily and Sunday purchase of the Sun-Telegraph.

It just occurred to me that if you are reading this, you have already bought the paper. In that case, see that your friend gets it.

Now that the business matters are out of the way, I want to thank the lady who sent in an encyclopedia set for the Mayview library. She wants to remain anonymous.

Now, I figure that is because of a modest, generous heart.

Those dictionaries that I want to give to the jail have not arrived yet. The silks are keeping up all right, but the veterans use that stuff up pretty fast. They make a few cents from those rugs they manufacture. Keep the good work up.

...they couldn't believe it, but—

The "TASTE TEST" told them the truth!
It happened in one of the smartest social sets. Four guests were arguing..."A bottle of good pure liquor for so little money? It wasn't possible!"
That gave the hostess an idea. She produced four glasses, each half-filled with whisky. One glass held a bonded liquor, two others contained expensive blends, the fourth—SWEEP STAKES. Only the hostess knew what brands were in the glasses.
"Take a sip of each," she requested; "Then tell me which you like best." They sipped—they sniffed—and . . . three out of four gave first place to SWEEP STAKES!
* * *
If you are one of the vanishing few who still believe that liquor quality comes high, invest in SWEEP STAKES blended whisky. Give it a real workout. Sip it. Sniff it. Compare it. The millions who enjoy it can't be wrong!

MORE HELP DUE IN RUSHMORE CONTEST

Discussion of the final three episodes of the nine specific points of history that must be the basis of texts entered into the Mount Rushmore National Memorial inscription competition will be heard tomorrow over radio Station WCAE.

William G. Fixel, instructor in history at the Allegheny High School, will close the series of three special broadcasts at 5:45 p. m. The discussion will treat the three episodes on the basis of their effect upon the progress of the nation. Mr. Fixel's talk will be found of assistance to adult and student participant alike and provides a clear conception of what the historical events meant.

The three episodes will be: Settlement of the Oregon boundary dispute; the Alaska purchase; and building of the Panama Canal. The six additional episodes that must be used in the competition, which were discussed in previous radio talks, are: 1—Writing of the Declaration of Independence. 2—Making of the American Constitution. 3—The Louisiana Purchase. 4—Entry of Texas into the Union. 5—Ceding of the Floridas to the United States. 6—Acquisition of California.

With the extension of the closing date until May 30, plenty of time is available for every man, woman and child, not now preparing their text for the nation-wide competition, to accept the invitation of the Sun-Telegraph and associated Hearst newspapers. The newspapers are conducting the competition for the Mount Rushmore National Memorial Commission which is sponsoring the great monument in South Dakota. Awards of cash and scholarships await the winners.

Listen to Mr. Fixel's talk tomorrow and tune in on Station WJAS at 8:30 p. m. (daylight saving time) tomorrow night and hear one of the episodes dramatized on the "Voice of America" program. Hear the special prize offer that the sponsor, Underwood-Elliott-Fisher, has to make for participants.

BULL COW SUIT SPLITS COURT

REIDSVILLE, Ga., May 2.—(AP.)—A bull in an indictment for the theft of a bull created as much uproar in court here as the bull of the old saying did in his china shop.

It all started when John Mangum was called to trial for the theft of "one butt-headed bull cow."

W. T. Burkhalter, his attorney, demurred to the indictment on the ground that no crime was charged, because no such animal as a "bull cow" was known to man.

The only bull before the court, he told Judge J. H. Thomas, was the one defined by the dictionary as "a grotesque blunder in language." He disclaimed responsibility on behalf of his client for any such bull.

The attorney took the court through a rapid dissertation on all the bulls of history, mythology and what-not, from the "ring-streaked and striped bulls of Jacob" to the bulls of Wall street.

Solictor General J. P. Dykes argued that anybody knew a "bull cow" was a group-up bull yearling and that was the only kind to be found in this county.

Knitted Belt Brings Denver Snake Scare

DENVER, May 2.—(AP.)—"There's a big snake in my back yard," shrieked a feminine voice in the ear of an operator at police headquarters. Officers hastened to the home of Mrs. Charles H. Thomas.

They had no trouble. The "snake" proved to be a knitted belt coiled in the grass.

Pinchot Aides Levy On Jobholders

By MARK SHIELDS

Despite Governor Pinchot's renewed insistence that state employes shall not be assessed for political purposes, the apparent fact remains that some of his subordinates are "putting on the heat," and doing it in a businesslike manner not hitherto approached.

Mr. Shields

Some employes are being given a stipulated amount they will be expected to contribute.

In line with the change in the value of the dollar, it is only 1 per cent, instead of the 2 per cent the Governor's subordinates established as the assessment for the campaign of 1932, when Mr. Pinchot supported Gen. Smedley D. Butler for the United States Senate and attempted to gain control of the Republican State Committee.

This year, it appears, according to instructions reported given to some state employes, they will have more than a canceled check to show for their contributions.

They will have a receipt, and the stipulation that the money contributed will be expended in their counties.

Then, if the treasurer of a Pinchot county campaign committee comes along with another request for a donation to the war chest, the employe can exhibit his receipt as evidence that he already has come across, and that, if he has been correctly informed, the money eventually should get to the county campaign.

* * *

Efficiency Benefits Hireling, As Well

There are also reports that the proposition works to protect the state employes against being twice assessed.

For example, if a state employe makes a contribution to a Pinchot county committee he also gets a receipt. Then if his superior in the government pops around with a request for a salary percentage the state employe can show the local receipt, and that is presumed to exempt him from a second touch.

It is as businesslike an arrangement as could be imagined.

It does not, of course, extend to all departments, but is active in the Highway Department, which is the branch of the state government with the most employes.

Mr. Pinchot may be given credit for sincerity in objecting to assessment of state employes, a principle he made a part of his platform in 1930. He evidenced this yesterday by discharging from his post as compensation referee T. Duncan Just, chairman of his committee in Montgomery County, on the charge of soliciting funds from state employes.

As a matter of fact, it always has been understood that state employes were assessed in 1930 for the general election campaign which resulted in the election of the Governor, though the revenue from this source had to be raised without the knowledge of former Gov. John S. Fisher. The fact of the assessments was revealed by one plain-spoken official, and it developed the plan was known in some high places.

This proposition of campaign assessments always is a troublesome one in a campaign.

It is a wrong practice when there are coerced assessments rather than voluntary contributions from those employes who have received their positions through political influence—and thus owe some return to their sponsors—but it is a practice which is widespread, and confined to no party or faction.

Reed Slaps Pinchot, Alleges Word Broken

Senator David A. Reed, opponent of Mr. Pinchot for the United States Senatorial nomination in the Republican primary, today noted the imposition of assessments with the statement that he had "positive knowledge" three departments at least were affected.

His information as to how the money is being distributed differs a trifle from mine, and we perhaps are both right, the system differing in various counties.

In his statement Senator Reed said:

"If there was one promise that stood out distinctly among the many that Gov. Pinchot made when he ran for the governorship in 1930, it was the promise that state employes should not hereafter be asked for campaign funds.

"This promise now seems to have gone the way of all the others, for I have definite information that employes of the Department of Highways, the Department of Property and Supplies and the Revenue Department are being assessed a definite percentage of their annual salary, one-half of which is required to be paid to John C. Orr, Pinchot's local treasurer, and the balance to J. Brooke Buckley, treasurer of the statewide Pinchot committee.

"In view of this record of faithfulness to his solemn promises to the people of Pennsylvania, I do not understand how Gov. Pinchot expects them to attach any importance to any promise that he may make in his Senatorial campaign."

* * *

Schnader's Stake From Other Sources

The John C. Orr to whom Senator Reed refers to as a "local treasurer," is not, of course, the treasurer of Allegheny County, but Dauphin County, in which Harrisburg is located, and in which most of the state employes reside, though appointed from other sections.

Mr. Orr is an insurance man, and for some time has been a familiar of P. S Stahlnecker, now a Public Service Commissioner,

Fourteen months is a long time to keep a secret, but it wasn't until today that school friends of Miss Evelon E. Birkowitz, former University of Pittsburgh co-ed, learned of her elopement with Dr. D. L. Greenberg, February 2, 1933.

There was a mid-semester examination to get out of the way; then Miss Berkowitz and Dr. Greenberg drove to Hollidays Cove, W. Va.

The bride returned to her classes two days later and was graduated last June, still keeping her secret.

Miss Berkowitz is the daughter of Mrs. B. Berkowitz, of McKeesport. Dr. Greenberg is a graduate of Pitt.

COUNTY TRUCK 'SHAKEDOWN' CHARGED

Contractor Declares Director's Brother Solicited Fee

Charging that rumors of "rottenness" had traveled through the county concerning the hiring of trucks by Allegheny County, Commissioner C. C. McGovern yesterday urged that the truck hiring be returned to the Department of Supplies, from which it was taken some months ago.

The suggestion came out of complaints that he had received and rumors he had heard, McGovern said. He expressed complete confidence in Thomas O. Hasley, Director of the Department of Bridges, Highways and Tunnels, but explained that a director should not be burdened with such details.

Park Martin, Hasley's assistant, explained that a shovel had been dropped from the rolls when it was found that a check showed it performed an average 87 loads a day, while other shovels on the same job completed 300 loads a day.

A. Warden, secretary of the Minsinger company, owner of the eliminated shovel, protested, charging that since he refused to join the equipment association his equipment has been "kicked around."

He said:

"A man came to me and asked me to pay $5 and join the association, and I refused. Later I saw him and he said:

"'Are you still among the chiselers?'"

McGovern asked:

"Who was that man?"

Warden answered:

"Director Hasley's brother."

McGovern said:

"I'm sorry I asked you that."

Commissioner C. M. Barr asked Warden to show proof that this had any relation to the displacing of the Minsinger shovel, and Warden replied:

"I meant to make no reflection on Director Hasley. I simply say that I will not accept their proof."

GARBAGE SITES SELECTED

Two incinerator sites have been picked tentatively by City Council for the purpose of getting bids on collection costs. The sites are on Sawmill Run boulevard, near the south end of the Wabash tunnel and Larimer avenue extension, and Clifford street, Twelfth Ward.

These are the ones recommended by Superintendent of the Bureau of Sanitation George W. Schusler. The action turns down the recommendation of Engineer Norman S. Sprague, appointed at the request of Councilman William A. Magee.

At the suggestion of President Robert Garland, bids will be asked on two, three and five year contracts on the basis of present methods of collection and disposal. Bids will also be asked on collecting for the new plants and operating the incinerators.

Air Waves Held Success In Fight on Teeth Germs

Successful treatment of infected teeth with short length radio waves was described to the Pennsylvania Dentists' convention today by Dr. J. S. Oartel, of Wilkinsburg, at Hotel William Penn.

Thirty per cent of the germs in diseased teeth may be killed by placing the teeth between sending and receiving plates, Dr. Oartel said.

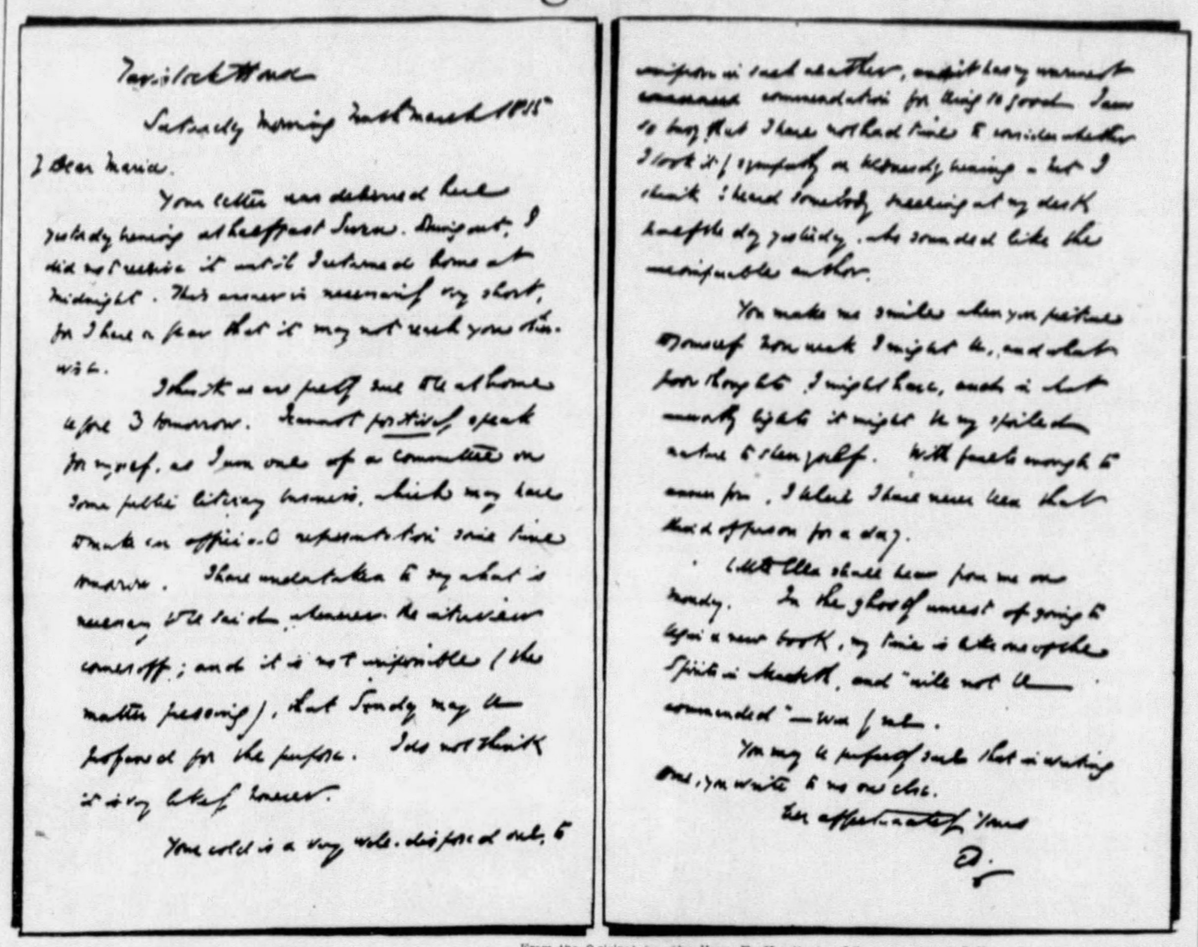
While his experiments so far have been limited to extracted teeth, the dentist said he anticipated similar success in actual treatment of patients.

More than half of the public money now being spent for diseases could be saved if all oral ailments were eliminated, according to Dr. W. W. Cogswell, of Colorado Springs, whose wax exhibit in dental technique is featured at the convention.

He said:

"Fifty per cent of diseases now being treated at public expense could be relieved if all oral conditions were cleared up. The difficulty is getting the public to recognize the need of dental treatment. The Mayo brothers will bear me out on this."

Dickens Took Maria's Cold 'By Sympathy' At Secret Meeting, Letter Now Reveals



From the Original in the Henry E. Huntington Library and Art Gallery, San Marino, California.

CHARLES DICKENS' LETTER FROM TAVISTOCK MANOR, AT ED "SATURDAY MORNING, TENTH MARCH, 1855," TO MARIA

'You Make Me Smile When You Picture to Yourself What Poor Thoughts I Might Have,' Author Wrote in 1855.

Reawakening of the youthful romance between Charles Dickens and Maria Beadnell has been revealed in previous installments containing his rapturous middle-age love letters to her. It was indicated that they had arranged a secret meeting, he being married and the father of nine children, she also being married and a mother. In today's installment is revealed all that is now known of their meeting, as told in one of his letters, with the intimation that such association for many reasons was becoming embarrassing to him.

By H. H. HARPER.

JUST where and how they met, no one knows! nor is it at all necessary that we intrude upon the privacy of that meeting. If she were still attractive in appearance, and was as handy with her voice as she had been with her pen in setting herself aright, we could perhaps assume that she might have convinced Dickens that here was his chance to retrieve the lost opportunity of his youth. All this, however, is highly improbable.

Maria was no longer a part of his world; for more than 20 years he had gone steadily forward, while she, handicapped by an unromantic husband and household cares, had made no progress. The only thing in common between them was a 22-year-old reminiscence.

The impression Dickens got of her at their first meeting is best determined by the letters which follow. The case presents a rather interesting psychological problem, which the reader will perhaps enjoy figuring out for himself.

At all events, no matter what Dickens' mood or impression may have been, one fact stands out undeniably clear—Maria Beadnell had a powerful influence in shaping his life, and Maria Winter's letters inspired him to write the second chapter of a human story the like of which he never wrote, either before or afterwards.

The following letter shows that Dickens and Maria met again one Wednesday evening early in March, and he wondered if he had taken her cold "by sympathy."

Whether or not he was still under the spell, no one will doubt that the prototype of "Dora" was doing all she could to atone for her former treatment of him, when their meetings had been 'little more than so many displays of heartless indifference" on her part and "a fertile source of wretchedness and misery" to him. The letter read:

Tavistock House,
Saturday Morning,
Tenth March, 1855.

My dear Maria:

You letter was delivered here yesterday evening at half past seven. Being out, I did not receive it until I returned home at midnight. This answer is necessarily very short, for I have a fear that it may not reach you otherwise.

I think we are pretty sure to be at home before three tomorrow. I cannot positively speak for myself, as I am one of a committee on some public literary business, which may have to make an official representation some time tomorrow. I have undertaken to say what is necessary to be said, whenever the interview comes off; and it is not impossible (the matter pressing) that Sunday may be profaned for the purpose. I do not think it is very likely, however.

Your cold is a very well-disposed one, to improve in such weather, and it has my warmest commendation for being so good. I am so busy that I have not had time to consider whether I took it by sympathy on Wednesday evening—but I think I heard somebody sneezing at my desk half the day yesterday, who sounded like the incomparable author.

You make me smile when you picture to yourself how weak I might be, and what poor thoughts I might have, and in what unworthy lights it might be my spoiled nature to show myself. With faults enough to answer for, I believe I have never been that kind of a person for a day.

Little Ella shall hear from me on Monday.

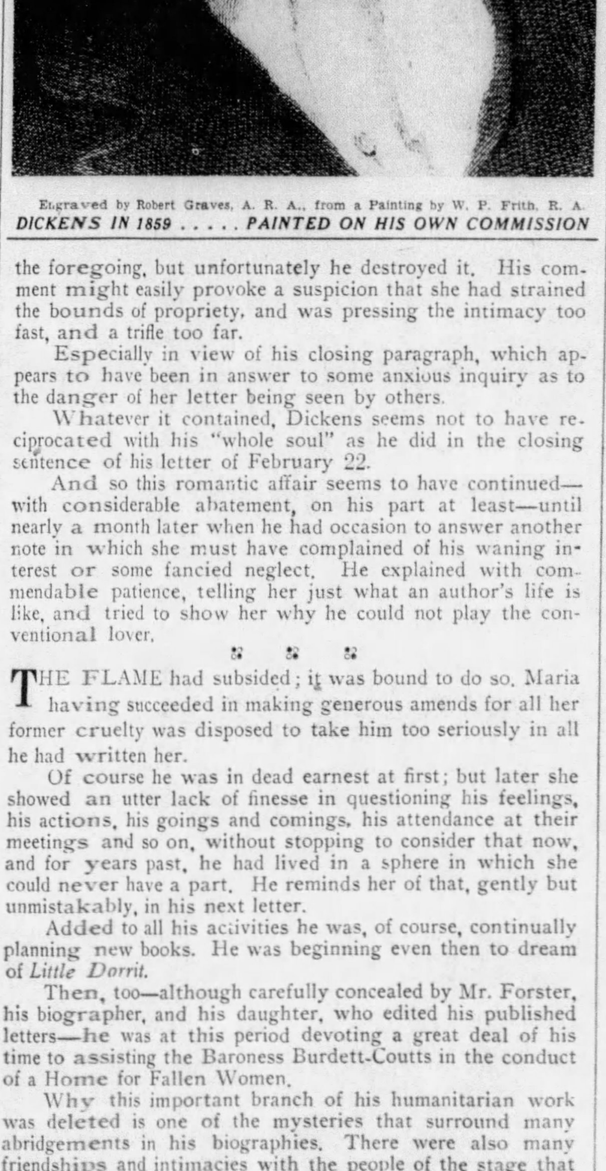
In the ghostly unrest of going to begin a new book, my time is like one of the Spirits in Macbeth, and "will not be commanded"—even by me.

You may be perfectly sure that in writing to me, you write to no one else.

Ever affectionately yours,

C. D.

It would be immensely interesting to read the letter that gave rise to Dickens' remark in the fourth paragraph of the foregoing, but unfortunately he destroyed it. His comment might easily provoke a suspicion that she had strained the bounds of propriety, and was pressing the intimacy too fast, and a trifle too far.



Engraved by Robert Graves, A. R. A., from a Painting by W. P. Frith, R. A.

DICKENS IN 1859 . . . . . PAINTED ON HIS OWN COMMISSION

Especially in view of his closing paragraph, which appears to have been in answer to some anxious inquiry as to the danger of her letter being seen by others.

Whatever it contained, Dickens seems not to have reciprocated with his "whole soul" as he did in the closing sentence of his letter of February 22.

And so this romantic affair seems to have continued—with considerable abatement, on his part at least—until nearly a month later when he had occasion to answer another note in which she must have complained of his waning interest or some fancied neglect. He explained with commendable patience, telling her just what an author's life is like, and tried to show her why he could not play the conventional lover.

* * *

THE FLAME had subsided; it was bound to do so. Maria having succeeded in making generous amends for all her former cruelty was disposed to take him too seriously in all he had written her.

Of course he was in dead earnest at first; but later she showed an utter lack of finesse in questioning his feelings, his actions, his goings and comings, his attendance at their meetings and so on, without stopping to consider that now, and for years past, he had lived in a sphere in which she could never have a part. He reminds her of that, gently but unmistakably, in his next letter.

Added to all his activities he was, of course, continually planning new books. He was beginning even then to dream of Little Dorrit.

Then, too—although carefully concealed by Mr. Forster, his biographer, and his daughter, who edited his published letters—he was at this period devoting a great deal of his time to assisting the Baroness Burdett-Coutts in the conduct of a Home for Fallen Women.

Why this important branch of his humanitarian work was deleted is one of the mysteries that surround many abridgements in his biographies. There were also many friendships and intimacies with the people of the stage that are just now, in the world-wide search for more information about this great man, emerging from their graves of silence.

Giving all this the slightest glance, it is clear that he had little inclination to coquet with Maria. Of course her sudden

PRESENT SETUP BARS AID ON ARREARAGE

Board Head in Report Stresses Need for Solving Problem

Provision to pay the rent of families on relief was urged today by Eric Biddle, director of the State Emergency Relief Board.

This problem, which, under the present setup, works hardship upon landlords as well as tenants, is "vital," according to Biddle, and should be cared for in Pennsylvania's welfare program.

In his annual report, Biddle declared that provisions should be made for shelter, where necessary, as part of the relief budget.

MONTH'S RENT PAID

Pleas that the State take some definite action on the matter have been made by the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board, in behalf of landlords, relief recipients and officials of various welfare organizations.

Under the present system, families receive only one month's rent money, after receipt of final notice to vacate, to pay for a new home. Rules forbid paying the money to the old landlords.

There were two factors recently in bringing the Pittsburgh rent crisis to the fore.

One was the announcement that more than 66,000 Allegheny County families faced eviction for non-payment of rent.

PINCHOT HOPEFUL

The other was the North Side eviction riot in which several hundred citizens battled police after a family had been put into the street.

Gov. Gifford A. Pinchot, returning to Harrisburg after a trip to Washington in an effort to obtain an additional federal grant for relief work in the state, expressed confidence that the allotment would be made.

At the capital he conferred with President Roosevelt and Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator. The Governor said:

"What Mr. Hopkins said shows clearly that he understands the situation. I think we have every reason to hope that the federal government will do the right thing in this emergency."

Amplifying his statement that the state relief program should include rent, Biddle asserted:

"Shelter is a basic necessity of life. There is no more reason for expecting a landlord to provide a proportion of the relief needs of the unemployed than there would be for forcing the merchant to provide free merchandise."

Congressman Henry Ellenbogen said he had had another conference with Relief Administrator Hopkins and was hopeful that the Pennsylvania allotment would be increased from $7,500,000 to $10,000,000 as previously proposed.

COUNCILS PROTEST

The general relief situation reached an acute stage this week when it became known that state welfare funds, as well as the coffers of various relief agencies, were near depletion, together with the "collapse" of the Relief Works Division program.

The State Legislature meets in January, 1935, and relief officials have assumed that provisions will be made at that time to carry the entire burden of caring for the needy. In the meantime federal funds are necessary to carry on the work.

The community councils of Allegheny County had filed a protest today against "uncertainty of the RWD resumption" here.

Appealing to Federal Relief Administrator Hopkins, the councils asked that cognizance be taken of "the disastrous situation in Allegheny County" resulting from the shutdown of the work program.

U. S. in Another Cable Chess Game With Far East

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

We're in another one of those cable chess matches with the Far East.

Our State Department and the Orient are in a schoolgirl correspondence duel. You know the kind. It always breaks off because somebody owes somebody a letter.

We don't know how it will come out. We do realize at that distance you cannot law the law down like linoleum.

Diplomatic notes are difficult to compose. Every word must be just so. And you've got to stop writing when you wear out the eraser.

We're worried about China because it's close to the Philippines. And we're worried about the Philippines because they ain't close to anything.

PROCTER, NOTED SOAP FIRM HEAD, DIES

CINCINNATI, May 2.—(AP.)—Col. William Cooper Procter, 72, CiCncinnati industrial leader and philanthropist, died this morning. He was chairman of the board of the Procter & Gamble Company, soap manufacturers.

He was a victim of pneumonia. Col. Procter returned to Cincinnati from New York and Philadelphia last Friday, suffering from what he believed to be a slight cold.

His death followed by barely two years that of James M. Gamble, his business associate, who, with him, built to huge proportions a business founded by their grandfathers.

Col. Procter was attending a council of the Protestant Episcopal Church in New York City when he fell ill.

Educated at Princeton, he plunged into the family industry almost at once, and at once started a series of innovations.

He is generally credited with establishing the Saturday half-holiday for workers; with inaugurating employe representation in management; and with creation of an employe profit-sharing plan later amplified by guaranteed year-round employment for his plant workers.

Though his philanthropies were never widely heralded, it was known he contributed heavily towards needs of Princeton University, and gave $2,500,000 to the Children's Hospital here.

In addition, he was chairman of the national committee organized in 1928 by Herbert Hoover, then secretary of commerce, to bring about greater efficiency and economy in community chest and social service work. A year before he was general chairman of the community chest drive of his native city.

Deeply interested in military activities—his title of colonel followed his service as commander of the first regiment of infantry, Ohio National Guard—he served, too, as a member of the Council of National Defense in 1917-18.

SCHOOL MURALS ON DISPLAY

'Wonderland' Chosen As Theme by PWA Artist

By PENELOPE REDD

During this week, Miss Anna Belle Craig is exhibiting at her studio at 350 South Highland avenue three mural decorations based on the theme of "Alice in Wonderland" and "Through the Looking Glass." The decorations are to be installed soon in the library of the Fulton School as one of the Public Works Administration projects.

Miss Redd

Miss Craig, who has always been interested in Alice as a motif for decoration, has ingeniously combined the two sagas of the small miss in her scheme. In the one upright decoration, Alice in her sapphire blue gown is seen following the rabbit who walked and talked and had a watch, but even more marvelous had a waistcoat with a pocket to hold the watch. In the other vertical panel, Alice is stepping out of the arm chair into the mirror above the fire place with its warm winter beacon.

The large central panel is a synopsis of the two volumes. To the left is the house of the ugly Duchess, mercifully absent, guarded by the frog and the fish footman; Father William disports himself; the gardners and the Queen of Hearts, the King, and the Knave, are in the middle distance. In the foreground is the pool of Alice's tears with the Dodo Bird and his kindred solemnly surveying the whole.

Miss Craig has cleverly placed the principal characters from "Through the Looking Glass" on the right side of the panel. Alice is seen as she crowns herself Queen on the eighth square of the Chess Board and the red and white Queens are also there, while the Walrus and the Carpenter, able aids to dinner conversations in the Anglo-Saxon world, are at the edge of the bright blue sea which forms the background.

As a composition, Miss Craig has unified her plan of rhythmic curves by nominating the bright, blue sea as the happy agent. While of necessity, she has accepted the traditional figures of the "Mad Hatter," the "Mock Turtle," and the "Gryphon," she has other than these given a fresh and original version of the whole. Moreover, Miss Craig has added a new and enchanting conceit by emphasizing the garden idea which is absetn, as far as our knowledge is concerned, in the familiar illustrations of Alice.

We believe without qualification that none of the P.W.A. projects will give more joy to succeeding generations of children than Miss Craig's mural decorations in the Fulton School.

COUNTY SPEEDS TAX BILLS

The County Treasurer expects to have tax statements in the hands of county taxpayers by June 15, he reported today.

But in the meanwhile, Deputy Treasurer A. E. Anke asked that taxpayers desiring property statements write—and make no personal appearances.

Anke declared:

"Statements will be forwarded from the County Treasurer's office as rapidly as they are completed for mailing, after the first day of May. Persons desiring property statements are urgently requested not to come to the Treasurer's office before June 15 to lift their statements. Use of the mail is specifically recommended for either making requests for statements or paying taxes, due to the fact that the Treasurer's books, which are prepared by the Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes, have been unavoidably delayed, owing to the vast number of additional personal property returns and appeals."

Community Fund Committees Meet

Plans for the annual survey and evaluation of the 75 agencies financed through the Community Fund will be made at a meeting of chairmen of 37 sub-committees representing contributors of the fund tomorrow. Ralph W. Harbison, chairman of the indorsement committee, will preside.

PASTORS HERE OPPOSE WAR, LOYAL TO U. S.

Clergymen of America are 2 to 1 against war, but a majority of those expressing a positive opinion have no conscientious scruples against serving as wartime chaplains, results of a canvass made public today reveal.

Kirby Page, of New York, peace and social reform advocate, made public a compilation of replies from 20,870 ministers to a questionnaire on war. Nearly 100 replies were received from Pittsburgh clergymen, the summary shows.

The Rev. Ira Freeman, Civilian Conservation Corps chaplain and former pastor of the Lorenz Avenue Baptist Church, made it plain he was not in favor of refusing to fight under any circumstances.

'RAT WILL FIGHT'

He wrote:

"Even a rat will fight if cornered, and I trust that I have even more rights than a rat."

One of the questions read:

"Do you believe that the churches of America should now go on record as refusing to sanction or support any future war?"

The replies were totaled thus: Yes, 13,997; no, 4,638; in doubt, 2,012.

Another question was:

"Are you personally prepared to state that it is your present purpose not to sanction any future war or participate as an armed combatant?"

The vote was: Yes, 12,904; No. 5,208; in doubt, 2,503.

On the question, "Could you conscientiously serve as an official army chaplain on a duty in wartime?" the count stood: Yes, 8,534; no, 8,014; in doubt, 3,779.

Sentiment was strong against military training in public schools and civilian colleges. On favoring such training the vote was: Yes, 2,579; no, 17,023; in doubt, 973.

PITTSBURGH'S VOTE

On this question Pittsburgh ministers voted yes, 52; no, 81.

Fifty-two Pittsburgh clergymen went on record as opposed to participating as combatants in any armed conflict. The only two whose names were listed by Kirby's compilation were the Rev. Lester W. Bumpus, executive secretary, Pittsburgh Baptist Association, and the Rev. John C. K. Milligan.

Three Pittsburgh ministers permitted the use of their names as opposing the stand that the churches should unqualifiedly condemn all war. They were the Rev. Dr. John Ray Ewers, East End Christian Church; the Rev. Thomas E. Gallagher, Calvary Methodist Episcopal Church, and the Rev. James Best, First United Presbyterian Church, Wilkinsburg.

As a whole the clergy went on record as strongly in favor of reduction in armaments and against armed intervention to protest lives and property of Americans in other lands. A majority held there was no valid distinction between a war of "defense" and a war of "aggression." Many expressed doubt.

SUES HUSBAND OVER ARREST

Suit for $2,000 damages was filed yesterday against Alderman Luke J. Sullivan, William R. Kessler, a constable, and Joe Doemling, of Thirty-eighth street, by Catherine Doemling alleging illegal imprisonment.

Mrs. Doemling avers that Doemling, a dairy employe, who obtained a divorce last February, made an information against her last June before Alderman Sullivan, charging her with surety of the peace. She was notified to give bail, and when she went to the Alderman's office she was informed she must go to the District Attorney's office to give bond.

Mrs. Doemling alleges she was detained for two days and on June 22, she claims her husband wanted to drop the charge. Mrs. Doemling says she was adjudged not guilty and discharged. She also has on file a petition asking counsel fees for an appeal of her divorce case to the Superior Court.

There should be a clear understanding, however, that there is not the slightest hint that any of the collected assessments are going to Mr. Schnader's campaign.

In many counties the campaigns of Mr. Schnader and Gov. Pinchot are far apart, as here.

The varied alliances from county to county would make it impossible to assess and collect for a joint campaign.

Roosevelt and Senators Urged to Join Fight On League by Sons of American Revolution

Patriotic Group Hits Propagandists in Resolution

President Franklin D. Roosevelt and United States Senators James J. Davis and David A. Reed today were requested to use their powerful influences in combatting attempts to force this nation into the League of Nations and the World Court. Their assistance was asked by the Pittsburgh Chapter of the Sons of the American Revolution, which at a recent meeting, severely criticized attempts by propaganda machines to force this nation into foreign entanglements.

The action of the local patriotic group follows closely the recent expose by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and associated Hearst newspapers of the propaganda being spread by certain internationally minded groups and individuals for the purpose of forcing the United States in the League and World Court. Members of the Pittsburgh Chapter lauded the Sun-Telegraph for its articles exposing the propaganda machine.

A verbal spanking to the "misguided individuals and groups" who are giving financial assistance to the propagandists, was issued in the resolutions adopted by the Chapter. A copy of the resolutions was sent to the Sun-Telegraph by J. M. Russell.

The resolution follows:

"Whereas, all true Americans deplore the propaganda that is being forced upon the American people by so called international leagues and the international-minded who deprecate the principles of the American national government known officially as the United States of America; and

"Whereas, these organizations of so-called international leagues, assisted by many individuals unaffiliated with them, are alleged to be assisted financially by persons, associations, foundations, and other misguided things or persons, said allegations having been published in newspapers, one being the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph; and

"Whereas, the so-called international leagues are constantly adopting resolutions and thereby annoying the loyal offices of the Government, and members of Congress, and other Americans, by insisting upon them taking action detrimental to the independence of the United States of America; be it therefore

"Resolved, that the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph be commended for publishing definite data regarding the attempt of internationalists to involve the United States in the League of Nations; and be it further

"Resolved, that it is the sense of this meeting of the Board of Management of the Pittsburgh Chapter, Sons of the American Revolution, that entrance by the United States of America into the League of Nations or in the so-called World Court, would be detrimental to the independence of our country; and be it further

"Resolved, that the President and Secretary of the Pittsburgh Chapter, Sons of the American Revolution, be and are hereby directed to communicate with the President of the United States, the Honorable Franklin D. Roosevelt, and with the United States Senators from Pennsylvania, viz., James J. Davis and David A. Reed, and to insist upon them using their powerful influences against the entrance of the United States of America into the World Court or in the League of Nations, or both, and be it further

"Resolved, that a copy of this resolution be sent to President Roosevelt and to Senator Reed and to Senator Davis and to the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph."

PETITION AGAINST PARTICIPATION In the LEAGUE of NATIONS and World Court

If you want to save America from European entanglements and keep your country out of foreign wars, and foreign wars out of your country, sign this petition:

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE UNITED STATES SENATE AND HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES:

We protest AGAINST the United States participating in the League of Nations or in the World Court of the League of Nations, with or without "reservations."

We petition our Federal Government to keep our United States "free from foreign entanglements," as the Father of Our Country wisely enjoined.

We urge our Congress at Washington to keep our government from meddling in foreign affairs, and to keep foreign nations from meddling in our American affairs.

As loyal American citizens, we ask our loyal representatives to keep our country out of foreign conflicts and complications and to keep foreign conflicts and complications out of our country.

NAME ADDRESS

Additional names may be added to this petition by pasting a sheet of paper hereto. PRESENTED through the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph

What with serious concerns such as the Pittsburgh Symphony campaign and political campaigns added to social affairs, women of Pittsburgh's smart set are in for a busy spring.

Between now and May 15 a group of social leaders will be dashing about arranging details for the opening campaign dinner for the Pittsburgh Symphony, to be held at the Hotel Schenley the night of the fifteenth. And Walter Damrosch, no less, will be the guest of honor.

The dinner comes the night before the symphony's final concert of the season at Syria Mosque when Rosa Ponselle will be the guest artist.

And this concert will be the first on a week-day night instead of Sunday, did you realize?

Mrs. William Maclay Hall Campaign General Charman

For the campaign, Mrs. William Maclay Hall is general chairman, and Mrs. F. C. Irish is chairman of the steering committee.

Miss Arbuthnot

Heading the women's division will be Mrs. Edwin Ruud. And her aides will include Mrs. E. V. Babcock, Mrs. George P. Bassett, Jr., Mrs. J. Frank Drake, Mrs. Leon Falk, Jr., Mrs. T. J. Hilliard, Mrs. W. L. Jones, Jr., Mrs. Enoch Rauh and Mrs. W. Edgar Reed.

There'll be one lone man on the dinner committee—Richard S. Rauh. The remaining dinner planners will be Mrs. J. Frank Drake, chairman; Mrs. Joseph Dilworth, Mrs. Harvey Childs, Mrs. E. W. Mudge and Mrs. Thomas W. Phillips, Jr.

Mrs. David R. Craig will be chairman of headquarters, and Mrs. Karl J. Kaufman will be executive secretary. Heading the men's division will be Samuel Harden Church, and Paul Mellon, member of the Mellon banking family, is, suitably enough, the treasurer for the campaign.

Elizabeth Arbuthnot Busy With Political Campaign

Elizabeth Arbuthnot, whose picture appears above in this column, is busy with another campaign, a political one. And she's a seasoned campaigner now after having been chairman of the Roosevelt ball.

As chairman of the activities committee of the Reed Volunteers of Allegheny County, she has sent out invitations to a tea tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock in the William Penn's Chatterbox, at which Pittsburgh social registerite, Senator David Aiken Reed will speak.

Miss Arbuthnot will have among her aides at the tea Mrs. William R. Scott, Mrs. Herbert A. May, Mrs. W. McCook Reed, Mrs. Howard Heinz, Mrs. Ellen Stone Bailey, Mrs. Jack Bissell, Harriet Ramsburg and Mary Elizabeth Floyd.

Senator Reed is a candidate for renomination to the Senate.

McCandless Missionary Society To Have Rummage Sale

Another activity which abounds in the springtime is the rummage sale. The Margaret McCandless Missionary Society of the Sixth Presbyterian Church, Squirrel Hill, will hold its annual spring rummage sale in the East Liberty Market House, Broad street and Larimer avenue, Thursday, May 10.

And Mrs. Gregg L. Neel, chairman, and her committee are busy soliciting articles for the sale.

$300 Raised By Hospital Society

MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Nearly 250 women attended and more than $300 was raised at the delightful musicale tea given yesterday at "Highmont," Mrs. Daniel M. Clemson's Fifth avenue home, by the Presbyterian Hospital Aid Society. It was one of the society's two annual fund-raising affairs for the free work of the hospital, to which the three women's organizations contribute about $11,000 annually. The society's second event is the big donation day in the fall when supplies and money are received.

The Children's Charity and the Social Service Committee, the other two sustaining groups, have their own methods of fund-raising and each has an interesting personnel and program of work. The Aid Society is, of course, the largest of the three organizations, having 160 members. It has no "dead wood" in its membership, because each woman, when she joins, pledges herself to attend the monthly meetings, to contribute to the work and to take part in the activities.

Three of its original members, Mrs. Walter S. Church, the president; Mrs. Alan C. Stevenson and Miss Edna H. Love, who has been treasurer ever since the inception of the society, are still active. Many nonsectarian organizations are interested in the work of the society and contribute to it regularly, the Edgewood Cot Club and the Hospital Auxiliary, for instance, being among this number.

Incidentally, the Social Service Committee is having its benefit, a bridge luncheon, at the Longue Vue Country Club on June 13 with Mrs. Kirkland Wiley Todd and Mrs. Ernest N. Calhoun as co-chairmen.

The program at yesterday's benefit was an exceptionally charming and artistic one and was presented by the Fireflies, Letha Frazier Rankin, Viola K. Byrgerson, Jean McCrory Newman and Marian Clark Bollinger.

Mothers of members were guests at the Bellevue Round Table's meeting yesterday in Mrs. W. B. Rodgers' home, Ohio River boulevard. Mrs. Harry Howard gave a paper on "Home Life" and the motion pictures taken last year at a similar affair were shown. Then babyhood and girlhood photographs of both mothers and members were thrown on the screen and there was a great fun guessing the identity of each.

Wilkinsburg Festival Is Arranged

In their eagerness to get away from the usual sort of benefit, members of the Wilkinsburg Civic Club hit upon the idea of a flower festival. And this they will put on Thursday evening, May 10, in the Second Presbyterian Church, with the assistance of local florists.

The art and drama committee of the club is arranging the affair, at which there will be displays of flowers and ideas for landscape gardening will be presented. For further entertainment the music committee, under the direction of Mrs. Nancy Cannon McMunn and Mrs. O. B. Hamer, will sponsor a recital. Mrs. E. C. Miller and Miss Bess Williamson are co-chairmen for the festival.

Aspinwall P. T. A. Program Planned

The Aspinwall Parent-Teacher Association is offering an unusual program to its members and their guests tomorrow evening in the High School Auditorium. Through the Spyglass

VIEWING THE NEW

You little shoppers who want to learn the names of the shops whose items are listed in this column day by day . . . call GRANT 6500 . . . and ASK FOR THE SPYGLASS. Or send in a stamped self-addressed envelope for your reply. THE SPYGLASS is always on the alert, peerin out new "finds" . . . and you will be enswered promptly!

* * *

Torn between two desires, we are! Just like the well-known worm between the chicks! And maybe we aren't in a quandary about whether to blither on about graduation . . . or Mother's Day . . . or fixing up the porch . . . or just about THINGS! So we've gone "eeny-meany-" and picked out this assortment that includes SOME gift-items . . . and SOME otherwise!

* * *

Beginning with the timely, topical, and tiltillating knowledge that we've found the only spot in town where REAL Scotch and English yarns abide. The ONLY yarns, we might add, that can be matched EXACTLY when you run out of the last ball before finishing your sweater. (And anyone who has tried to piece out with an "off" shade, knows how exasperating it can be.) That's number one of the important things about this shop.

* * *

And nextly . . . is the information that these yarns are the ones that far-famed Mrs. Farley of New York uses in her creations. Just by way of a tiny tip to you! Finally . . . the woman who manages this shop and has the agency for this yarn, is one of those bright and shining souls who is not content to hand you an instruction book and let you muddle along. Nay, Nay! She brings forth a brain child every day . . . a baby idea of how-to-make-something - just-a-little-different, and oh! how it grows.

The latest being the six-hour sweater for men. Considering that they're all howling for something knitted for THEM (manlike!) this satisfies the creafutres and makes a smart and easy job for you knitters. Only six hours from beginning to end . . . we saw it! (And this was for a size 40.)

P. S. Yarns are 55 cents the ounce.

* * *

Fancy falling over a "natural" like this one. A combination giftring and necklace set for $2. And made of white gold . . . set with semi-precious stones, birth stones at that. The way to make a whole lot of gesture in your gift-giving and still manage your three squares a day!

* * *

Sip into these slips and know you aren't slipping! They're the talk of the town . . . the bargains of the hour . . . the answer to many "maidens' prayers." For not only do they charm feminine hearts with their dainty laces and smartly tailored edges . . . but they have the newest of the new—a moisture-proof panel set into the back. A non-twistable, noncreasable, non-most-everything type of slip that is a joy in hot weather. $3.95.

See the new gypsy bands to encircle your little tummies! Two-way stretchers, of course . . . in every pastel shade to liven up your underpinnings (also white), $3.95. And bandeaux to match are $1.

SPEAK UP, SISTERS :-: Glances Into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance :-: By MARION BRUNOT

Night School Opens New World for Older Women

Mrs. Addie Atkins, past middle life, until a few months ago, could neither read nor write.

Now she can do both. Books are an open field to her. She can write a leter to the friend in the South.

She is very happy. When she gave her reading at graduation it was indicated in her gestures, her voice. The very poise of the woman.

Miss Brunot

A new world had been opened for her, and she was glad.

It was like seeing the flowers bloom for the first time. It was like rain after a long dry season.

Mrs. Addie Atkins gave a recitation entitled: "TOUSSANT L'OVERTURE." As I sat in the big auditorium of the school house I heard of a Negro who had gathered his people together and had fought like a madman until liberty was a certainty. It had occurred in Haiti, this fight for freedom. But the consequences of it had reached far. And the little, plump, middle aged Negro woman's voice rang out as she came to the high lights of her narrative. She fired her audience with the valor of this departed man.

This happened to her in Pittsburgh. Up in Mott street, and in the public school building.

It was the end of the road of learning for the men and women whose education had come to them at an age of maturity rather than in the early 'teens. Men and women ambitious enough to give their evenings to the rudiments of knowledge. Men and women who had learned by bitter experience the disadvantages of not knowing the common educational branches.

NIGHT SCHOOLS

I wonder if you, sisters who read my column, know anything about the night school life of Pittsburgh?

Are you aware that behind the lighted windows of certain school buildings, are grown people studying the very things that your little Willie and Irma are pouring over.

Diction, mathematics, spelling, reading. All these are revealed to them, and they are as gleeful over their discoveries as are the small folk trudging home with their books.

It was a great night there in Mott street, I witnessed. What magnificant controlled energy there was on the stage. What a whoopla of indefatigible strength. With a fresh start, they were like other citizens . . . other citizens who could read and write. Singing, reciting, marching, it was as if they had been among those who were at the fall of the Tower of Babel. And they were using their new tongues, I say.

And where would they march, please?

Out into the world of steel and iron and smoke. Out into Mott street, better than ever before. New ideas all around them to grasp. New contacts to make. Hadn't they met teachers willing to give them of their knowledge. And it was like all the spirituals they had ever heard massed into one. That emotion stirring in their hearts.

TERMS TOO SHORT

Yet there are too few of these night schools. The term for them is all too short. Just a few short months out of the year, and then the pupils are back in their old groove, laying aside perhaps what they have learned. Long days for forgetfulness.

Imagine being considerably over voting age, and only learning to appreciate the Want Columns.

Can't we do more about this? Can't we be more interested in these people?

Mrs. Addie Atkins, standing on the Mott street platform, bubbling over with enthusiasm, running over with a power urgent for directing. Mrs. Addie Atkins reaching upward with the little she has and making of it more than you and I ever have dared.

"IN THE GARDEN OF TOMORROW" these men and women sang. And what were their thoughts, sisters? Rocking easily to the emotion of the music . . . What is their garden of tomorrow?

Roses in it? Weeds, perhaps? An ordered garden, one showing care? Or just a mess of everything, and nothing worth while . . .?

We are our BROTHER'S KEEPER: We are our SISTER'S KEEPER.

The MOVING FINGER WRITES . . . if it knows how.

But when it can't . . . how about it . . .?

Miss Brunot will be glad to answer letters submitted to her by readers.

One Is Never Villain of One's Own Story, Says Fay King

By FAY KING

If there is one universal talent in this world it is that of being the hero or heroine of one's own life story.

No matter how wrong, unreasonable or unwise we may have been at times, we all seem to have the gift for turning this into alibis and justifications.

We may imagine we are going to be utterly frank, fair and unbiased, yet somehow it invariably turns out that the other fellow is always the "villain." Everybody else is entirely to blame.

Yet when others concerned relate the same facts, the result is exactly the same. Circumstances undoubtedly point in their favor.

Is it not a little amazing that one is never the "villain" of one's own story, and no other is ever the hero?

Contract Bridge -:- -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

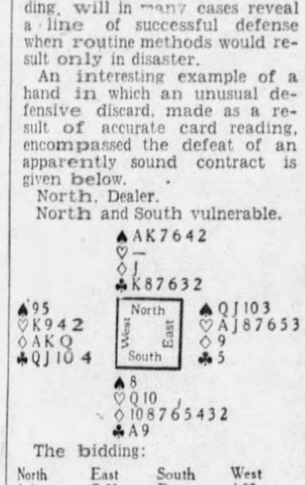
By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Discarding an Ace

Inferences drawn from the bidding are sign-posts, as it were, by which a player seeks to bridge the gap between his own hand and that of his partner. A study of the Dummy in connection with the player's own hand, combined with the bidding, will in many cases reveal a line of successful defense when routine methods would result only in disaster.

An interesting example of a hand in which an unusual defensive discard, made as a result of accurate card reading, encompassed the defeat of an apparently sound contract is given below.

North, Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.



The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	2 ♡	Pass	4 ♡
Pass	Pass	Pass

While North has only 2½ honor-tricks, the distribution of his hand is such that it certainly warrants the Open bid. Unfortunately perhaps from his viewpoint, he is prevented from showing his club suit by West's immediate Jump to game.

South opened his singleton spade in response to his partner's bid. North won with the King and returned the Ace, and at this point, after East followed suit, South made the play which forms the basis of this story. He reasoned that North must have some high card outside the spade suit as the basis of his Opening bid. That card could not be in diamonds and therefore it seemed certain that he must hold the club King, and it also seemed probable that he held a long club suit which, in view of the holding in Dummy, might be worthless. The chance to defeat the contract appeared to South to rest upon securing two club tricks or one club trick plus a ruff. Therefore he discarded the club Ace, and when North to the third trick led the King, played the nine. This of course was a tip-off to North, who continued with the second round of clubs, and when East ruffed with the Knave, South over-ruffed with the Queen, and defeated the contract one trick. Another line of play which would have brought the same result, but which would have bordered very much upon the supernatural, is to lay down the Ace of clubs, then shift to the spade 8, and when North continues with the second round of spades, play the club nine. This line, like the one actually followed, would have permitted South to make a trick with a trump, but the play might have been one to make Declarer a present of his contract rather than to defeat it. South's correct Opening was unquestionably the suit his partner bid, and his discard of the club Ace was evidence of good card reading.

TOMORROW'S HAND

North, Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.

The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Church Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—I am a convert in the Catholic Church, and I intend to be married very soon. I know very little about the laws of this church, and am wondering if you will help me solve some of my problems. I intend to be married in church. Will it be necessary to have a mass? Does the bridesmaid have to be Catholic?

2—Will I need a flower girl? Must I wear a veil, or may I wear a hat? Do I have to have long gloves, or what type of gloves do I wear? GRACE.

1—It is most important that you go to the priest in your church and speak with him about all the details with which you are not familiar. He will explain everything in a most clear and friendly and co-operative way, and tell you just what to do.

2—You will not need a flower girl, though you may have one if you wish. And you may have your wedding of a formal type, wearing a veil, or you may wear informal clothes with a hat. And your choice makes the decision, too, about wearing gloves . . . . they are not necessary.

Given in Marriage :-: A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Summoned to See Stranger

My father never shows astonishment at anything, but at my exclamation that Lee Chow was the man who had shot Dicky, and that Hugh knew it, he drew the car to the side of the road, stopped it, and turned to me.

"Has Hugh said anything to you which would warrant you in believing that?" he asked, and I wondered if I only imagined the sternness which seemed to be in his voice.

"Not a word," I answered. "But after the queer way in which Lee Chow behaved, and his vague threats, I could not help seeing that you and Hugh were taking certain precautions, and that you two, with Harry Underwood, were not surprised when Dicky came home wounded."

"I see," he said slowly. "My compliments to you, my darling. Your deductions are shrewd and correct. There is nothing to be gained by keeping you in ignorance of what we know and suspect. If you had no suspicion of the truth, I should advocate keeping you in ignorance."

"No, no," I murmured, and my father put his hand over my twisting fingers.

"I shall tell you everything I know before you sleep," he said. "Will that suffice you?"

"Of course," I said decidedly.

"Then"—he took his hands from mine and started the car again—"we will get home as quickly as possible."

CHILDREN SAFE

"Why?" I could not keep back the question which was choking me. "Are you afraid that Lee Chow will try to hurt the children?"

"No, no!" He almost shouted the denial. "The children are perfectly safe from him. Hugh is certain of that, he says. Now you must wait until we get to the farm before I tell you anything more."

He sent the car forward at a rate even faster than his usual speed, and my brain again began to send out little tendrils of deduction.

He was in a tearing hurry to get home, for some reason which he had not seen fit to explain to me, yet he was not afraid of any harm coming to the children. He never has deceived me, and I know that he had spoken only the truth when he said Hugh had declared them to be in no danger whatever.

Dicky was safe in the hospital, with the added precaution of Hugh's presence near him.

Then why?

It was with a little thrill of adventure, in which terror was only a minor factor, that I realized what my father's insistence upon getting home meant. He must suddenly have concluded, as he sat by the side of the road, that I myself was in danger from Lee Chow, and he was hastening to get me to the shelter and safety of the farm.

WANTED IN LIBRARY

Neither of us spoke again as the car, under my father's skillful guidance, raced along the road and through the gate. When we drew up to the veranda steps Jim's stolid, dependable figure rose from the lowest step where he had been sitting.

"Mr. Underwood said you were to please come to the library as soon as you came in," he said. "He told me you were to watch your step when you come into the room."

I could sense my father's sudden alertness, although not a muscle of face or body changed.

"Thank you, Jim," he said. "Did Mr. Underwood tell you what you were to do after you had given us this message?"

"Yes, sir; he said to come along with you, and wait outside the library door in case I was needed."

"Is Mr. Underwood alone in the library, Jim?"

"I don't rightly know, sir," the man answered. "I haven't seen anybody come in, and Katie says everybody in the house has gone to bed. But—I may be mistook, but—I thought I heard somebody else's voice talking to Mr. Underwood."

My father pounced upon the admission as if he were an accomplished mouser.

"Did you know the voice, Jim?" he asked.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Swelling of the Neck Glands

"Will a stocking wrapped around the neck at night prevent sore throat and swollen glands?"

"Are enlarged glands a sign of serious disease or infection?"

Dr. Copeland

These questions appeared in my mail this week-end. Since they are similar to other questions recently asked, I will answer them in detail.

Of course a stocking wrapped around the neck is not a cure for sore throat or swollen glands. It is true the added warmth is soothing and certainly no harm can result from this old-fashioned remedy. But it is equally true that more scientific measures must be taken to obtain a complete cure.

Enlarged gland, or "adenitis," as it is spoken of medically, is a sign of an infection of some sort. As a rule, the glands of the neck, face and jaw are the ones most frequently involved. Normally, we do not know we have glands. They are quite unnoticed, but when they are inflamed, they become enlarged and tender to the touch.

When these particular glands enlarge it is usually a sign of some infection in the head, face or neck. It may be that the nasal sinuses, the teeth, tonsils, ears or gums are infected. Occasionally, they become enlarged and tender after a severe cold, the grippe, bronchitis, or the "flu."

"Cervical adenitis" is the term used to describe swelling of the glands of the neck. This is a common occurrence among children. It must never be ignored, because it may be a sign of some possible important disturbance. Every effort should be made to find the underlying cause.

In children, this symptom is usually a symptom of enlarged and diseased tonsils or adenoids. But, as I have indicated, it may be the only warning of something more serious. For example, it may be the forerunner of an infectious or "catching" disease, such as diptheria, scarlet fever, measles or influenza. If in doubt, my advice is to consult with your family physician.

There is one variety of adenitis about which I wish to warn you. This is the form of cervical andentis in which the glands of both sides of the neck are swollen and tender and the patient runs a constant fever. Tuberculosis must certainly be suspected if one or two glands break down and discharge pus.

Not all infected glands are caused by tuberculosis, of course. But every care must be taken to decide definitely whether the swollen glands are due to that trouble. This is best determined by an X-ray examination of the chest and a microscopic study of the pus obtained from the gland. Though adenitis is more commonly a childhood complaint, it afflicts adults as well. Neglect of a swollen gland may lead to a more serious disturbance. It is best to find out about the disorder in its early stages. By doing this successful measures can be taken to prevent severe complications.

BUDGETING FOR BRIDESMAIDS

Below, a luscious peach mousseline de soie bridesmaid's frock, trimmed with quaint self-pleatings and a little girl sash in brown taffeta. Center, a white mousseline de soie gown for the all-white wedding attendant to wear. The cascading rear ruffles will look swell on the aisle. The third model is pink crepe with panels of tulle ruching, and detachable tulle sleeves.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

IF YOU ARE spending the spring being "often a bridesmaid, but seldom a bride," the problem of friendship is getting all mixed up with economic snarls. The day has perished when brides were as able as they were delighted to give a pretty frock to each of the pretty girls invited to pace them to the altar—and yet girls like to have wedding parties and to be part of them.

* * *

ONE SMART young lady in these parts has solved the problem by wearing the same white mousseline do soie frock to each of three weddings at which she has assisted, letting a new hat and a new bouquet scheme act as camouflage, and very successfully, too. The all-white wedding, as you know, is a pretty swank thing this season, involving white clad attendants and an ice blue or ice green or pale pastel bride.

* * *

IT IS THE TRUTH, too, that a bit of careful sleuthing will reveal many an inexpensive dinner frock type of garment, which, with the aid of hat and flowers, looks very bridesmaidy. It is not at all necessary to pick one's gown out of the trousseau department, where processions and schemes on the grand scale are to be expected, along with their appropriate prices.

There are plenty of sweet, gracious little numbers for less than the price of your best evening slippers that would just dote on getting into a center aisle parade, and which would do their wearer proud.

Models from Orbach's. Copyright, 1934, King Features Snyd., Inc.

Household Hints

Ribbons used for lingerie purposes should be washed in warm, soapy water, rinsed in clear warm water, and then in cold water. Instead of ironing wind them carefully round a clean glass bottle and leave there until quite dry. By this process the ribbons look almost like new, and are just stiff enough.

Linseed oil is excellent for shabby stained floors, oak furniture that will not polish well, and linoleum that has become shabby, or has a surface which does not take a good polish. A little linseed oil should be warmed in an old saucepan; half a saucer will go a long way. Dirty floors should be scrubbed and dried before oiling.

Only "Prescribed" Permanent Waving solutions give lasting beauty with safety!

Is it logical to believe that sensible women attempt to cure all their ills with one "Cure-All" patent medicine? Certainly NOT! Yet many will unknowingly let any permanent wave operator put chemical preparations on their hair—chemicals that may be suited to one type of hair and then again may be very injurious to their particular type of hair. That is the reason there is so much dissatisfaction in permanent waves. The hair either loses its lustre after the first wash, it becomes dry and brittle or any of a dozen complaints are heard . . . All of which are the direct results of chemical reactions on the hair from improperly applied chemicals! Technique of the coiffure is an art apart, and while there are many very competent operators, few realize the importance of equipping themselves with the knowledge of chemistry as it applies to the hair. Over seven years ago I began an intensive study of this subject in collaboration with chemists of reliable reputation in one of the research laboratories of a local university. Knowledge gained from these experiments is now being used to the advantage of women who patronize my studios.

If you have been dissatisfied with your permanent wave heretofore, I invite you to call for an appointment at my studio that I may examine and prescribe the proper course of treatment and chemical preparation that will give you the maximum in beauty, lustre and depth in lasting permanent waves.

Old Family Custom Braces Young

Robert Young, who is appearing with Walter Connolly and Doris Kenyon in "Whom the Gods Destroy," paced nervously up and down a Columbia sound stage. The cameras were set for his first scene. He appeared to be sparring for time. Suddenly a messenger boy appeared with a telegram and Bob's face broke into smiles. The telegram was signed "Betty and Carol Anne." All it said was "good luck." You see, it is an old family custom of the Young menage. Betty and Carol Anne are his wife and little daughter. They send him a good luck telegram at the beginning of every picture.

Reading of Novel Delayed By Film News Calls

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., May 2.—Hello! Well, today I'll relax . . . I'd sorta like sitting around at home. I have to finish reading "Little Man, What Now?" I wonder how they'll film some of those scenes? . . . Oh, there's the phone again—to revamp an ancient phrase "There's no rest for the guy who can get the other fellow's name in print." . . . It was Austin Parker's praise agent, revealing the AMAZING news that Austin has completed his latest novel (I didn't know he ever wrote one before) called "Anger in the Sky." He's off to Palm Springs.

One of blvd. snoopers telegrams to say that James Timony, Mae West's shadow (but slightly larger) walked off the set. Could that be considered news?

Jack Robbins, the music publisher, calls up. He giggles. It was funny about those two ditties, "Dancing in the Moonlight" and "You've Got Everything," being tossed out of two pictures: "Footlight Parade" and "Hollywood Party"—and both are hits. But that's Hollywood—and talking pictures. Now, to get back to "Little Man, What Now?" (I'm certainly living up to the title).

A telegram arrives—Ralph Morgan's publicity woman wires that he just had five stitches in his jaw. Toothie trouble. Could THAT be news? . . . A messenger boy calls with a tip—it's Ross Clarke who has been sending all those red tulips and Eastern lilacs to Merry Fahrney, who has been seriously ill with a heart ailment.

Well, I guess I won't read any more of "Little Man, What Now?" . . . and so to lunch.

* * *

Ray Mayer send in a note—

Solly Violinsky and I passed Rex Weber, recently arrived.

"Who's that guy?" asked Solly.

"He's the fellow who made such a hit in New York singing 'Brother, Can You Spare a Dime?'"

"He'll sing it again—if he stays here long enough!" cracked Solly.

Wanderings about Hollywood . . . Talk about your superstitions! There's a certain ex-movie star who is never permitted to sit in the front row of footlight piece at any opening. Managers consider her a jinx and warn box office men. Before they got wise she was planted in the front row of 11 flops . . . Steve Roberts has moved his megaphone over to RKO, and that gives Al Hall a chance to direct Sylvia Sidney in "One Way Ticket."

Male Fashion note by Marlene Dietrich—

Marlene's latest summer and very masculine attire consists of white flannel trousers and patch-pocket, single-breasted coat to match. Black lace handkerchief in upper left pocket. White silk shirt (collar attached) and blue and white polka-dotted bow tie. The outfit is completed by a white felt slouch hat set at a rakish angle.

Wanderings around town . . . Eric Linden hasn't yet explained his return to pictures. He quit some months ago because his sweetie just up and married another actor! Maybe it's that little blonde who put his busted heart together again . . . Evelyn Venable and Hal Mohr have been sandwich knick-knacking . . . Walt (Mickey Mouse) Disney always stops for a nibble at a fried chicken before polo mallet swinging on Sundays . . . Blue-eyed Maxie Doyle had her option picked up by Warners . . . Doug Fowley, recently signed by Universal, has been night spotting it around with Jane Barnes . . . Gene Mann, the 10 per center, goes in for spooks and can actually do that mysterious table-lifting routine . . . Joey Ray is carrying out the bow-tie craze, started again by Bing Crosby . . . Betty Furness tossed off a right snappy cocktail party for Mary Jane Moore, the New York deb . . . Little David Jack Holt, kiddie actor, was the last in the cast of Harold Lloyd's new funny film, "The Cat's Paw" . . . While Robert Armstrong was digging his swimming pool he half expected to find gold, but didn't.

Parisian

Anna Sten plays the title role in the film based on Emile Zola's story of a Parisan girl, "Nana," opening a week in the Harris Family Saturday.

Overdue Room Bill Holt's Starter

An overdue hotel bill started Jack Holt on a motion picture career in 1915. Jack had breezed into San Francisco from Oregon, where he had worked as a range rider. His money gone, he found himself owing room rent. An assistant director was looking for a man to ride a horse through a raging river. Jack took the job, broke two ribs, dislocated a shoulder and became an actor. That picture was "Salomy Jane." His current starring vehicle is "Black Moon."

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

A Penner for Your Thoughts.

THE GREATEST theatrical sensation to pop up in recent years is a young, unassuming lad named Joe Penner. His income today between $10,000 and $15,000 weekly—which is not bad for a 29-year-old lad to whom Broadway would never give a tumble.

To discuss Penner's amazing success is to pay tribute to the fantastic power of the radio. It was just about nine months ago that he, a then unimportant comic, was booked for a single appearance on a Rudy Vallee program.

Joe was an overnight sensation. The stock phrases he had been using for years suddenly became household words. "You nasty man" and "Don't ever do that," delivered with Penner's inflections, became as much a part of our lingo as "So's your old man" and "Is it hot enough for you?" And his subsequent rise to the dizziest of heights is almost without precedent.

It is almost without precedent because, as I said before, Broadway would never give him a tumble. Practically without exception, your great radio comics were Broadway favorites before they hit the microphones. Rogers, Allen, Benny, Cohan, Jolson, Wynn, Cantor, Baker—all of these had been accepted by Broadway long before the great majority of radio fans knew they existed.

Not so with Joe Penner. Here was a lad who never appealed to the wise mob. He has appeared twise on Broadway, once in a musical tagged "East Wind" and the second time in a conglomeration known as the "Vanderbilt Revue." Both productions were quick flops, "East Wind" lasting two weeks, and the "Vanderbilt Revue"—if my memory doesn't fail me—struggling along for four.

The wise boys are still unable to comprehend the whole thing. They watch the crowds storming the doors of any theater in which Penner plays, and they cannot believe their eyes. And they actually comfort themselves with the thought that it can't last.

Well, maybe it can't. But you just give me fifteen grand a week for a couple of years—and if it doesn't last any longer, it's strictly okay with me . . .

It's okay with Joe Penner, too. I dropped backstage at the State to see him the other afternoon and, to my amazement, I found that the boy hasn't changed a bit. He hasn't started to wear a bathtub for a hat, and I doubt that he ever will.

"They're not kidding me, Mark," he said. "I don't feel any different from the way I did a year ago, except for the comfort of the money that will protect my future. I suppose I'm something of a vogue now. But we both know that it can't last forever.

"I have the same friends now that I've always had. My wife and I never played too extensively, and I see no reason to start at this stage of the game. I'm working hard—six and seven shows a day are no cinch—and I haven't time for much else. Toss in my radio work, and you can see that I haven't many hours to spare.

"But I'll keep working this way as long as they'll let me. Then I'll rest. And I'll rest by traveling just as far and as long as I can. That's my ambition. And if that ambition isn't worth working for, I don't know what is."

A level-headed guy . . .

Joe Penner was born in a small town on the outskirts of Budapest, Hungary, and landed in this country just nineteen years ago. He went to school in Detroit, Michigan, and stepped on a stage for the first time when he entered a local Charlie Chaplin imitation contest. There were twenty kids in that contest. A few months ago, in Cleveland, this same boy was asked to judge another contest in which some 200 kids were entered. It was a Joe Penner contest.

Joe had plenty of odd jobs before he finally landed in burlesque. He was an office boy in the Ford factory, a choir boy at thirty-eight cents a week, a magician's assistant, a magazine subscription salesman "who wanted to work his way through college," and so on and so forth. He then drifted into burlesque, playing in such woebegone Mutual wheel attractions as "Laffin' Thru" and the "Bandbox Revue."

When he graduated from burlesque, the road was pretty tough going. He played in road shows, night clubs, vaudeville. The folks around this country seemed to like him a lot. But as soon as he neared Broadway, he couldn't make the big grade.

That Broadway angle, he says, sometimes makes him plenty unhappy. He wishes the wise boys would like his work, and it's an understandable wish. But the Broadway of today is such an insignificant part of the amusement world that Penner can really afford to ignore it.

At least, I think so. A Joe Penner book is soon to be published. The Marx company, greatest of the toy manufacturers, will soon place a number of Joe Penner toys on the market. The Penner radio contract for next year calls for twice this year's sum. The movies are angling with big hooks. And meanwhile—while he's waiting—the man is knocking out his ten to fifteen thousand dollars a week.

But Broadway doesn't like him. Tch, tch, tch, tch.

Penner's agent is the same man who has handled him for nine years. Their contract expired four years ago, and they never signed a new one. Still Penner pays him every week. There are bigger agents than Penner's in the field—but Joe waves them all away. His agent stuck when the going was tough; now it's Joe's turn to stick. I think that's swell.

Show business is a strange game. It produces a thousand heartbreaks for every success. But when that success turns out to be a decent, unegotistical kid like Joe Penner—that, at least, is some compensation.

Although Katharine Cornell had announced she would have to skip Pennsylvania in her tour because Pittsburgh and Philadelphia are the only cities where drama can find a stage, she has made arrangements to appear in "The Barrets of Wimpole Street," in Zembo Temple, Harrisburg, May 8, and in a Williamsport theater May 9, her only Pennsylvania stops this season. She plans to play repertory in New York next season, so it will be some time before she will be seen again in Pittsburgh.

For two years Gloria Stuart has been making a two-reel movie based on life incidents snapped at random. She has sold it to Universal for $10,000.

MUSIC FESTIVAL TO HONOR GAUL

Harvey Gaul, Pittsburgh musician and writer, will receive the appreciation of the city's music circles Friday night when nearly 100 persons will take part in a musical festival in his honor in Carnegie Music Hall.

Gaul has established himself as an organist, choirmaster, teacher, lecturer and writer and composer and has been director of music at Calvary Episcopal Church since 1911.

In writing about him, T. Scott Burman, editor of the American Organist, said:

"Pittsburgh has been doing a great deal to honor Stephen Foster after everybody was sure he was dead, but what an improvement it is to see the city doing honor to a vastly greater composer while everybody is sure he is considerably alive."

Gaul has published more than 200 compositions, some of which have been awarded prizes. A few of these will be presented on Friday's program.

The University of Pittsburgh's Spring Festival, including sports events, tapping exercises, an inter-sorority float parade and a dance, opened today in Pitt Stadium.

According to Miss Enice Natali, general chairman of co-ed sports scheduled for the three-day campus festivities, the women's sport pageant will be inter-class instead of inter-sorority, this year.

Assisting Miss Natali are Catherine McGuire, Ruth Anderson, Janet Savage, Vera Kost, Alice Rosenberger, Dorothy Kaufman and Charlotte Atwell.

DICKENS' LOVE LETTERS

reappearance had superseded everything else for the moment; but after the first meeting or so the novelty wore off, the rushing tide of his strenuous life flowed on and Maria's antiquated little boat was swamped in the fleet of friendships and business activities—a condition of which she was becoming painfully aware.

And this brings up the tremendously vital problem which underlies the whole of the second series of letters in his correspondence.

In the indiscreet warmth of those intimate letters "all to herself" Dickens had exposed himself to an embarrassing danger; and in his saner moments after the first flush of excitement he was evidently hard put for excuses that would let himself out gracefully, without antagonizing her. In this dilemma it will be seen that he used considerable strategy.

Georgina Hogarth, his sister-in-law, wrote that Dickens and his wife "were totally unsuited to each other in almost every respect," and that they had "lived unhappily for years."

It is quite possible that in 1855 this had already become more or less noised about, and had it come to light that there was to be an open rupture the public, always hungry for scandal, would, of course, have been curious to find out who was at fault.

Mrs. Dickens being a plain, unobtrusive home body, the suspicion would naturally fall on the more romantic head of the family, who was constantly moving about among all sorts of people, and exposed to all sorts of temptation.

(All Dickens' letters to Maria Beadnell, copyright, 1934, by Christy and Moore, Ltd. Arrangement copyright, 1934, by John F. Lille Co.

Tomorrow's installment reveals Dickens' strategy in handling his middle-life association with Maria Beadnell Winter, which seems to have become embarrassing.

Fewer Put Funds in Stocks

By B. C. FORBES

WASHINGTON HAS shown such eagerness to "soak savers" that fewer Americans are putting their money into securities.

Mr. Forbes

After all, America rose to first rank among the industrial nations of the world because individuals and families who had saved money were willing to invest it in business and industrial enterprises.

Without capital, which is only another name for savings, no nation can develop its resources and attain wealth and leadership.

Why are savers today hesitant to become investors?

Because of Washington's attitude.

Rightly or wrongly, many people have become imbued with the idea that Washington politicians have scant regard for investors, that there is an alarming tendency among them to show scant consideration for those who have exercised thrift, economy, self-denial in order to accumulate a nest-egg.

Unless and until this apprehension can be cleared away, the nation cannot possibly go ahead full steam.

"Money makes the mare go"—also nations.

WHAT ARE the facts?

This will astonish you: During 1930, 1931, 1932, although business was then declining, corporations increased the number of their stockholders at the rate of 14 per cent annually.

Last year, under the New Deal, the increase shriveled to less than 1 per cent.

The feeling has become widespread that brain trusters and many bureaucrats at Washington are eager to punish those who have saved money in order to cater to those who have not saved money. The brain trusters, etc., champion what they euphoniously call "a redistribution of wealth" by taking from those who have something for the purpose of aiding those who have saved nothing.

DR. DANIEL STARCH, in his authoritative annual compilation of stockholders, published in a business magazine, states:

"Actual figures for 151 corporations shows 9,406,945 stockholders in 1933, compared with 9,337,024 in 1932, an increase of 69,921. This gain of 0.7 per cent came from increases in the stockholders of 62 corporations. The other 89 companies reported losses in investors."

He gives as reasons for this serious halt in the previous vigorous upward trend in the number of stockholders:

"The securities act with its stringent regulations on the sale of securities; uncertainty about the status of the dollar, which apparently did more to discourage investors by the confusion it caused than to attract them by its promise of inflation; and the NRA, which led many companies to doubt whether they could operate at a profit, and hence made them reluctant to raise more capital for operating expansion, even though the general level of business activity might have warranted it."

Another authority points out that not a few companies today have more stockholders than employes.

"The Bell System, including Western Electric and the Bell Telephone Laboratories, at the end of last year had 270,000 employes against 680,939 stockholders of the parent company alone," he says. "Likewise General Motors, Radio Corporation, United States Steel, Pennsylvania Railroad, General Electric, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Consolidated Gas, Public Service of New Jersey, Packard Motor Car, Standard Brands, Curtiss Wright, International Nickel, Bethlehem Steel, Chase National Bank, National City Bank, Irving Trust, National Dairy Products and scores of other companies have more stockholders than employes."

THE FOLLOWING table lists corporations that have upwards of 100,000 stockholders, along with the change from the previous year:

NEW DEAL NOW IN PERIOD OF TRANSITION

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, May 2.—It becomes increasingly apparent that the New Deal is soaking to pass over from the idea phase to the execution stage.

Mr. Rukeyser

Experience is also demonstrating anew that the brilliant idea man is not necessarily a good administrator.

The challenge to the executive is to develop a better and more effective administrative machine.

In private business, the same transition must be made after the early days of a new enterprise. Sooner or later, it becomes apparent that the enthusiastic promoter, who drew up the prospectus, lacks the seasoned judgment needed to make correct day to day decisions.

Business should welcome ideas, but once the objective has been formulated and the general course set it is important to keep moving in the chosen direction, instead of swerving purposelessly from side to side in accordance with an endless array of inconsistent proposals.

The bright young man, with a fluent tongue, is not necessarily a capable executive.

Gen. R. E. Wood, president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., tests the soundness of his "brilliant" newcomers by trying them out in an administrative job as store manager.

The president of one of the immensely successful foodstuff companies, in chatting with me about this subject the other day, said:

"We do well whenever we follow common sense principles, and analyze our market carefully. When we visualize our job in simple terms of efficiency in production and energy in merchandising we get satisfactory results. On the other hand, whenever we are sold by some fancy idea we find such procedure expensive."

Of course, in public and in private affairs, event the ablest chief executives are occasionally made suckers.

Their primary job is to know when to say "yes" and when to say "no."

Sometimes, however, the smooth talker gets them off on a tangent.

RADIO EARNINGS IMPROVE

NEW YORK, May 2.—(AP.)—Radio Corporation of America reported first quarter net profit of

STOCKS MOVE IN NARROW RANGE

NEW YORK, May 2.—The stock market mills ground slowly today as the meager speculative fuel appeared to be without any appreciable motivating force.

Trading during the greater part of the session was at the dullest pace of the year to date. The ticker tape barely moved at times. Even the so-called professional seemed to be more timid than usual and there was little or no public participation. News of a stimulating nature was lacking, for the most part, and only a few scattered specialties were able to climb out of the rut.

Wheat dipped and rallied nervously. There were more reports of rains that would aid the crops. Other cereals showed some improvement. Cotton rallied $1 or more a bale, but lost part of this under profit taking. Silver futures were a little better than even, although the bar metal lifted ⅞ of a cent an ounce to 42⅝ cents. Rubber was fairly firm. Bonds were mixed. Dollar rates were mildly irregular.

RADIO RISES

Radio preferred A got up 5 points and the B stock 2 on the corporation's bright first quarter showing and indications that some dividend might be declared later in the year if good business continued. United States Smelting, Dome and McIntyre advanced a point or more. Spiegel, May, Stern dropped 4 and American Telephone lost another 2 points. Celanese, Industrial Rayon and Allied Chemical recovered about a point each. Auburn came back 2, but the other motors did nothing. The rails, alcohols, steels and aircrafts were almost silent. Consolidated gas eased and the other utilities were hesitant.

Further pressure on American Telephone, and some selling in other public utility issues, reflected the announcement of the New York Public Service Commission that it had taken steps toward a reduction in rates charged by the New York Telephone Company and six other telephone and power and light companies throughout the state.

BUY GOLD STOCKS

Scattered buying in the gold mining stocks was said to have been based on opposition to the new Canadian tax as well as hopes that, sooner or later, the administration may again boost the domestic price of the metal in order to assist the recently lagging commodities. Most banking quarters, however, were of the opinion that less dependence was now being placed on the gold rate as a price stimulator and it was not believed more dollar devaluation was contemplated at this time.

A loud chorus of protests came from brokerage circles regarding Counsel Pecora's figures on Wall street's gains during the period when the public figuratively "lost its shirt" in the market and subsequently pawned the rest of its garments. Claims were advanced that, if the income statements of various commission men were analyzed, it would be found the majority went into the "red" along with the customers. In the meantime, it was the consensus in boardrooms that publication of the so-called "profits" of stock exchange members, together with Congressional debate on the control bill, had cast a wet blanket on market activity.

STEEL UPTREND CONTINUES

NEW YORK, May 2.—(AP.)—Steel production has made another gain in the past week, rising two points to 58 per cent of capacity or close to last July's top, Iron Age said today.

The rate of expansion, the review stated, was retarded by labor difficulties in automobile plants which resulted in temporary suspension of steel shipments.

Just how high the rate will go is a matter of conjecture. The assumption that a large part of recent contract coverage represents speculative tonnage and that output will necessarily suffer a sharp drop after the completion of this quarter may not be entirely justified.

April pig iron production was 12 per cent above March and reached the highest rate since last August. A further expansion for May is indicated by a net increase of 13 active blast furnaces since April 1. Total pig iron output last month was 1,754,647 tons, against 1,619,534 in March.

Market Seat Sells At $10,000 Decline

NEW YORK, May 2.—The price of New York Stock Exchange memberships declined $10,000 today. Arrangements were made for sale of a "seat" at $130,000, compared with $140,000 paid in the last transaction, which was recorded April 12.

Corporate Earnings

Shell Union Oil Company and subsidiaries report for the quarter ended March 31 net loss of $41,091 against net loss of $9,239,550 in the like period last year.

Electric Bond and Share Company net income for the 12 months ended March 31 was $10,507,025 compared with $12,009,396 for the previous year. After dividends on the preferred stocks there was a balance of $2,073,095 against $3,575,466 a year ago.

Parmelee Transportation Company and subsidiaries report for the March quarter shows consolidated net loss of $94,314, after interest, depreciation, etc., compared with net loss of $390,863 in the first quarter of 1933.

Standard Oil Company of California first quarter net profit was $3,321,591, after charges, equal to 25c a share on 13,102,900 shares, compared with $718,988 deficit in the first quarter of 1933.

Briggs & Stratton Corporation earned net profit of $210,313 in the March quarter, equal to 70 cents a share, against $1,324 in the first quarter of 1933.

Purity Bakeries Corporation in the 16 weeks ended April 21 earned $73,428 or 10 cents a share on outstanding common stock, against $116,094 or 15 cents in 1933.

HARTNETT CENTRAL FIGURE IN CUBS' FINE SHOWING

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Birkofer Sets Example.
Staff Standout to Date.
Kid Backstop's Big Leap.
Indians Still Seek Myer.
Famous Blood in Derby.
Boxer-Wrestler Debate.

If some of the other Pittsburgh pitchers pull themselves together and follow the pace being set for them by Ralph Birkofer, the Pirates soon will be on the upgrade. So far, the husky young left-hander has delivered the only impressive pitching produced by the Buccaneer staff. Only three times in the first 11 games did a local hurler go the distance, and Birkofer was the performer on two of those occasions, accounting for one-third of the club's victories up to today.

Ralph Birkofer

The southpaw did a neat job in almost blanking the Cubs yesterday for their first defeat of the season on the road. In holding the league's most powerful offensive club to five hits, featuring the exhibition by setting Chuck Klein down four times in a row and permitting him to knock only one ball out of the infield, Birkofer placed to his credit one of the best mound performances of the spring, besides driving in two of his team's four runs. It won't be due to any lack of a good example if the other Corsair chuckers don't brace up in their work.

The great difference that good pitching makes in the general form of a club was shown in the improved play of the Pirates. It was their best game of the home season to date.

The Bucs continue to be the only club in the league holding the edge over Charley Root. Yesterday's victory was their eighteenth at his expense against 14 defeats. Pittsburgh is the only team in the circuit against which Root has lost more games than he has won.

HAYES MAKES AMAZING JUMP TO MAJORS

From a prep school team in 1933 to filling the shoes of Mickey Cochrane behind the bat for the A's in 1934, is the amazing jump with which young Frank Hayes has startled the baseball world. Magazine editors might reject as being too improbable and far-fetched the story of this 19-year-old schoolboy who made the big league grade overnight. Just a year ago Hayes was an ordinary prep school catcher in Pennington, N. J. An old friend of Connie Mack induced the aged manager to give the kid a trial. Connie did so, and saw little to enthuse him. But that was last year.

Recently Charley Berry was injured and Mack had to send Hayes in to catch. The result has the American League still gasping. Hayes has been handling the young pitchers of the A's in fine fashion, tossing out the league's Ben Chapmans on the bases, and winning games with timely hits off such famous pitchers as Gomez, Whitehill and Uhle. Bill Dickey, Yankee backstop, pronounces the boy one of the future stars of the game; a natural not to be stopped by anything; still green, but smart and learning so fast you can see him do it. Hayes says it's all like a dream to him. When, as a kid in short pants only a few years ago, he used to go wild at the spectacle of Babe Ruth socking a home run, he didn't think he'd ever be back there calling them against Ruth, so that Babe wouldn't get those homers. The biggest thrill he gets, he says, is when he calls for a pitch that makes Ruth strike out.

TRADE OF MYER FOR PITCHER UP AGAIN

The proposed deal whereby Second Baseman Buddy Myer would go from Washington to Cleveland in exchange for a pitcher has bobbed up again. The Washington management has renewed its efforts to get a hurler from the Indians, offering to pay big money for a first-string man.

Buddy Myer

Cleveland is willing to part with a pitcher, but insists on player help in exchange, and has repeated its demand for Myer in the deal. Thus far, Clark Griffith and Joe Cronin have refused, but the Indians still have hopes of getting the second sacker, based on reports that Buddy and the Senatorial bosses are not hitting it off very well.

Washington would also like to make a deal for Outfielder Joe Vosmik, realizing that the club must get more hitting power. Light hitting is only one of the factors that have held back the Senators this spring. For one thing, the players are said not to be in perfect harmony. The loss of Catcher Luke Sewell on account of a broken finger is another handicap. Then, too, the pitching staff has not functioned. Griffith rates Monte Pearson the best young hurler in the majors and predicts he will be an outstanding star for the next 10 years, but some of the other slabmen have not been delivering for the Senators. It is rumored that Alvin Crowder has lost his fast ball, and Earl Whitehill's effectiveness has been impaired by the fact that he is 15 pounds above his weight of last season.

MAN O' WAR'S PROGENY IN DERBY FIELD

While not all of his nominated descendants will be among the actual starters, Man o' War, counted by many turfmen as the greatest race horse of all time, is well represented in the list of eligibles for the Kentncky Derby Saturday. The sensation of 1919 and 1920 has on the entry roll three sons and nine "grandchildren." His sons are Holystone, Fighting Mike and Identify. The grandsons are Black Buddy, Vicar, Bill M, Norman D, Naval Cadet, Chaser and War Pledge, while Mata Hari and Jabot are granddaughters.

Man o' War himself did not run in the Derby in his eligible year, 1920, though in the same year he cleaned up the Preakness, Belmont Stakes, Jockey Club Gold Cup, Lawrence Realization, Miller Stakes, the Travers and the Withers. His daughter, Jabot, by the way, being a Whitney filly, will carry on Saturday the same Eaton blue and brown silks that were carried in 1915 by Regret, the only filly that ever won the Derby.

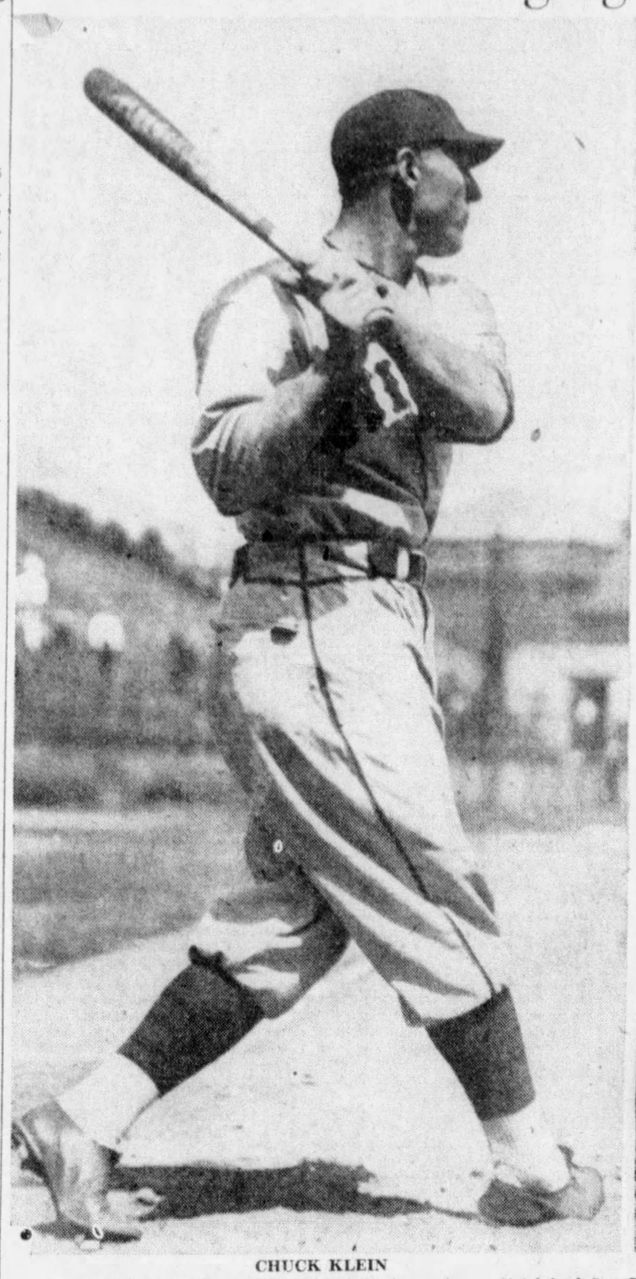
CARNERA FIGURED EASY FOR BROWNING

The age-old question as to which would be the winner if a boxer and a wrestler were brought together in the ring came up for discussion again recently while a fanfest was being held by a group of grapplers. They decided that Jim Browning, one of the mat championship claimants, could beat Primo Carnera, heavyweight fistic champion, in two minutes. They pointed out, as most fans have long agreed, that wrestlers can take a terrific punch, and that the contest would be over as soon as the boxer came near enough to the wrestler to make it possible for the latter to grab him.

Jim Browning

A bystander suggested that while the match might be very brief, it would also be very interesting, and that some enterprising promoter could make a large pile of money by staging such a contest. This boxing-wrestling argument has been going on ever since Frank Gotch was king of the wrestlers and Jack Johnson ruled the boxers, but except in the cases of a few minor performers at carnivals and the like, no successful attempt has ever been made to carry the debate into the ring.

Chuck Klein A-Swinging and 'Frisco Italians in Big Show



CHUCK KLEIN

The addition of Chuck Klein, hard-hitting outfielder, obtained from the Phillies, is generally credited with having made the Chicago Cubs the powerful outfit they are in this year's pennant race. Camilli and Lavagetto are two products of the Italian district of San Francisco, which also sent Ping Bodic, Babe Pinelli and Tony Lazzeri to the majors. Lavagetto is the new second baseman of the Pirates and Camilli is filling in for Manager Lefty Grimm at first base for the Chicago Cubs, who conclude their series here today.

DOLPH CAMILLI — HARRY LAVAGETTO

In the Pacific Coast League, Lavagetto played for Oakland and Camilli for Sacramento, so they're accustomed to opposing each other. Both are playing a good grade of baseball for their first year in the major leagues. These are Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph pictures.

WESTMORELAND NETTERS OUT OF LOOP A

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

The makeup of Division A of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association League remains in doubt with release of word yesterday that the Westmoreland Country Club, regarded for the past fortnight as a likely entry in the first flight group, has given up the idea of attempting to plunge into fast company. There is still possibility, however, that the Verona organization will sponsor a squad in Class C of the loop, final decision on this proposition to be reached within a few days.

Meanwhile several star performers, including Western Maryland Champion Frank Broida, Paul Barber, John Brown, Bob Lampus, and Eddie Alcorn, who had been counted upon as nucleus of a powerful Westmoreland entry, are without top section berth. Whether these luminaries will align as a squad with another club or split among the various remaining contenders is conjectural and may not be settled until the next P. T. A. executive committee conclave a week from tomorrow. It is likely anyway that the turn of events above noted will delay publication of the Division A schedule. Chairman Howard Burgwin, however, will probably go ahead with the Division B and C cards at once.

Dr. Dave O'Loughlin's Pitt varsity net crew, on the strength of results of matches yesterday, looms as odds-on favorite for the city, and perhaps district, college title. The Panthers, staging their initial home contest of the campaign, overwhelmed Duquesne, 9-0, while Carnegie Tech, traveling to Little Washington for its inaugural tilt, encountered similarly decisive reversal as the prexies romped to 8-1 victory.

The Tech Plebes lost, 6-1, to the Mt. Lebanon High School team on the Tech courts.

There will be no local intercollegiate play today, but tomorrow the Dukes will visit Carnegie Tech and Pitt will be at home to the Presidents. The summary of the varsity matches:

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: 15,000 MILES IN A PUSH CART—During the time of the Paris Exhibition many curious pilgrimages were made in all parts of Europe, and people did most extraordinary things in order to gain notoriety. It was reserved for Anton Hanislan, however, to make the most curious pilgrimage of all. Hanislan had a special perambulator made, into which he put his wife and daughter, and then set out on a complete tour of Europe. It lasted 22 months and he plied his way into every country and city, earning a living as he went. The trip covered 15,000 miles over all kinds of roads, winter and summer. Hanislan won a sportsman prize of $2000 for his unique venture and gained the distinction of being the most enduring pedestrian in Europe. The trip is reported in detail in the Wide World magazine of February, 1903. THE MAYFLOWER'S LAST PORT—An old weatherbeaten barn in Buckinghamshire, England, about 20 miles from London, was constructed out of the timber of the celebrated Mayflower many years ago. This barn is in Chalfont, St. Giles, near the Old Quaker Meeting House. Entering the barn, a visitor is immediately struck with the idea that he is in a ship upside down. The beams are those of the old ship. There are bits of iron used as champs. One champ in particular recalls the Mayflower's middle beam, which, according to Bradford's Journal, became cracked and bowed on the voyage. There are Mayflowers (Mary flowers) carved in the braces of the old door, and there is lettering on the beams suggesting Mayflower, Harwich.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Stressing the importance of the performances of Chuck Klein, Lonnie Warneke and one or two others in the present drive of the Cubs, the critics, as usual, have given scant notice to the athlete without whom any pace-setting club would be in sorry straits. This is one way of saying that the Bruins probably would be in some other position in the race were Charles Leo (Gabby) Hartnett unable to do his stuff daily. No team will cut many pennant didoes without a high-grade catcher.

In his thirteenth season with the Cubs, Charles Leo really is the outstanding catcher of baseball, and this is said with a bow toward Mickey Cochrane, Bill Dickey and the other stars of the mask. None of the topnotch receivers has accomplished what has been achieved by the Woonsocket Walloper.

OVERCOMES AILMENT

Five years ago the followers of the Cubs were shocked from their hats to their shoes by the announcement that Gabby Hartnett had lost the power of the arm that had made him the terror of all base-runners. Even Leo's enemies were ready to shed a tear, for, indeed, it was a pleasure to watch him rifle his throws around the infield. In 1929, the endurance catcher was a total loss; he caught in only a few games and it was feared that he was through. But see what happened in the intervening years.

Leo came back in 1930 and thrilled his admirers by catching 141 games; he was in 116 battles the succeeding year, and 121 fights in 1932. Last year Hartnett took part in no less than 140 contests and the present indications are that he will continue to provide quiet summers for the soft-pedal Cub receivers. The restoration of the power of his arm is truly one of the remarkable things of the game.

Hartnett, a home-run slugger in his own right, is among those players who thinks the return of the lively ball will help baseball.

GIANTS' PITCHING STAFF FAILS TO SHOW WINNING FORM

CARL HUBBELL FORCED TO SAVE CHAMPS

Associated Press.

Even though they are pounding the new National League ball in better style, it looks as if the world champion New York Giants might have to travel a long and rocky route created by pitching weakness to reach their goal of another National League pennant.

The Giants have run into two severe setbacks already this season. Roy Parmelee was rendered temporarily inactive by appendicitis, and Hal Schumacher hasn't been able to touch his 1933 form. The trial of the Portland rookie, Joe Bowman, as a starting pitcher yesterday resulted in a victory which put the Giants close to the league lead, but it still emphasized the fact that the durable Carl Hubbell can't do all the pitching this season.

BOWMAN WEAKENS

Bowman got through six innings in fair style as the Giants slammed young Emil Leonard, of Brooklyn, around to the tune of eight runs in three innings, but he weakened badly and was yanked after six innings. Dolf Luque, who relieved him, was belted out before he retired a man and finally Hubbell had to take the hill for the fifth time in 13 games to save a 10-9 decision.

The triumph left the Giants only a half game behind the Cubs as Pittsburgh's Pirates stepped out behind Ralph Birkofer's five hit southpaw pitching and defeated the league leaders 4-1. Pittsburgh in turn advanced to third ahead of the Boston Braves, who took an 11-6 shellacking from the Phillies.

Burleigh Grimes won his second victory for St. Louis in as many days when two homers by Jim Collins led the Cardinals to a 3-2 decision over the Cincinnati Reds in 11 innings.

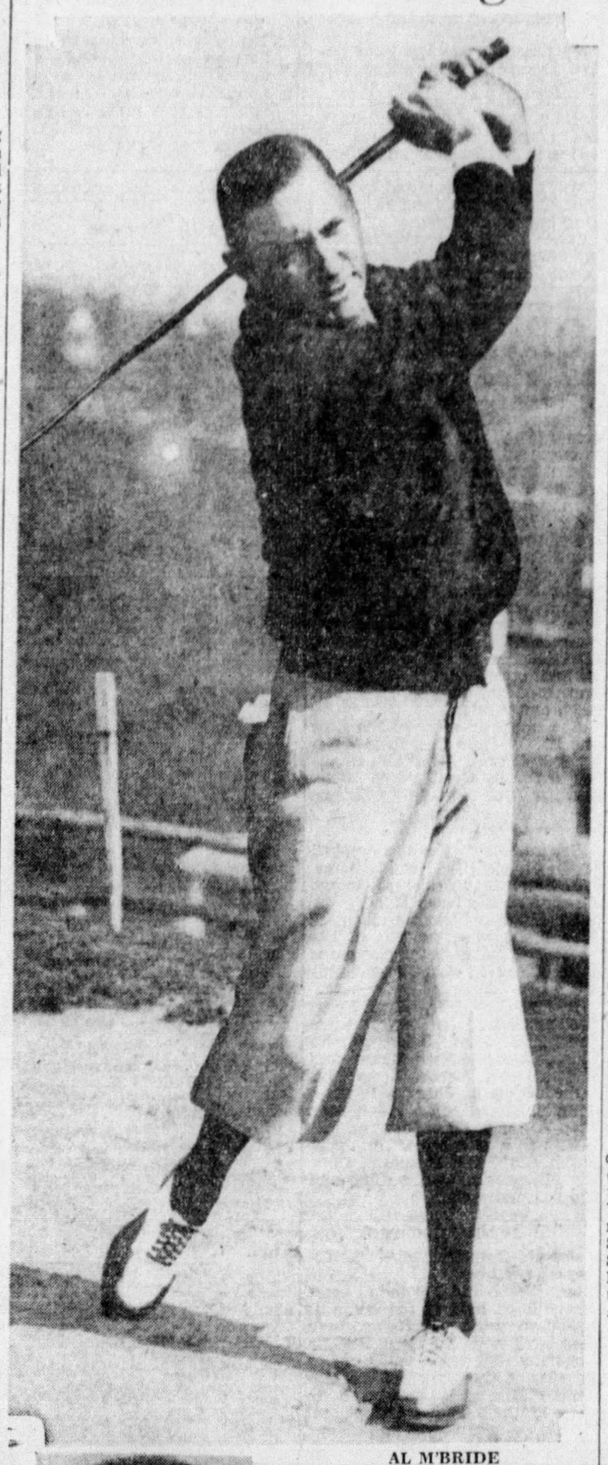
The league-leading New York Yankees provided the biggest thrill of the American League program. Going into the ninth inning against Washington with the score tied, they belted three successive triples and finished the inning with five runs and a 10-5 triumph.

TIGERS VICTORS

Detroit's Tigers came from behind, scoring two runs in the eighth, and held second place by beating St. Louis, 5-4. A revised lineup, minus Goose Goslin, produced 10 hits, the biggest Tiger total in a week.

Henry Johnson, making his first start, pitched the Red Sox to a 7-to-2 victory over the Athletics, allowing only six hits. Avenging their 20-10 beating of Monday, the Cleveland Indians pounded out 15 hits, including four homers, and trounced the Chicago White Sox, 12-1.

Al McBride and Boll With Seals Tonight



AL M'BRIDE

SANDLOT PILOT, PRO ON AIR

Golf and baseball will share the weekly radio program of the Trained Seals of the Sports Department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph over WCAE at 6 o'clock tonight.

Al McBride, professional of the South Park county course, where the National Public Parks tournament will be played this summer, will tell of the arrangements being made to make the event a success and of public parks golf in general. Before going to South Park he was for years the professional of the city links in Schenley Park.

Heine Boll, manager of the Book team, champion of the City League, will discuss the prospects of the teams in this circuit and speak on the sandlot situation as a whole. Boll is a grand veteran of the local sandlots and a former minor league star who once had a trial with the Pirates.

Harry Keck, sports editor, and Tom Birks, of the sports department, will direct the program.

Smith has been coaching at Redstone High School in Republic, Pa. He will report next fall with Ralph Graham, former Kansas State back who was signed a few weeks ago as backfield coach at the Hoosier school.

SUNNEHANNA JOINS WOMEN'S GOLF LOOP

By TOM BIRKS

The Sunnehanna Country Club will be represented in Section II of the Women's Golf League when the circuit swings into action over the links of the Longue Vue Country Club on Thursday, May 17.

The entrance into the team matches of the Johnstown club should prove to be the spark needed to inspire enthusiasm in women's golf in this district. The team from the mountain course (headed by Mrs. George F. Wheeling) should provide plenty of opposition for other clubs in the league.

MRS. RITTER STAR

Members at Sunnehanna have figured prominently in the Women's Golf Association championship in the past. Mrs. William H. Ritter was classed as one of the favorites at Fox Chapel in 1932. Last year, at Allegheny, the Johnstown contingent drove through a teeming rain to get here and then played through the qualifying round in the same weather.

Mrs. Harold Banghart, of Warren, Pa., has been instrumental in organizing a women's team league in Northern Pennsylvania. A meeting has been called for Friday to complete plans for the season. Corry, Kane, Wenango, Conenwango and Titusville will make up the league. Mrs. Banghart has been named a member of the tournament committee of the Women's Golf Association of Western Pennsylvania.

WOMEN AT WILDWOOD

It is courtesy day for women golfers at Wildwood today. Tomorrow the fair sex will have Chartiers Heights and Aliquippa as the courses for their open day. Churchill Valley also will hold a women's invitation tournament tomorrow.

Eight matches were played in the four sections of the Interscholastic Golf Conference yesterday, with Peabody holding on to its lead in Section I by defeating Oliver, 10½ to 4½.

In other matches, Connelley downed Westinghouse, 15 to 0; Allerdice won over Allegheny Vocational, 11 to 4; Sewickley defeated Wilkinsburg, 9½ to 5½; Aspinwall routed Shady Side, 9½ to 5½; Springdale upset University School, 15 to 0; Mt. Lebanon took Dormont, 11 to 4, and Jeannette turned back Dormont, 10½ to 4½.

Pirates Victims of Double Play at Plate

CATCHER HARTNETT

UMPIRE BARR — THEVENOW — ENGLISH

The Chicago Cubs pulled a good double play on our Pirates at Forbes Field yesterday, although the visitors lost, 4-1. With Thevenow on third and Birkhofer on first and one out in the fourth inning, L. Waner sent a roller to Grimm at first base and Lefty stepped on the bag to retire Lloyd and then threw home to catch Thevenow, who was run down by Catcher Hartnett and Third Baseman English, as pictured above. Thevenow, it may be seen, didn't have a chance. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Derby Week again . . . And who ever will forget that stirring finish of a year ago, when Broker's Tip and Head Play came dashing down the stretch together and the jockey on Head Play protested Broker's Tip's victory, alleging rough riding by the latter's jockey? . . . The foul was disallowed, and Head Play's rider was the fall guy, his own drive being criticized by the racing men.

When Vince Dundee defends his middleweight title against Al Diamond at Paterson, N. J., tomorrow night, it will be his second defense of the crown he took away from Lou Brouillard in Boston after Ted Yarosz turned down this match after having twice beaten Dundee and apparently put the latter out of the running . . . Dundee went on to beat Al Callahan in a title bout in Boston and also has engaged in non-title affairs with Ben Jeby, Joe Kaminski and Al McCoy.

Motorboat racing is spreading throughout the East and the news comes that the National championships have been awarded to the Philadelphia Outboard Regatta Association for September 15-16 . . . It is estimated that between a million and a million and a half boats will be in action throughout the country this summer and that some five million enthusiasts will take part in boating of one sort or another, including yachting, sail-boating, rowing and canoeing . . . The trend undoubtedly is toward water sports and the cooling breezes that go with them.

The leading mermaids of Europe will compete in an international meet at Jones Beach, L. I., September 2-3 . . . They include Misses Willy den Ouden and Cornelia Ladde, of Holland, and Misses Joyce Cooper and Phylis Harding, of England . . . Miss Lenore Kight, of Homestead, will compete in a variety of free style events.

Dominic Mancini, local lightweight boxer, who is becoming more vicious with every fight, and his manager, Gus Camp, have departed for New York to try to arrange for battles there and also a hookup with Jimmy McLarnin's training camp. . . . Buck McTiernan and Margaret Patricia O'Brien were married in St. Anselm's Church, Swissvale, at 9 o'clock this morning and henceforth the former star middleweight boxer's career will be confined to serving as a referee. . . . He will break in handling the amateurs and hopes to graduate into a first-class professional arbiter. . . . His pals are tossing a party in celebration of his wedding, and if you haven't been invited it's because the committee overlooked you. . . . Pete Zivic is vice president of the Pittsburgh Celtics team, of the West Penn Mushball League, which will enter the Sun-Telegraph's softball tournament when it gets under way.—HARRY KECK.

BETWEEN ROUNDS

Young Terry beats Ted Yarosz, who beats Jimmy Smith, who beats Young Terry, who is knocked out by Young Corbett, who is knocked out by Jimmy McLarnin, who is going to fight Barney Ross, the lightweight champion, who almost boxed Young Dominic Mancini in Louisville. Which may be why Max Baer gets his name in the papers.

Due to an injury to Leo Flowers, his bout with the Alabama Kid, scheduled at Cincinnati tonight, has been canceled.

Hickey Park, Millvale, was awarded Monday nights for its boxing shows this summer at a meeting in the office of Commissioner W. D. McClelland today. Bus Vogel, the promoter, plans to stage his first show on May 21.

The Joey Razzone-Tiger Joe Randall show in McKeesport Monday night grossed better than $1100 and Promoter Jim McGirr made himself a few dollars for a change.

The Lloyd Clements-Rosy Rosales show scheduled at Fairmont, W. Va., tomorrow night has been indefinitely set back.

DAN SABATH, INJURED, OUT OF DERBY

BAY GELDING RUPTURES TENDON

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 2.—(AP.)—While a half-dozen promising Kentucky Derby candidates were given their last serious workouts today for the big race Saturday, announcement came that Dan Sabath had ruptured a tendon in the Preparation Purse yesterday and was definitely out of the derby.

The bay gelding, owned by Albert Sabath, came in sixth yesterday in a field of 12 led by Peace Chance, which broke Twenty Grand's record for the mile by one-fifth of a second, covering it in 1:35 4-5.

Blue Again, which finished second to Peace Chance, was taking it easy today, but Col. E. R. Bradley sent his filly, Bazaar, over the full derby mile and a quarter. She traveled the distance in 2:04 4-5, but Col. Bradley and his trainer expressed dissatisfaction over her time for the last quarter. The filly was clocked by quarters in :23 4-5, :48, 1:13 2-5 and 1:38 1-5.

DRILLS NOT IMPRESSIVE

Four others, Riskulus, Speedmore, Singing Wood and Agrarian, went the full Derby route. None of the quartet showed any outstanding speed. Riskulus made it in 2:06 1-5 handily and was clocked in :24 2-5, :48 4-5, 1:14 3-5 and 1:40.

Speedmore, breezing, negotiated the distance in 2:10 3-5, the quarters being caught in :25, :50, 1:16 3-5 and 1:42 2-5.

CAVALCADE COMPOSED

Agrarian did the mile and a quarter in 2:12 1-5, breezing. His quarter times were :24 3-5, :50, 1:16 1-5 and 1:43 3-5.

Sgt. Byrne did seven-eighths in 1:30 1-5 and galloped out a mile in 1:45. His time for the first three-quarters was :25 3-5, :50 and 1:16 2-5.

Cavalcade, which had shown signs of nervousness after his long trip from Maryland, was out for a gallop this morning and looked all right.

Honus Says:

By HONUS WAGNER
Former Star, Now Coach of Pirates

To the Sports Editor: Since starting to write these things I get all sorts of funny thoughts. I don't mean they are all humorous. Just today a crazy thought like this popped into my bean: Why is it they call one end of a person his "dogs" and the opposite end his "puss?" I like cats and dogs as well as the next fellow, but why should these two animals be singled out that way? Maybe somebody can tell me.

Honus Wagner

A lot of people have asked me how it was I was able to predict the Giants would win the world series last year in six games. I'll tell you I depended on what some of my congressmen friends told me about the Washington club. I added that up with what I knew about the Giants.

That's the truth. Those birds are students of the game. I guess they must get away a lot to see the games.

Regards,

HONUS WAGNER.

The Pirates begin their first stand against the Eastern clubs tomorrow when the New York Giants, world champions, open a three-game series at Forbes Field.

BIRKOFER WINNER

Evidence that the rabbit rocket had come back were not strong yesterday when Leo and his mates were held to five hits by Ralph Birkofer at the Pirates drubbed the Bruins, 4 to 1, in the second game of a high-tension series. The sturdy Pittsburgh lefthander held the Cubs to five hits, and a double was the best they could do in the matter of cloutnig.

Birkofer also starred at the plate. A fine batsman, Ralph nicked Charley Root, his slab foeman, for a savage double in the second inning with two out and Lavagetto and Grace on the bases. The blow scored both runners. Lavagetto shared the swat honors with Birky by hitting out two fine doubles and a single besides drawing a pass which made it a perfect day for Cookie.

The Bruins were blanked on three hits until the eighth when Jurges worked his way around. Bill opened with a double and scored from third with two out on English's hit.

CHILLYSAUCE

Ralph Birkofer has twirled two complete games for the Pirates in gaining two early season victories. Few pitchers are going the route this year as a result of the induction of the lively ball.

Charley Root and Birkofer are two of the fastest slab workers in the league and the fact that the game was reled off in 1 hour and 34 minutes reflects their quick action on the mound. The second fastest of the year was the fastest of the home season, the other running better than two hours.

Umpire Bill Klem has wisely stated that practically all of the great pitchers of baseball were quick workmen. Grover Cleveland Alexander and Wilbur Cooper, when paired on the slab, could complete their masterly duels in less than one and one-half hours.

Birkofer's fast ball seemed to be jumping in his triumph over the Bruins. Chuck Klein got only one ball out of the infield in four duels with the fireball southpaw. The young left-hander also has a fast-breaking curve in his repertore.

Cookie Lavagetto won many more admirers by his latest hitting performance. His second double was a roaring dwrive that cracked against the left field fence with two on and two out. He came to the Buccos with a reputation for being dangereous in a clinch. Cookie drove in 100 runs for Oakland last year.

Schenley, Langley and Oliver turned in decisive triumphs as the City Scholastic League nines put on a three-game program yesterday. Outside the city, five W. P. I. A. L. and one non-league contest filled out the bill for the schoolboy nines.

Schenley, beaten in its opening game last week by Westinghouse, was too much for Peabody yesterday, the Bellefielders winning, 10 to 2. Greenberg limited Peabody to three safe hits.

Oliver turned on the power in the first inning and defeated South, 7 to 3. Langley had little trouble in subduing Carrick, 12-2.

In the W. P. I. A. L., Turtle Creek took over Elizabeth, 7 to 4; McKeesport won from Edgewood, 4 to 2; Trinity downed Union, 5 to 3; Crafton whipped Findlay, 10 to 6 and Waynesburg defeated Hickory, 7 to 2. In the non-league game, Shady Side Academy walloped Arnold, 16 to 1.

Sport Shorts

Ellsworth Vines scored his fourth straight victory over Bill Tilden, 3-6, 6-1, 6-2, at Des Moines, Iowa, last night. He teamed with Keith Gledhill to down Tilden and Alfred Chapin in doubles, 6-3, 6-4.

Entries for the United States open golf championship, to be played at the Merion Cricket Club, Ardmore, Pa., June 7, 8 and 9, closed last night, but their total will not be made known until late today. Francis Ouimet, George Dunlap and Chandler Egan, members of the Walker Cup team, did not file entries.

The sale of Madison Square Garden, in New York, to a syndicate headed by Col. John S. Hammond, former vice president, is expected to be consummated today after being postponed because of legal technicalities yesterday.

H. R. McMahon, of Pittsburgh, defeated William Steene, of New York, 7 and 5, in the first round of the annual Old Dominion golf tournament at Hot Springs, Va., yesterday.

The New York State Athletic Commission yesterday dropped plans for an elimination tournament to determine a featherweight boxing champion. A ruling was adopted limiting ringside seats at outdoor boxing and wrestling shows to 24 rows. The managers of Barney Ross, lightweight champion, were summoned to explain the postponement of the champion's fight with Tony Herrera in Austin, Tex., recently.

The Shady Side Academy tennis team defeated Arnold School on the Shady Side courts yesterday, 4 to 1.

The Joplin club of the Western Association has suspended activities and the league president has been asked to make an investigation of the club's affairs, it was announced today.

The Rev. M. J. Brannigan, vice president of Duquesne University, is in Harrisburg today to represent the local university in the formation of a new athletic conference involving 15 schools.

THE GAME OF SOFTBALL

—What It's All About—

This is the eleventh installment of a series on the rules of softball being published in connection with a district amateur tournament which the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph will conduct this summer, the winner of which will represent Pittsburgh in the national tournament in Chicago in September. Players are urged to clip and preserve the series.

RULE 20—BASE STEALING

1—A base-runner shall be declared out if he leaves his base while the pitcher has the ball in his possession in pitching position, with one or both feet on the pitcher's plate or before a legally delivered ball has reached or passed home plate.

2—A base-runner may leave his base as soon as a fielder touches a batted fly ball, other than an infield fly, whether the ball is caught or not, without liability of being doubled at the base he has left.

RULE 21—ENTITLED TO ADVANCE

The base-runner shall be entitled to advance one base, unless otherwise stated, without liability of being put out:

1—If while a batsman, he becomes a base-runner by reason of four balls.

2—If he is interfered with by an opponent.

3—If a fair hit ball strikes the person or the clothing of a base-runner or umpire on fair ground before touching a fielder; provided that if a fair hit ball strikes the umpire after having passed a fielder other than the pitcher or having been touched by a fielder, including the pitcher, the ball shall be considered in play. The pitcher shall be considered a fielder if he touches the ball.

4—If the succeeding batsman is given a base on balls, forcing him to advance.

5—On an overthrow at first base or third base or home, which goes into foul territory, providing the ball is blocked by some obstruction such as bleacher, spectators, benches, etc. When the ball is not blocked by some obstruction, the base-runner is entitled to the base to which he is running, and one additional base, provided he can make it. The advance of the base-runner shall be determined by the base which he occupied when the pitch started.

6—If a legally pitched ball hits or passes a backstop, provided such backstop is at least 25 feet behind the home plate.

7—If a fielder stop or catch a batted ball or a thrown ball with his hat, cap, glove or any part of his uniform while detached from its proper place on his person, in which event the runner or runners shall be entitled to three bases on a batted ball and two bases on a thrown ball and one extra base if he can make it. (Note: The ball must be touched in order to violate this rule. Merely making an attempt is not a violation).

Tomorrow—Returning to Bases.

Joe Dobbs, who guides the destinies of the Immaculate Heart nine, the Greater Pittsburgh National Baseball Federation titleholders, believes his boys will provide real opposition for Mellon-Stuart in the Greater Pittsburgh League this year. Rick Ridge, the new manager of the champions, announced his lineup a few days ago, and now Dobbs has named the players who will wear the spangles of Immaculate Heart on the field.

Paul Birch, Duquesne basketball star, will remain at short; Jimmy Mitchell will play first base, Tommy McCullough is to be at second, and Mercer Clark at third.

Johnny Majeski, Leo Friel and Sam Pezula will compose the outfield and Dobbs is scouting around for additional fly chasers. Two catchers have been signed, Scheidner and Ollie Yeager.

The pitching staff finds the veteran Ziggie Anderson lined up once again, with Pete Gumski, Stan Zeigler, Jimmy Beren, Lefty Stuckert and Walter Luntz.

The season at the West Penn playgrounds will open next Tuesday, when the Ambassadors, of Oakland, provide the opposition.

The City League is to hold a meeting tonight at the Hotel Henry. Any player whose name is not turned in will be ineligible for opening games.

PRIMO PROMISES BAER LACING

NEW YORK, May 2.—(AP.)—Hiding coyly behind a four weeks' growth of beard, Primo Carnera slipped into town from the Maine woods and marveled largely at the windstorms his heavyweight title challenger, Max Baer, has been blowing up and down Manhattan's canyons. He bellowed:

"Ho, ho! So he call me a beeg boom, eh? I show heem who's the beeg boom June 14."

Carnera seemed in great shape after four weeks of roughing at a camp on Moosehead Lake, in Maine. His skin was brown, and he looked even bulkier than his usual 275 pounds. He said he had not weighed himself while away. He's going to Pompton Lakes, N. J., today and will start ring work there shortly. He remarked:

"I fish and hunt and chop down trees. I am now very strong. I feex this Baer good. This—this—gigolo, yah, gigolo."

Colombo Victor In Race Abroad

NEWMARKET, England, May 2.—(AP.)—Colombo today continued his unbeaten record on the English turf by winning the Two Thousand Guineas, first of the great 3-year-old classics of the year.

R. B. Stressburgher's Frenchbred colt, Easton, was second, and the Aga Khan's Badruddin was third in the field of 12 which started. Lord Howard de Walden's Blazonry was scratched just before post time.

Colombo, owned by Lord Glanely, won seven races as a 2-year-old and his first start of the year last week.

The winner of the one hundred and twenty-sixth renewal of the classic stakes was held at prohibitive odds of 2 to 7, while Easton was 20 to 1 and the Aga Khan's horse 50 to 1.

HERRERA BEATEN

LOS ANGELES, May 2.—(AP.)—Young Peter Jackson, California light and welterweight champion, knocked Tony Herrera to the canvas four times for long counts here last night to win an easy 10-round decision over the El Paso Mexican. Herrera weighed 140 pounds, one and a half heavier than his opponent.

Plans Completed For Tilden Match

Plans for the layout of Duquesne Garden for the appearance of Bill Tilden, Ellsworth Vines, Keith Gledhill and Dr. Alfred Chapin next Tuesday night, revealed today by Tom McKee, advance man for the tennis show, call for seating and standing arrangements for approximately 5,000 spectators. There will be only two rows of seats on the flat around the court, but a bleacher section will be erected at the far end from the entrance. The regular boxes and the special boxes built for the recent bicycle race also will be available, as will be the balcony.

The players will compete on a linoleum-coated canvas surface, well stretched. They are due here the day before the matches and are booked for appearances in schools, colleges, stores and radio stations.

Chickie's Daughter

By ELENORE MEHERIN

CHAPTER LIX.

Kevin turned and smiled, but he didn't come toward her. She was very startled to see him there. She stood with her hand on the door and surveyed him with slightly parted lips and excited eyes.

"I haven't really broken into the house, Pippin. David and I were working at the County. Then we drove out here and played a few sets of ping pong—a good game. Do you ever play any more?"

"Not lately."

"Several things you haven't been doing lately. You've missed some interesting [illegible] I've saved them for you. If you ever have time to drop around again, I'll show them to you."

She gave him a flashing, indignant look and found his eyes dubious and intent, fixed on her face.

He was flushed with the exercise. He stood there so quiet, but his whole being seemed to glow with an urgent and passionate vitality.

Pippin dropped to the arm of the davenport, where she sat quietly with her glance on her clasped hands. She wore the blue dress which Kevin thought became her well. Mist hung in her blown hair and made it shine.

Missed by Kevin

She said weakly: "I've been studying for finals."

"Studying tonight? Studying this afternoon? And last Saturday? You were dancing, weren't you, Pippin? You've had a wonderful time."

She thought he looked at her enviously. His mouth as he spoke was young and eager.

"I've missed seeing you, Pippin. You haven't been near us for quite a while."

"It's quite easy to see me, Kevin."

"No it isn't. Do you like flying as well as you did in the beginning?"

"Much better. It's wonderful!"

"Oh! And is Bill remaining here much longer?"

"He leaves Thursday."

"How many more examinations have you to take?"

"One—on Tuesday."

"Then probably you'll be in the lab on Friday? Are you studying all day tomorrow?"

"Yes, are you?"

"No. I'm going to Los Gatos tomorrow."

"You are!" She recovered quickly and added: "It's a nice place to go on Sundays, isn't it?"

"Some people like it. That part of the country doesn't interest me. It's too dry with a still, unexciting stupor about it."

She said with a rising inflection that she could not suppress: "Is that so?"

Then David, with an arm full of books and papers, came down the stairs. He handed the books to Kevin, glanced at Pippin, snipped off one of the pearly flowers, smiled and put it in his button hole.

Doesn't Offer Hand

They three stood a moment talking inconsequentially at the door.

Kevin said: "Good-night, Pippin. Keep studying HARD!" and didn't even offer her his hand.

She took the gardenias from her dress, slowly untwined them from the lei and set them in a shallow bowl of water. She felt very stilled, yet she realized that at any moment she would burst into wild, uncontrollable weeping.

It was Wednesday night. Bill looked pale even through his sunburn. His brown twinkling eyes were serious; they were full of unspoken pleas.

Pippin glanced at the cleft in his chin and the blonde hair slicked back. She leaned across the table and said, beseeching: "Bill, please don't look so sad. It's not like you."

"But it's my last night, Pippin. I love you. I'm not going to see you again."

"Of course you are."

"Not for weeks — perhaps months. Your eyes are so blue. Hasn't this month flown! Pippin, I'm going to get free. I'm resigning from the navy. When I return I'll stay as long as need be. I'm returning to finish a job!"

He stood up, giving her no chance to answer. He took her arm and swept her into the dance. When the lights were dimmed he held her very close and murmured against her ear: "Don't make the job too hard, Pippin. Let yourself go and you'll love me. You do a little already and I've only had a month. Shouldn't I have a chance as well as another?"

They stood in the small room at 12 o'clock that night. Bill said: "I should be leaving."

"What time will you start in the morning?"

Plans Early Start

"As soon as it's light—around half past five. I wish I didn't have to go, Pippin, or I wish I could take you with me." He looked down at her and said, serious: "Suppose I take you, Pippin? In a month I'll wager not a man on earth could get you from me. Do you remember the story of the Sabine women? Not even for home and childen could they be induced to leave their rough Roman kidnapers."

"Are you really sure, Bill, that at the end of a month I'd be dazzlingly in love with you?"

He grew red, then laughed: "Yes, I think I am sure, Pippin! I'm really very nice; the longer you'd know me the better you'd like me."

He stood with his hands clasped about her waist, his head lowered so that his lips, as he talked, almost touched hers.

"You don't mind when I take you in my arms, Pippin. You like it when I kiss you. You laugh and are happy when we're out together. Ask anyone that knows, they'll tell you that's love. It's near enough to love. It's all I'll ask."

She said, quiet: "Is that all you want for yourself, Bill? Is it all you feel for me?"

He drew her close till her head rested on his shoulder. He kissed her.

"When I hold you like this, Pippin, empires could fall, ships be sunk and worlds destroyed—it wouldn't matter. I'd hold you and not know or care!"

She listened with her eyes closed; her heart full of dreams.

"It's better, Pippin, for a woman to be the more loved; she's happier. She shouldn't be the one to kneel."

She drew from him and said faintly: "Can't two people love, Bill?"

Love Never Equal

"Never in equal measure—it doesn't happen. Let the man love the more, Pippin. As I—"

She followed him to the door. Still he loitered. He took her hand and looked a long while into her face as though he were never to see it again and wished the image stamped immortally on his memory.

"Remember the first time I went away? You stood on that hill in the Presidio and waved the white handkerchief? I thought I could see your face and your hair, Pippin. Why I even saw tears in your eyes and imagined you cried for sorrow that I left. You didn't, I know. I was very young."

"But I did—if you keep on like this I'll be crying now."

"I wouldn't want you to cry—ever—for anything. I'd not want to hurt you—or make you mad . . . Well, goodby, Pippin dear, goodby."

* * *

Shortly after five on that drizzly Thursday morning in the last week of March, Pippin drew up alongside the flying field in Palo Alto. She honked faintly, once.

Bill came running toward her, lifted her bodily from the car and held her silent in his arms. When she looked into his face, she saw his eyes wet and his lips trembling.

"You drove down alone in the middle of the night, Pippin?"

"To say goodbye, Bill, and to cry a little."

"No, you've come to be kidnaped! And I'm going to do it! Oh, Pippin, why not?"

"Are you all ready to leave, Bill?"

Bill Leaves

"In 10 or 15 minutes. It's pretty sweet of you to come all this way, Pippin. You are sweet!" He looked in her face and laughed happily: "But your nose is red with the cold."

"I don't want it to be red. I want it to be pearly white so you'll imagine I'm beautiful."

He said on a sudden, deep, sharp breath: "Oh, Pippin, I don't have to imagine that!"

He stood there looking at her and saying casual things about the trip, the weather and the mechanics who were now tuning up the motor. But all the while conscious that these moments were precious and shouldn't be wasted in trivial talk.

"I have to go, Pippin—I have to be starting. This was dear of you. You're a dear, precious thing."

"You're not trying to make any speed, are you, Bill? You won't fly at night or take off if it seems stormy?"

"Come along, Pippin, and see how careful I can be!"

"Be careful anyway."

"I'm not taking a chance in the world. I'm coming back! There's not a storm ever blew will keep me from you!"

In the gray morning light he appeared somber—a little pale. He held her and kissed her and murmured with a note of solemnity: "This is the last time, Pippin, that you go one way and I another—the last time."

She smiled and kept saying "goodby" and wondered why he looked so white; wondered why the tears streamed down her cheeks when he leaned from the cabin and waved. She watched until he was a dim small bird shining against the lighted pallor of the morning sky . . . then he was a dark speck vanishing in a far white cloud. He was altogether gone.

CAMPAIGNS IN THE REVOLUTIONARY WAR UP TO 1777—SURRENDER OF BURGOYNE

In 1777 the British moved in concentric drive against the revolting Americans to isolate New England. Gen. Burgoyne advanced from Canada via Lake Champlain-Hudson River southward; Col. St. Leger from Canada through Mohawk Valley eastward; Gen. Howe was to move from New York up the Hudson (map above).

Burgoyne, successful at first (took Fort Ticonderoga), was checked by the American Cols. Stark and Werner (at Bennington).

Col. St. Leger's campaign, also successful at first, ended when a trick of American Gen. Arnold sent his Indians and soldiers panic-stricken into flight.

British Gen. Burgoyne, deprived of the co-operation of St. Leger and hoping in vain for the arrival of Gen. Howe, who—by some blunder—moved from New York to Philadelphia instead, had to stand battle. In two major engagements at Saratoga, New York (Sept. 19, Oct. 7, 1777) Burgoyne was defeated. He surrendered with about 6,000 troops to Gen. Gates, commander of the American campaign in the North, newly-appointed by a biased Congress, replacing Gen. Schuyler, Washington's able appointee. (U. S. History)

ARMINIUS, VICTOR AT TEUTOBERG FOREST (9 A. D.)—HIS DEFEAT BY GERMANICUS

Emperor Octavian Augustus, victorious in Egypt, Asia Minor, Spain, Gaul and Greece, suffered defeat by the German chieftain Arminius, who annihilated three legions of Proconsul Varus at Teutoberg Forest; Varus committed suicide.

This defeat turned Augustus from warfare to internal reforms and beautification of Rome. His age the "Augustan" was that of Virgil, Horace, Ovid, a period of highest literary activity.

Emperor Tiberius, his successor (14-37 A. D.) sent Germanicus, a nephew, to subdue the rebelling German tribes. Germanicus, successful, also defeated Arminius (15-16 A. D.) whose heroic wife, Thusnelda, with children was treacherously delivered to Germanicus by her own father, Segestes, a German chieftain, ally of Romans (below left).

ECHINODERMATA—NINTH PHYLUM OF ANIMAL KINGDOM

Courtesy of McGraw-Hill Book Co. (Wieman: Zoology)

Echinodermata (meaning "spiny skins") consist of starfishes, sea-urchins, sea cucumbers, sand dollars (above) etc. (about 4,000 species). They are marine animals having a radial symmetry on a five-radiate plan.

Starfish has five "arms," each carrying many tube feet and an eyespot on the top, to distinguish light from dark. It feeds on clams. Pulling the valves slowly apart, then turning its own stomach wrongside-out, it wraps around, digests the soft matter. It is able to regenerate lost parts. The eggs normally require fertilization but subjected to hypertonic seawater, acids, temperature changes, shocks, will develop without it (artificial parthenogenesis). (Gen Science)

AIR CRAFT, HEAVIER THAN AIR

Formerly man believed that to fly all he needed was wings. Even such a genius as Leonardo DaVinci (1452-1519) made designs for a flying mechanism (above) actuated by muscular power. (Transportation)

SPECTRUM ANALYSIS—KEY TO ATOMIC STRUCTURE

Light rays of different wave length are refracted under different angles by a transparent prism. Sun light, a mixture of such rays, can be divided into its constituents, giving a strip of the familiar colors of the rainbow (1).

The spectroscope, consisting of collimator (tube with slit and lens), prism (one or more) and telescope (tube with objective lens and eyepiece) admits rays from the light source (through the slit), which are refracted by the prism. The objective lens of the telescope produces by the dispersed lightbeams images of the slit, called spectrum, examined through the eye piece (2). The angle with which the telescope is turned to center it on each line of spectrum is measure of respective wave length. View of spectroscope is shown at (3). Photographic plate, inserted at focal plane of objective (such apparatus is called spectrograph) takes picture of spectrum (4).

Basic laws of spectrum analysis (Kirchhoff's): Incandescent solids, liquids, luminous gases under pressure, produce continuous spectra. Luminous gas or vapor under low pressure gives spectrum of bright lines, characteristic for each chemical element present. Light traveling through a cooling gas loses energy of that wave length of radiation which the cooling gas would emit if radiating alone (absorption—spectrum). By spectrum analysis, new chemical elements were discovered and composition of matter determined.

MILKING MACHINE—MILK TEST FOR FAT

The milking machine takes the milk from the cow by vacuum produced by a motor-driven pump. It is efficient and sanitary, eliminating contamination by handling. Content of fat, most valuable part of milk, is determined by tests, disclosing productivity of cows or possible fraud by watering. Generally the Babcock test is used: 1, Add strong acid (H_2SO_4) to milk (dissolves casein, melts fat by heat); 2, centrifuge (whirl in machine, above right) in test bottles the acid-milk mixture; fat collects in calibrated necks and percentage can be read. Legal minimum of fat content in milk sold is 3¼% in many states. (Gen. Science) 67—III—B

Different States, Different Customs

Looking over our legal technicalities we find that no soused Pennsylvania motorist can be cross-examined against his staggering refusal.

In light spring words, he cannot be examined for drunkenness without his consent.

That's good news. And would be better if we didn't have to cross New Jersey to get to Pennsylvania.

The usual verbal test is the old truly rural recitation without gestures. If you can get by truly rural without tying your tongue around your neck like a cravat you are sober enough to drive past any red light.

Another famous judicial and Olympian test is walking the chalk line. The Judge draws a white mark on the floor and you walk it. There is no danger. If you fall off the chalk line you are still on the floor.

But your Pennsylvania motorist can refuse to go through with it. Looking at the chalk line he draws himself up like a bucket in a well. He spurns the exam.

He says, "Make that line 26 feet wide and put shoulders on it. It's too narrow. What do I do when I meet west-bound traffic?"

So he starts a dignified filibuster and they cannot make him put himself on record. Even though he couldn't get across the chalk line in a breeches buoy they still have to prove that he ain't sober.

It protects the privileges and rights of the citizen. We shall move to Pennsylvania quickly. A man can be thoroughly capable of driving a car even though he is unable to chin himself on a moonbeam or traverse a line of march on linoleum. It is strange how alcohol shortens your wheelbase.

Pennsylvania has always been considerate of human frailities and habits. It's rather tough on pedestrians. But all us walkers know we are taking a sporting chance. When in doubt we follow the robins and recuperate in the bird sanctuaries.

In other states like California, New York and Arkansas they don't admire intoxicated chauffeurs. They toss you into the dongon keep and slice your toast thin enough to shove through iron bars. Your coffee is strained through chicken wire. And if you ain't sober when you get out it ain't because you weren't in long enough. The Judge throws the book at you and lets you read it at your leisure.

The McLeod Bill Rally

It Can Be Passed If the People Demand It Earnestly Enough

The mass meeting in Pittsburgh today in support of the McLeod bill is significant. It is another indication of the strength of the popular demand for the passage by Congress of this measure.

The McLeod bill would require the Federal Government to pay depositors in closed banks of the Federal Reserve System in full.

It is a measure of ordinary justice to these depositors, since the Government urged them to leave their deposits in those banks, and is morally obligated to make good on the results of its urgings.

It is also a recovery measure of the highest importance, since it would stimulate purchasing power, and therefore employment, throughout the country.

Furthermore, there is no question that a majority in Congress would vote for it—if given the chance.

But the opponents of the bill have resorted to every parliamentary trick they can think up to delay and DEFEAT it.

Representative McLeod and others who advocate the measure are endeavoring to bring it out into the open for a vote at this session.

Every American who believes that the Government should do justice to the depositors in the closed banks and who also believes that it should aid recovery in this businesslike manner hopes that their efforts will be successful.

And any American who wishes to HELP toward the passage of the McLeod bill can do so by getting in touch with his Representative and Senator and demanding that it be brought to a vote.

If you feel that way about it, that is the thing for you to do, and to do IMMEDIATELY.

Last Chance to Register

Be Sure to Qualify for the Primary Election—Polls Are Open Until 9 P. M.

Pittsburghers have today their last opportunity to register for the primary election, to be held on Tuesday, May 15.

Those who have not yet registered should not neglect this final chance. The polling places will be open for the purpose until 9 p. m., daylight saving time.

The candidates for United States Senator, Governor, the House of Representatives, the State Legislature and a number of other important places are to be named in the primary. It may, then, well be the instrumentality through which the citizens of Pennsylvania will determine governmental policies that will profoundly affect their welfare during the next few years.

It is a civic duty as well as a privilege to cast a vote which will help to decide who the candidates and what the policies will be. Qualify for this duty and privilege by registering.

A Grievous Mistake

Half of the State's Beavers Are Killed in the Brief Open Season.

The judgment of John M. Phillips and Ross L. Leffler, former chairman of the Pennsylvania Game Commission, that the time was not ripe for removing protection from the beaver, is vindicated.

The Game Commission's report on the slaughter of beavers in the open season from March 1 to April 10, the first open season since they were reintroduced into the state in 1915, is evidence that a grievous mistake was made in lifting the ban on trapping them. For MORE THAN HALF THE BEAVERS IN THE STATE WERE KILLED according to the Game Commission's figures, as reported in an Associated Press dispatch from Harrisburg.

It is stated that 6,397 beavers were trapped, and that the remaining beaver "population" is 5,770.

One more such season, and the beaver will again go to join the bison, the moose, the panther, the wolf, the wolverene, the fisher, the pine marten, and other animals that have been exterminated in Pennsylvania by the white man. It will be a pity, for the beaver has been an interesting and useful member of our fauna.

The excuse given for lifting protection from the beavers was that they were flooding farmers' fields with their dams. But the detailed report of the carnage reveals that most of the beavers were killed, not in the farming counties, but in the wooded and mountainous counties. More than a thousand were trapped in Potter County.

The charge was made at a recent meeting of the Naturalists' Club in Pittsburgh that the Game Commission was deeply involved in politics.

And the[illegible] has been voiced that lifting the ban on trapping beavers was a bid for the trapper vote.

Whatever the explanation, it is now clearly shown to have been without justification.

The Auto Toll Climbs

A Disturbing Condition Is Revealed by the March Statistics

Notwithstanding that because of the prolonged depression many persons are now without automobiles who had them a few years ago, the number of automobile accidents in Pennsylvania in March, as just reported by the Department of Revenue at Harrisburg, was the greatest for that month that was ever recorded.

There were 4,550 accidents, in which 147 persons were killed and 2,774 injured.

The previous March record for total accidents was 3,429, reported in 1930, when motor vehicle registrations were at their peak.

The State Highway Patrol reports that 4,033 motorists were arrested in March, which was 1,427 or 55 per cent more than in March last year.

It is further stated that in its sustained effort to eliminate reckless driving the Highway Patrol has been making three arrests this year for every two last year.

These state bureaus offer no satisfactory explanation for the remarkable increase in accidents and arrests for reckless driving. But the Pittsburgh Bureau of Traffic Planning accounts for the increase in auto accidents in the city by saying that five times as many drivers and twice as many pedestrians were in traffic accidents involving liquor this year as in the corresponding period last year. If liquor is responsible for the increase in auto accidents in the city, it seems reasonable to suppose that it also accounts for the increase in these mishaps throughout the state.

Not only drunken men but men who have been drinking should not attempt to drive automobiles, lest they injure themselves and others. They would be wise, too, not to walk on the highways. Liquor and automobiles do not mix.

Make This a Reality!

National highways, crossing the continent from north to south and from east to west—

Linking with the great Pan-American Highway, which will unite North and South America—

Binding the country more closely together in trade and travel, and adding immeasurably to our national defense—

On what better projects could the Federal Government employ its Public Works funds?

Employment would be increased. Industries would be stimulated. And for generations to come the wealth of the American people would be multiplied.

The Federal Government should make the construction of national highways a major recovery policy.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 2.—Broadway, for the most part, these days is a chain of toy shops stuffed and glued together. A cunning colorization of hodge-podge. Some heave their catch-penny charm in the faces of passers-by. Others open, languish in a lack of needful funds a few days and are soon no more.

Opening late in the morning, they remain brilliant and blatant until late at night. The hat and gown shops, presided over by bosomy "Modoms," are drop-in places for chorus and cabaret girls. In the back rooms are cigarets, sometimes the cocktail makings and easy chairs.

The great expense is lighting, which must be garish for the wary Broadway eye. Nowhere do shop windows shine so brightly. In the glare, the haberdasher's dollar shirts and ties have a Fifth avenue sheen. The florist hasn't enough space, and his flowers tumble onto the sidewalk.

The drink stands are so highly sanitized they suggest the operating room. Sometimes there will be an opera bouffe touch, such as the glittery nut shop with a militant doorman plumed like a cockatoo. Yet in the conglomerate confusion clerks have time to be friendly, indeed the friendliest in town.

* * *

The new Rialto seems to be Central Park South, running from Fifth avenue to Broadway. The glossy hotels along the strip are filled with players and radio performers. In the late afternoon they come out-doors and show themselves, clot under the canopies and sidewalk edge just as they did when the Claridge was hub of theatrical life. Someone dubbed it the Little White Way.

* * *

Nothing in city life so deflates one's feeling of worldliness as to be the target for New York's oldest street racket. The pseudo salesman from the doorway who whispers "Psst! Wanna buy a fur!" They still operate mostly in the wholesale fur districts, disguised as truckmen to give the appearance the furs are stolen. Many have been on the job 20 years.

* * *

The last time I was accosted was on West Thirty-ninth street. "What makes you think," I cried, and thereby left myself wide open for a haymaker, "that I would buy one of your furs?" He replied quicker than that, "Lotsa saps do!"

Manhattan's most indefatigable toast-master is Clarence Budington Kelland, the novelist, who in repose suggests Al, the counter man, in any depot short order restaurant you pick. He's about the only one of the t.m's left since Francis Patrick Murphy is gone and Irvin Cobb is cold to all entreaties. "Bud" Kelland has presided at the weekly Dutch Treat luncheons for 10 years and thus has introduced from the dais every 18-karat celebrity, local or imported, during that time. He tells no bright stories, as do most of his kind. His metier is the silky hoot. No matter whom he asks to stand and deliver, he first tears him apart to reveal how absurdly he ticks, but with such bland and uncompromising innocence that no one thinks to shoot him until they get home. There was a time he introduced one notorious windbag, promising a very short speech, thus tipping off the speaker he was to be brief. Everybody expected the rhetorical balloon to soar, deflate and fill again. Instead he quit in three minutes. Kelland with disarming naivete observed: "He really kept his promise. It only sounded long."

* * *

The daily rote of life in the modern New York apartment is as remote to the dwellers as to natives of Kamchatka. Each offers a study in scientifically applied muffling. Recently I gazed out my work-shop window to see a tarpaulin stretched on the roof below. Summer painters, I thought. No untoward rumors of any sort during the day. Only the evening papers told of a neighbor leaping nine stories to the roof and death while I was at breakfast.

Charles Hanson Towne, who slid into a radio niche as smoothly as mercury, approached the microphone the first time with acute terror. He expected his voice to come out in a thin hingy squeak and his knees to buckle. Although he has faced public audiences frequently. He found what every novice finds. And that is there is no such thing as mike fright. It exists only before the first word is spoken. One word and it vanishes. Not one in 100,000 has had to stop from fright in speaking.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

A Doubter's Prayer

"HELP THOU MINE UNBELIEF!"
Long years ago
A frantic father cried
These words
To Christ, in pain,
And saw his mad son
Eased to health again.

* * *

Today I, too,
Cry out for healing, Lord,
From all the madness
Of this frenzied world,
From hate, suspicion,
Fear and greedy strife,
Conceit and malice,
Heal my sickened life!

* * *

I, too, believe
In all that's clean and right.
I, too, have faith,
My Father,
In Your might.
But in this darkness,
Sometimes,
Faith takes flight—
And then I doubt.

* * *

I doubt if good
Can triumph over wrong
Have men grown braver
Through the long,
Dark years?
Or are our lives
Still ruled by jungle fears?
Does honor pay?
Or sacrifice?
Or tears
Of pity?

* * *

I doubt, my Father,
If You really live,
For, if You did,
Would You not surely give
Some sign to help me;
Word, or friendly token,
To say You're there?
Or, if You live,
I wonder if You care
When hearts are broken?

* * *

I doubt
I doubt,
And yet
I DO BELIEVE!
THEN HELP ME CONQUER
MY OWN UNBELIEF!

* * *

Help me believe
That kindness
Is worth while,
In face of malice,
Furtiveness and guile.
Help me believe
In honor,
Help me to not doubt
Life's plan
Is sane and true.
In my own self,
My fellow man
And YOU,
Help me believe!
Till, slow but surely,
Faith shall conquer Fear—
And deeper, clearer,
I at last shall hear
Your cleansing Truth,
And feel
You heal
The nightmare madness
Of my unbelief!
Amen.

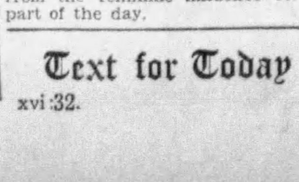
MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

Honeymoon Hazards

It's honeymoon time—which ought to be the happiest, but is often the most hazardous time of a woman's life. Yet, most of the casualties which strew Honeymoon Lane are the result of man's inclination to take love too lightly and of woman's inclination to take man too seriously.



Nearly every seasoned wife can remember the pangs of her honeymoon days, when she made the awful discovery that man is a carniverous animal who simply cannot think of kisses or bother his heart when his stomach is crying for beefsteak and potatoes.

* * *

The average woman's Big Mistake is her attempt to measure a man's emotional reactions by her OWN. She foolishly assumes that a man is always thinking of women; and that if she is not filling his mind, it must be some other woman who is doing so.

* * *

From childhood, a woman is always consciously or subconsciously thinking of the man she's going to get, the man she's got, the man she didn't get—or the man who happens to be present at the moment. But there are eight or 10 hours a day when a man's mind is as free from any thoughts of a woman as it is from thoughts of murder or the Einstein theory. He can look straight through the prettiest girl in the office as though she were cellophane and see nothing but a stock-ticker or a bill-of-sale.

* * *

If men weren't like that, no married woman would ever have a moment's peace of mind! Yet a bride can't understand how or why a man simply MUST escape from the feminine influence for part of the day.

To almost any normal woman, the whole business of life is LOVE. She may go through the motions of building a career, working in an office or running a tearoom; but only a small portion of her heart is in it. And when love goes blah, she discovers that she is only marking time. But, to a man, love is only the business of his leisure. And he seldom "sees a dream walking," until he has locked his office desk.

* * *

Another mistake which a woman makes, in the first year of marriage, is that of regarding a man as an ADULT, as responsible as herself. Whereas, few men ever develop emotionally beyond the 12-year-old stage.

* * *

Before marriage, a girl is eternally tormenting herself to find out what a man MEANS. But nine times out of 10, he doesn't mean anything! He calls up the first girl on his telephone list, dances with the girl who chances to catch his eye and marries the girl who happens to be nearest at hand or knows how to ease him to the altar most painlessly.

If a bride of 18 or 20 would realize that the husky six-footer beside her who calls her "Baby Doll" and poses as The Book of Knowledge, is only about half her age emotionally, she would take him less seriously, indulge his lighter moods and avoid a honeymoon smash-up.

* * *

Modern marriages don't wear out—they don't last long enough. But, if you can keep the glamour all through the honeymoon, you can usually keep it for life.

Mansion for Home but—

By Winifred Black

So she only bought them a $200,000 house with stables and gardens and a rose arbor, a privet hedge, a ball room, a little theater and an art galley, and gave them $1,000 a month to run it.

There's an ungrateful daughter for you.

Working night and day and her pictures in the paper and everything and she a screen star or something close to it, and would she give her father a little extra $50,000 so he could add a swimming pool to the mansion—she would and she did, but she sort of grumbled about it.

Now mother and dad are almost starving to death and they have hailed daughter into court and she is ordered to show why she shouldn't be forced to support her poor old father and mother in the luxury to which they have become accustumed.

Poor dear old things, and they so fond of their daughter and all, and so anxious to do her credit.

Why mother could have lolled around home all day in gorgeous negligees, and that would have been nice, too.

But no, she stood for hours, at the smartest shops trying on and trying on and trying on and getting smart street frocks and smart trot-abouts and glorious evening getups just to look nice when people pointed out daughter's mamma at the theater or at the opening of one of the new gay Hollywood cafes.

And papa—didn't he wear the very best clothes right straight from London and drive a really up-to-date roadster when he really would have preferred a small car?

And the way they've planned and slaved living up to daughter—giving tomale parties when they'd rather have been playing pinochle upstairs in the back bedroom, and no fuss about refreshments and clothes and decorations.

Well, what is it somebody said about the "serpent's tooth" and the thankless child?"

What a comfort these dear old proverbs are, anyhow.

Aren't you interested in the whole business?

I am—honestly, aren't you now yourself?

ISN'T IT SO?

Fleet Maneuvers Show Efficiency of Canal

By James T. Williams, Jr.

WHEN the American fleet completed the transit of the Panama Canal, the United States gave the world an object lesson in the value of statesmanship when applied to great enterprise.

It was the first time since the canal was completed that the American fleet, at so nearly its maximum strength, has gone through the canal as a unit. The fact that 110 vessels of the fleet completed transit in 47 hours demonstrates the efficiency of the fleet and of the military operation of the canal, which is a responsibility of the War Department.

In reporting to the Navy Department the success of the operation, Admiral David Foote Sellers, commander-in-chief of the fleet, said:

"The continuous transit of the canal by the fleet as a unit has been a very valuable experience for all hands, and it is believed that much useful data has been obtained. It is suggested that suitable acknowledgment be made to the War Department for the efficient manner in which everything connected with the transit of the fleet has been handled by the canal authorities."

* * *

Canal Building Free From Politics

THE American statesmen under whose leadership the Panama Canal was built were careful to safeguard its construction and its operation from the kind of pork barrel politics that has wrecked the federal air mail and dealt a crippling blow to that other wonder of the world—also of American origin—the splendid system of American air transport.

Until last February, when the air mail contracts were canceled without a hearing, it had drawn closer together every part of the Federal Union and made all the republic to the south our next door neighbor in transportation and communication.

It was not an American, but a Britisher, the late Rt. Hon. James Bryce, at the time British ambassador to the United States, who declared before the National Geographic Society that "not only is the Panama Canal the greatest undertaking of the past or the present, but even the future seems destined never to offer any land-dividing, world-uniting project comparable to it in magnitude or consequence."

One writer on the canal gives you some idea of what a tremendous task its construction was when he says:

"Enough material had to be removed by the Americans to make a tunnel through the earth at the equator more than 12 feet square. The material removed from the canal would fill a string of cars, each holding 20 cubic yards of dirt, reaching about three and a half times around the earth and it would take a string of Panama Railroad engines reaching almost from New York to Honolulu to move them."

* * *

Sanitation Also Was Huge Job

BUT the digging of the canal was not the most difficult part of the undertaking. The sanitation which paved the way for builders of the canal to go to the isthmus and live there without falling victims to yellow fever or other tropical diseases captured the imagination of the world. It was a medical and not a military mission that Japan sent to study the canal soon after it was completed. For this reason, in the history of the canal, the name of Gorgas is forever linked with that of Goethals. The one was the Army medical officer who with his aides solved the health problem on the isthmus as Goethals and his aides met and overcome the engineering obstacles.

What many Americans of the present day forget is that it was the military value of the Panama Canal to the defense of the United States which was the determining factor in its construction. For this reason Congress, under the leadership of the first President Roosevelt, insisted upon retaining for the United States the right to fortify the canal.

The advocates of unpreparedness of that day opposed fortification just as those of this day oppose building up the Army and Navy to the strength required by the common defense. But public sentiment, once it was informed, prevailed and the Panama Canal is today a great defense asset to this country.

The fact that we have and control the canal makes it possible for the American fleet to maneuver at will in either ocean. This tremendously increases the effectiveness of the fleet. And its return to the Atlantic as a unit under the presidency of another Roosevelt is a reminder that the policy of [illegible] either ocean is still an established American policy.

The nation that challenges this American policy does so at peril.

The Homespun Philosophy of Charles F. Kettering—The Saar Plebiscite Draws Nigh

By Edwin C. Hill

CHARLES F. KETTERING has always struck me as the Abraham Lincoln of the scientific field, physically if not facially, in his beginnings in the soil of the Middle West, and more than anything else in his homespun philosophy which, of late, has made him a much sought-after public speaker.

He is 58 now, has his fortune and his yacht, and is chief of the research branch of General Motors. He is the man who invented the self-starter for automobiles, and yet he never saw even a street car until he was 21. From an Ohio farm, the blacksmith shop and the country schoolhouse, he advanced to the university, and from it to first rank with the inventors of his time. Here is a typical Kettering thought:

"Just the minute you get satisfied with what you've got, the concrete has begun to set in your head."

* * *

No Great Invention In 10 Years

AND it is on this theme that he expands in an interview with Malcolm W. Bingay, editorial director of the Detroit Free Press, which is published in the current Rotarian Magazine. Mr. Kettering, answering those who advocate putting the brakes on scientific development so that civilization may catch up, says that he deplores the fact that there has not been a single invention of any importance in the past 10 years. Scouting the suggestion for a "Moratorium on mankind's inventive genius," Mr. Kettering says:

"We are not at the end, but at the beginning. We have but reached the shores of a great unexplored continent. We cannot, however, turn back, for there is no other direction to go but forward. It is man's destiny to ponder on the riddle of existence and, as a by-product of that wonderment, he is creating a new life on this earth. The engineers and the scientists, instead of being stopped in their work, should be encouraged to continue at fever heat to balance matters—and they will—by the invention of labor-creating systems. That is the world's greatest need now and necessity is the mother of invention.

"It is easy for the economists and the politicians to blame the inventor and the research engineer. The research men created the new wealth of the world and its prosperity. It is not their fault that it was abused. Those who did abuse these new found riches have by now—it is hoped—learned their lesson. The joy ride is over. We are back to earth. And it is up to the researcher to bring us out of the wreckage. Therefore, do not hamstring him. Assist him, do not blame him. Research is not man's despair, but his greatest hope."

Saar May Be Near Explosion

LYING along the Franco-German border almost due east of the city of Metz, the maps show the Saarland, an area of 738 square miles—about three-quarters the size of the state of Rhode Island. Almost each day an item of news trickles out of this country, into the cables and wireless and into the press of the world. Each of these incidents is another faggot thrown on a fire. The blaze is growing slowly and surely and, at any moment, it may burst out in startling fury.

The Saar is small, but its commercial importance is great, the district being a rich coal and manufacturing one with a population of more than 800,000. For the past 14 years, the Republic of France has been taking nearly 30 million tons of coal each year out of the Saar, a price which the Treaty of Versailles fixed upon Germany because of the systematic destruction of French mines by the Kaiser's armies in 1914.

The verdict of Wilson, Clemenceau and Lloyd George was, that from 1920 on, France was to control the Saar, with the government under a Commission of the League of Nations. At the end of the 15-year period, which is 1935, a plebiscite is to be held and the Saarbruckers have one of three choices—to unite with Germany, to unite with France or to continue under the rule of the League of Nations.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Aren't you too much affected by the way people treat you?

Isn't it too easy for you to imagine rebuffs when such were not intended?

Reprimands by your superior are thought about and enlarged until they assume proportions far greater than they represent.

Perhaps you desire too much attention in a social way.

You may have accomplished more than most people and attained a position more or less prominent.

Thus you are a bit sensitive to what appears to be a lack of respect due you.

You think you should receive greater homage than is accorded you.

So many people today do things out of the ordinary that you must be very exceptional if you are to get more than passing attention.

But, no matter what you do, why should you expect unusual recognition?

That you can meet requirements should be sufficient gratification.

In this age people are not bowing down to success.
